Relief From Hemorrhoids Possible Without Surgery!

Persons suffering from hemorrhoids (piles) need no longer resort to painful hospital surgery, thanks to a relatively new electrostatic method of treating rectal and colon disorders, practiced by the Dean Clinic in Portland, Oregon.

The Dean Clinic treatment is proving more effective than surgery in many cases and requires no hospitalization or confinement. Uncomplicated cases are often corrected in as little as 10 days.

Information without obligation may be obtained by writing the Dean Clinic, Chiropractic Physicians, 2026 N. E. Sandy Blvd., Portland 12, Oregon.

Eisenhower Says No Decision Made on Hike Of Federal Securities Interest Rate

Washington—President Eisenhower told his news conference today that no decision had been reached on asking Congress to permit an increase in the interest rate on long-term federal securities. But it was obvious, he added, that the government simply had to do something to avoid financing too much of the $288 billion public debt with short-term securities.

He said it was true that he was disturbed over recent polls showing a decline in the national acceptance of the Republican party. He said plans to attack the situation were being drawn up and would be announced in the near future, presumably by the Republican National Committee.

Oregon Wagons Travel 16 Miles

Douglas, Wyo.—The Oregon Centennial wagon train pushed on toward the Ben Kohr ranch near here today, after negotiating 16 miles of non-paved backroads from Glendo, Wyo., Tuesday.

The Centennial pioneers camped Tuesday night on the shore of Glendo lake. They said game, including deer and antelope—and one cougar—were plentiful in the rugged area. No one shot anything, however.

The two-day "shakedown cruise" was to prepare the Cavalcade for the forthcoming 250-mile trip between Casper and Kemmerer, Wyo., described as the roughest trek the Fifty-Niners have faced to date. It is part of the original Oregon Trail.

The Kohr ranch is seven miles southeast of Douglas. There are 1,300 sawmills operating in Minnesota.

two, with a close final vote likely. Eisenhower said he found no criticism of the manner in which Strauss had operated the Commerce Department for the past eight months and he saw no reason why the same situation would not continue as long as Strauss holds the post.

Background Questioned
The background of Strauss' Jewish background was raised by a reporter who asked whether he agreed with certain Republican congressmen that anti-Semitism might be a factor in the current difficulty of the cabinet officer in winning confirmation. The President replied first that he did not know that any Republican congressman had made such a charge. If anti-Semitism is made a serious factor, he added, this indeed would be tragic.

The President was questioned from a number of different angles about the steel negotiations. The first inquiry was whether he might invoke the Taft-Hartley law and seek an 80-day cooling off period if a strike begins July 1. The President said he would have to wait for that time before arriving at a decision.

Wants Labor Reforms
Then the subject of labor-management relations was broadened somewhat. A reporter cited the belief of Lewis and James Hoffa, head of the Teamsters Union, that Congress should not pass a labor reform bill this year. The President was asked whether he thought the House and Senate should go home without adopting such legislation.

Firmly, Eisenhower said he most certainly did not think that Congress should adjourn without action. Then he told of being greatly disturbed by the spread of theories in this country—which he said dated back to the Communist teachings of Karl Marx in the last century—that

Symington Ends California Tour

Los Angeles—Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) headed back to Washington Tuesday night after a week-long speaking tour of California.

Symington held a series of meetings with the California Democratic leaders during the tour, but insisted he was not actively seeking the presidential nomination for 1960.

He did say, however, that he would be glad to accept the nomination if it were offered to him.

In his last speech before leaving here he told an audience of 700 at a Town Hall luncheon that he favored a summit meeting with Russia, despite the realization that the Communists would use such a meeting for propaganda purposes.

Against this background, he said he felt a definite need for legislation to help protect the working man against racketeers and that such legislation should not be regarded as punitive labor law.

As for the charge by Lewis that he had interfered in the steel negotiations, Eisenhower said that all he had done was to say publicly that both sides should exercise self-discipline and that management should keep the price structure steady to avoid an inflationary wage-price spiral that might force the government eventually into drastic action.

A little fatherly advice from your Uncle Sam

(for June graduates and their proud kinfolk)

Remember this spring you'll step forward to pick up your diploma. If you live to be 90, it'll still be one of the biggest days in your life. Suddenly you'll have grown about a foot—and aged some too. For the first time, you'll really be going forward under your own power. Where do you go next?

Where you go in this world depends largely on how badly you want to get there.

There's never been as much opportunity for you to "go places" as there is today. (Just ask your folks if I'm not right!)

But remember: opportunity is impatient. You've often heard people say sadly, "If only I'd had cash to take advantage of the opportunity..." They didn't. And the opportunity faded.

You be ready with ready cash. Save some every payday. There are lots of good places to save—but none better than U. S. Savings Bonds. They're sound, easy to buy at any bank. Buy 'em through Payroll Savings, it's automatic!

And that's not all. Every Bond helps strengthen America's Peace Power. Your savings become an investment in your peaceful future. So take a little fatherly advice from your Uncle Sam. Start a good habit now. Start buying Bonds—and keep at it. Good luck!
