Forestry Board May Halt Work on Tillamook Burn

Salem—UPI—The State Forestry Board says it may have to halt rehabilitation work on the huge Tillamook Burn.

In a resolution the Board said that it would consider halting the project unless the Game Commission could provide adequate control of the deer population in the area.

Ray Bell of Portland, a Board member, said deer were browsing on young trees and seedlings where reforestation operations were under way, causing heavy damage.

The Board decided to visit the Tillamook Burn soon and invite Game Commission members to go along.

In other action, the Board gave State Forester Dwight Phipps a go-ahead to enter into agreement with Clatsop county for use of a section of state land on the Nehalem river for multiple purposes. Phipps said development of small parks and recreation areas would keep people out of danger in forest areas.

Fifty-five small fires in timbered areas of Oregon up to June 1 of this year involved 284 acres, Phipps said. He said fire fighting plans for the coming season were just about completed and better trained crews were ready.

Tax Collectors' Training School Set
 Salem—UPI—The State Tax commission's sixth tax collectors' in-service training school for sheriffs and tax deputies will be held here June 10-11.
 Last year's school attracted 75 collectors from 27 counties.

STEWART CIVILIAN
 Hollywood—UPI—Col. James Stewart returns to work today as actor Jimmy Stewart. Stewart, finished with a tour of duty at Vandenberg and March Air Force Bases, went back to work at Revue-International to complete cutting and narration of "Cowboy Five Seven," a half-hour documentary film he made about the Strategic Air Command for TV and educational use.
