

Attack by Morse Places Johnson In New Crossfire

Washington - (UPI) - Sen. Wayne L. Morse (D-Ore.) yesterday leveled a new attack at the Democratic congressional leadership and thus placed Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) in a new crossfire of criticism from conservative Republicans and liberal Democrats.

Both flanks have recently stepped up charges that the Johnson-led Senate has not accomplished much so far this year. But in the main the rangy Texan has shrugged them off in silence - publicly at least.

Morse, in a speech yesterday at Bronxville, N. Y., asserted the Democratic leadership is "more afraid of bad publicity in a reactionary press than they are afraid of going back on campaign promises."

As a result, he told an Americans for Democratic Action audience at Sarah Lawrence college, "the lifeblood has been drained out" of the "liberal" election victory because "the liberals in congress have not stood by their guns."

The Oregon Democrat said the liberals in congress allowed themselves "to be rendered toothless by the same conservative-reactionary coalition which has dominated congress for decades."

Johnson declined to comment on the attack.

Man Sentenced on Burglary Charges

Jean Noel Wright, 19, of 244 South Grape st., was sentenced in circuit court Friday to two years in the Oregon Correctional Institution in Salem for burglary not in a dwelling.

Wright, with three other men, was charged with entering Tom Thumb market at the Table Rock rd. Four Corners March 26.

Claron Henderson, 22, of 113 East 11th st., was recently extradited from Denver, Colo., and has yet to appear on the charges. Roger Dale Bennett, 18, of 4095 South Pacific highway, pleaded guilty to similar charges April 29 and received a two-year suspended sentence to the Oregon state penitentiary. Calvin Summers, 18, of 303 North Holly st., Medford, also pleaded guilty to the charges and was given a two-year suspended sentence to the Oregon state penitentiary.

Local Students Are Elected to Offices

Portland - Two students from the Medford area were recently elected to office in campus organizations at Lewis and Clark college.

Bruce West, 52 Ross court, will serve as president of Trodde, campus ski club, next year. West is a sophomore liberal arts major. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. D. K. West.

Members of Alpha Rho Omega, men's social fraternity, elected John Jones, 624 Park st., their chaplain for next year. Jones is a freshman majoring in pre-law. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin D. Jones, Ashland.

Morse's latest fusillade followed his recent announcement of an all-out opposition to his colleague, Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.), for reelection next year. He said he would oppose Neuberger because of the latter's stand on basic issues.

Ladies of the Grange were reminded of the canning contest and also to save White Satin sugar sacks.

There will be a work day at the cemetery the week end of June 14. Grange men will build some tables to be used at the community hall.

Ora Abbott, Harold Arnold and Grace Wells were appointed a committee to meet with the other clubs of the community to decide on a fall festival.

Members were urged to attend visitation night at Eagle Point Grange June 16.

The lecturer's program concerned information on the American flag. Readings were given and a question and answer program. Two impromptu plays were presented.

The HEC meeting will be Tuesday, June 9, at 1:30 at the home of Mrs. Oliver Boyd. All ladies are urged to attend.

Privately Issued Stamp Among Most Valuable

One of the most valuable stamps ever used in the United States is a two-cent item that was manufactured and sold for use only in Charleston, S. C. Its value today is listed at better than $17,000.

It is a bluish stamp with a design consisting of a series of tiny circles forming an oblong about the words "Beckman's City Post Paid 2 Cts." It was issued in 1860, shortly before the outbreak of the Civil War, and while others are known that were put out by the same firm for a period of two years earlier, it is the most valuable.

But the value of many of the others is quite considerable, too, and none of them are worth less than $30 or $40, the majority of them having a value well into the hundreds of dollars.

The City Post of Charleston was owned by at least five men during an 11-year period, the owner's name being listed

DEER-AND-DOE DESIGN GLASSWARE HIGHLY PRIZED

Of the various kinds of American glassware of interest to collectors, one of the more valuable and among the easiest to distinguish is the one known as the "deer and doe" design.

It is found mainly in pressed glass and was probably produced in the 1870s and a little later. The quantity produced must have been considerable, for despite its value, it is not at all uncommon in secondhand and salvage shops.

The design's principal feature is an oblong panel containing two deer and sometimes what looks like an attempt at a pine tree as well.

For example, on the goblets, which are among the most collectible pieces, there are four such panels. While the lip of the goblet is round, its sides have a flattened effect, making the piece almost squareish. On two of the opposite panels the pine tree is

'VINGT-COUPS' USED WIDELY IN 19TH CENTURY

The modern machine pistol, used with such effect by ground forces in World War II and Korea, had its counterpart nearly a century ago in the form of a French revolver.

The weapon was a Le Page "vingt-coups," or 20-shot job that threw a lead bullet of seven millimetre size and with just as great accuracy as the revolvers of today. At any rate, recently, I saw a target clustered with one of these old guns, and though it could have been done more rapidly with a modern weapon, it couldn't have been done more accurately.

A revolver could carry so many charges by having two cylinders, or rather one cylinder with inner and outer rows of chambers. There were also two barrels the upper one for the outer chambers and the lower for the inner. Those on the weapon I saw were a trifle over six inches, but usually, or so I am told, on these weapons the barrel length was somewhat shorter, since the prime consideration

Portland - (UPI) - A Russian immigrant who died of cancer May 17 has left his estate to help needy youths get an education.

Samuel Edelman, a tailor, migrated from Russia many years ago and lived in New York, southern Oregon and Portland. He was in his 60s.

His will was filed in Probate Court Thursday, asking that the estate of nearly $5,000 be used to educate poor boys at Jesuit High school near Beaverton. The will asked that boys of all creeds and colors be eligible for the scholarships, to be awarded by school officials. Recipients will be asked to repay the money, if possible, to keep the fund self-perpetuating.

Youth Confesses Strangling Child

Philadelphia - (UPI) - A high school honor student admitted Thursday night he strangled a 3-year-old neighborhood girl when she resisted his advances, police said.

Investigators said Edward J. Cooney Jr., 15, admitted the slaying of little Becky Holt shortly after confessing the crime to a Roman Catholic Priest who in turn reminded him of this "obligation to the authorities."

Cooney, a 6-foot, 150-pound basketball player and sophomore at St. Joseph's Preparatory school said he was seized with a "sudden urge" and strangled the girl, according to police.

Janrick Cancels Operation Plans

Janrick of Oregon, Inc. has cancelled plans to start a helicopter and fixed-wing aircraft charter service and maintenance operation at Medford airport this year, a spokesman has reported.

"Janrick will have no further activity in the area this year," the spokesman said. He described future plans as "indefinite."

The Medford city council had authorized lease contracts with Janrick and one other operator for space southeast of the terminal building. The Janrick contract was never signed, and the firm's cancellation leaves in doubt the proposed city development of a taxiway in that area, at least for the immediate future.

The Oregon Centennial commission last month cancelled a contract giving Janrick an exclusive franchise for helicopter service at the Centennial Exposition. The firm's failure to live up to its agreement was the reason given.

Crater Lions Club Gives $4,348 to Local Groups

A total of $4,348.92 has been provided various charitable organizations in southern Oregon by the Crater Lions club during the past year, club officials have announced.

Major projects of the club have been to provide a furnace and fence for the kindergarten for the hard of hearing, which cost $1,452, and for other activities for the sight and blind and health and welfare groups totaling $1,730.

The club has contributed to Mercy Flights, Inc., to the United Medford Crusade for a luncheon, and other Boy and Girl Scout activities.

Revenue for the club came from a light bulb sale, a television auction, the sports fair and sponsoring a water skiing tournament here. Total proceeds from the events was $7,425, officials said.

The club also sponsors an American Field Service student, who this year is Sissel Frogner of Norway. The club recently gave her a slide projector, and is now asking residents for extra slides which Miss Frogner may show on her return to Norway later this month.

Miss Frogner is living with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Williams, 116 Black Oak dr., Medford, and persons who have slides they wish to contribute may contact Miss Frogner or the Williams.

Dr. Frank Wilson is completing a year as president of the Crater Lions club.

HOUSE ADJOURNS

Montgomery, Ala. - (UPI) - The Alabama House of Representatives refused by a vote of 63 to 28 to adjourn Friday morning. Five minutes later, Rep. Charles Ramey said: "Mr. Speaker, I'd like to announce the pay checks are in the mail boxes." The House adjourned immediately.

The habit of perching hawlike on a limb before swooping down on its prey earned the hawk owl its name.
