

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Martha S. - She thinks of law-but it should be marriage. Louise F.-I'm not the mother-housewife type.

Martha S. - I am 35, the mother of two children, and I have been married five years. The reason I married late was that I had to go to work early and got all involved in my career.

I enjoyed my work, yet I feel that I missed a great deal in all those years. They could have been happier, more fruitful and I could have had a bigger family. Now I am trying to prevent my 20-year-old sister from making the same mistake.

Louise is the baby of the family and we have all given her a lot of encouragement in everything she wanted to be. Now she has decided she wants to be a lawyer and I am against it. She will have many more years of study and she is already too immersed in books for her own good. It's time for her to think about marriage.

Louise F. - I'm afraid I'm just not the mother-housewife type. I've always hated housework and I think I'd go crazy if I just had that to look forward to. Of course, I'd like to marry some day and then I suppose I'll buckle down and do it like Martha.

My teachers at college have given me a lot of encouragement to study law and I thought my family would be proud of me. You could have knocked me over with a feather when Martha gave me her real opinion.

I always looked up to Martha because she was such a success in her career. She certainly didn't seem to be unhappy at that time. I always felt we were very much alike. Martha rarely dated and I find that the same is true of me. I don't miss social life. I'm happy as I am.

The Council: Martha has a great deal of influence over Louise because she has been and probably still is an ideal to her. But if she wants to be a really helpful she would be a little less rigid in her ideas of what is best for her young sister.

A girl of 20 who has received her teacher's encouragement to go on to study law undoubtedly has a lot of ability and we can see no reason why anyone should try to quench this. Today it is simply not necessary for a woman to completely sacrifice her intellectual ambition and capacity in order to achieve the emotional satisfactions of being a woman.

We will not deny, however, that in her present frame of mind Louise is headed toward making the sacrifice in the opposite direction. Martha may be able to help her by showing her complete satisfaction with her present life. She should encourage Louise to develop an interest in social life. It is very doubtful whether Louise is being honest with herself when she says she has no interest in this at all. She may have more personal resources than most girls, but she is probably normal enough to also want the attentions of young men.

Martha should recognize that her fears are a little outdated. The pattern today is for women to get in all the education they can while they are young. Soon after they may settle down to raise families, but then they go into the working world-and the better equipped they come the happier they are in their work. Law school is a good place to meet men and we think Martha should give this enterprise her blessing.

Courthouse Getting Metal Fire Doors

Metal framework for a series of fire-doors are now being constructed in the county courthouse.

One has been located at the foot of the stairs on the first floor and a framework for double doors has been established at the top of the stairs on the third floor.

The county court ordered the frames and fire-proof glass some time ago.

The county court has also received notice from the state fire marshal's office that fire regulations have been compiled with by erecting a fire-escape at the rear of the main building and by establishing an exit from the jail to connect with stairs to the roof and the fire-escape.

the travel-lovin' Chevrolet

Nothing else but a dyed-in-the-wool sports car like the Corvette can take a turn with the solid assurance of this sweet-handling Chevrolet. Drive it—and feel the extra smoothness and stability born of Chevy's better balance and supple full coil springs.

It's easy to see where Chevrolet gets its road sense. With big coil springs at every wheel, a firm, wider stance and all of its pounds distributed with painstaking care, Chevy's born with it.
