

Stassen's Bid for Mayoralty Of Philadelphia Significant

By LYLE C. WILSON
Washington—UPI—Place a ring on your calendar around this date: Nov. 3, 1959. That could be a big day in presidential politics. On that day Harold E. Stassen will be running again. Stassen has been running for something or other during most of the past 30 years since he was elected Dakota County, Minnesota, county attorney.

Next Nov. 3, Stassen will be running for mayor of Philadelphia. He has lowered his political sights considerably. Stassen was a three-time governor of Minnesota beginning in 1939 at age 32. He showed some, not much, early foot in two or three springs for the Republican presidential nomination. In 1948, Stassen shifted his political base from Minnesota to Pennsylvania but was unable to generate there much enthusiasm for his political ambitions.

Stassen Bounced
Pennsylvania's Republic a n regulars threw Stassen so hard last year that he bounced and ricocheted with the force of his fall. That was the occasion when he bucked the party organization in a grab for Pennsylvania's 1958 gubernatorial nomination. The regulars beat Stassen in the primary with Arthur T. McGonigle, a pretzel bender who was a political unknown but with considerable charm and vote appeal.

McGonigle lost the governorship, however, to Democratic Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh. The Republicans salvaged a U.S. Senate seat for their November, 1958, calamity. Rep. Hugh Scott won it. McGonigle's defeat was a shocker to the Republican Old Guard. They couldn't have done much worse and might have done better at the polls if they had accepted Stassen.

Political Maverick
Stassen is a political maverick, however, a Modern Republican with a capital M. He plays rough and junks the rules when they seem to impede him. As, for example, in a pre-convention effort for the presidential nomination, Stassen violated the tradition that an outsider does not, should not, invade the state of a favorite son in a raid for delegates. Stassen so invaded Ohio that time against Robert A. Taft and got himself some new enemies thereby.

Bank Looking for Misplaced $113,200

Los Angeles—UPI—The Bank of America and the FBI are looking for $113,200 in cash. The money has apparently disappeared between the bank's closely guarded reserve vault and one of its 17 branches. "There is definitely a shortage but not on our books," a spokesman said when the disappearance was discovered. "It appears to be a case of misplaced funds."

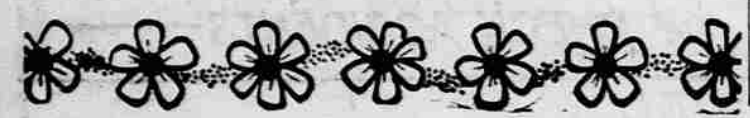

Officials said—hopefully—that the money probably was delivered to the wrong branch bank.

By BENNETT CERF

TWO HARVARD grads (grammarians, of course) were exploring an abandoned gold mine near Cripple Creek when from one shaft there suddenly came a dismal groan. "For heaven's sake," gasped one Cambridgeite, "who is there?" There followed another groan, and a weak voice rasping, "It's me." One Harvardian turned to the other and asked with a puzzled frown, "What do you think he's trying to say?"

Peter Fleming recalls that on the fateful day in World War II when Hitler unleashed his greatest armada on London, and blitzed the gallant British for six solid hours, the staid London Times—in moments of crisis perhaps the greatest character-actor on the stage of public life in England—faithfully recorded the discovery in an air-raid shelter in Euston of a Great Crested Grebe!

"Include me out of college reunions," pleads Corey Ford. "You find your classmates have gotten so stout and bald they scarcely recognize you."

Radiation Reports May be Inspected

Portland—UPI—The state board of health says that it will make available for public inspection complete national radiation detection network monthly reports. The federal government began sending the reports to state officials last week. The first report compiled by the U.S. public health service, covers readings for January, 1959.

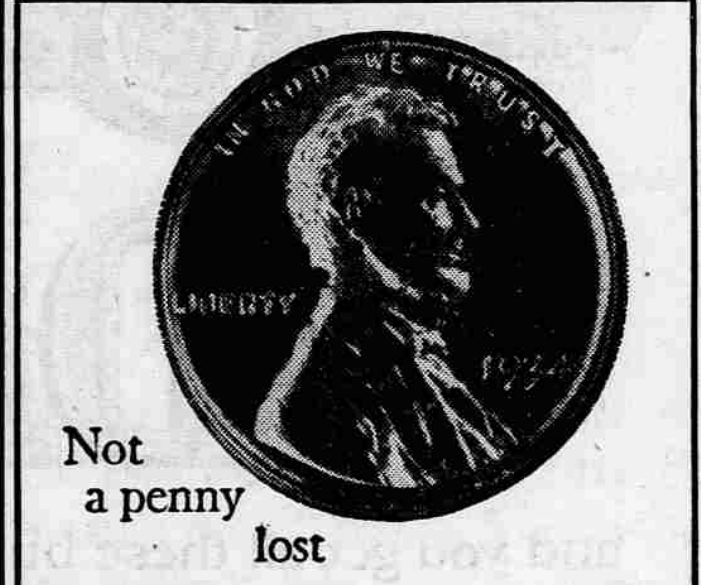

The report shows "rough" counts made by the detection stations, and readings of the same filters with more precise equipment at the network headquarters in Washington, D.C., according to a health board spokesman. He said the new federal report is the first which Oregon officials have had available for public distribution. The state board of health, however, has been issuing news releases about high readings from its Portland station for several years.

Queen Susan I To Rule Festival

Portland—UPI—Queen Susan I will reign over the Portland Junior Rose Festival with Barry Babin as her prime minister. Susan Poplack, 9, was chosen queen of the Junior Rose Festival Friday night in ceremonies at the Portland auditorium that ushered in the 1959 Rose Festival season. Ten-year-old Barry was named prime minister. Both are hazel-eyed brunettes. The coronation of the queen was the high point of more than four hours of entertainment, witnessed by nearly 2,000 persons.

Pauling Opposes Strauss Nomination

Portland—UPI—Dr. Linus C. Pauling, a Nobel Prize winner in 1954, said Sunday that Admiral Lewis Strauss should not be confirmed as secretary of commerce.

Dr. Pauling, professor of chemistry at California Institute of Technology, spoke at commencement exercises at Reed College where his son graduated. Strauss has been nominated for the Commerce Department position by President Eisenhower.

Dr. Pauling criticized Strauss during his talk and said he had been told by Sen. Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico that he did not believe Strauss would be confirmed.

Women's Salaries Up 3 Per Cent

Portland—UPI—The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that the salaries of women in the Portland metropolitan area have gone up about 3 per cent during the past year with pay scales of skilled maintenance and unskilled workers up about 4 per cent. The bureau said the average weekly salary of women here ranged from $43 to $83. The scale for skilled workers in craft occupations averaged $2.85 or more an hour. Information for the statistics came from 148 employers with approximately 52,000 workers in the Portland area.

Portland Ready for Two Celebrations

Portland—UPI—It was raining in Portland this morning but the city's spirits were far from damp with the opening of the Centennial Exposition and the 1959 Rose Festival just around the corner.

The Rose Festival gets its official start Tuesday while the Centennial Exposition is slated for its grand opening at noon Wednesday. Some Rose Festival events already were under way. Queen Susan I and Prime Minister Barry Babin of the Junior Court visited the Shriners hospital for crippled children Sunday.

The Coast Guard cutter Dexter arrived late Sunday and tied up in the Willamette river. Some Canadian warships were due today.

Atlanta Granted Time to Integrate

Atlanta—UPI—Two federal court judges have given Atlanta "a reasonable time" to come up with a plan for desegregation of public schools. The judges have issued an order prohibiting discrimination against Negro school children.

A decision ordering immediate or early integration had been expected by many Atlanta residents. The actual ruling was considered lenient compared with those expectations. The language of the order apparently means the city will have at least until 1961 to make the transition. The state legislature convenes Jan. 12, 1960, and is expected to enact new segregation laws. Any school ordered to desegregate would be automatically closed under present state law.

A grass roots movement was under way Saturday to persuade the 1960 Legislature to keep public schools open regardless of integration or segregation.

Two Portland Men Presumed Drowned

Oceanlake—UPI—The Coast Guard called off a search Sunday for two young Portland men presumed drowned in the surf near here Saturday when their rubber air mattress overturned. Missing were James Frederick Williamson, 20, and Allen Leroy Gedde, 21. A Coast Guard spokesman said the youths apparently were swept away after their rubber air mattress tipped over. The mattress washed ashore about 4:15 p.m. Saturday, setting off an air-sea search.
