

TEMPERED FOR TODAY—The elegance of yesterday's drawing room is tempered for today's casual living in this living-dining room by interior decorator Mrs. Truman P. Handy, A.I.D. Beige and white pinstripe cotton ticking is used throughout—on the sofa and chairs, in the draperies and tablecloth and in panels on the wall. A white porcelain stove is set in a niche of marbled blue.

POTPOURRI

Potpourri went to San Francisco last week end to see the famed Bolshoi ballet troupe. We did see the Bolshoi dancers, and they were all we had hoped for. We saw utter beautiful and superb dancing. But we saw more than that.

We saw, and heard, an audience that applauded, cheered and cried for more during the program and kept on for 20 or 30 minutes after the program was over. We saw members of an orchestra of seasoned, disciplined musicians so whipped up by the enthusiasm of the audience that they simply stopped playing and stood on their chairs to watch the dancers. We saw a cast gather on stage, not merely to bow and smile in formal fashion, but to applaud the audience in turn and to throw kisses and flowers to their companions. We saw others sit with hands clasped or enraptured looks on their faces.

And what was the staid, conservative, net-so-young women's editor of the Tribune doing during this time? She applauded until her hands were sore, cried "more, more!" along with the rest and came away clutching two rose buds—ones which we are absolutely sure came from the bouquet of the great Galina Ulanova, who is to the dance world today what Pavlova was to her time.

Potpourri's companion, Edith Rode, who for 20 years had been reading about the famous Bolshoi troupe and hoping some day to see the dancers perform, was one of the "dumbest." Hours later she was reliving the evening and shouting over and over her exclamations of wonder and joy.

By this time you think the audience at San Francisco should have its collective head examined, let us say that the New York Times reported the same reaction in that city on a closing night at the Metropolitan. John Martin wrote that "there was such a demonstration as the opera house has rarely have seen," and described a scene which must have been similar to the one in San Francisco.

All of our play and concert-going life, we have always refused to sit in the front row for a stage performance, and added a bit when we found that the long-awaited tickets were in this row. But as the evening progressed, we were more and more pleased. We enjoyed being close to the dancers, and the orchestra as well. The conductor's hands were directly in front of our seats, and we could reach out and touch Yuri Faier—as a matter of fact, we did. During the excitement of the final moments, Potpourri leaned over and shook hands with Director Faier, and told him how much we had enjoyed the music and the dancing. He seemed to understand, and answered in Russian.

This extraordinary conductor is almost totally blind—his eyes are almost blind, he conducts from memory. It is said that he can firmly make out the dancer's positions on stage.

About 9 o'clock Sunday afternoon Potpourri began to wish she had made an effort to arrange an interview with one member of the troupe. A telephone call to the Whitcomb hotel, where the dancers and company members were staying, brought out the information that interviews had to be set up through interpreters, and were almost impossible to arrange. Edith R. had a bright idea—why didn't we go down to the hotel, have dinner and perhaps pick up some tickets from the staff. So we did, and the idea proved to be a good one. "Try the bartender," was the first suggestion. "Bartenders and taxi drivers are mines of information," said the bartender in the Whitcomb had seen very little of the dancers. Only the stage hands frequented the bar, he said.

When we went into dinner, our waitress was an efficient and friendly girl named Sarah Carpenter who said "Ask the manager." He has seen a lot of the troupe members. He called a bit of Maitre d'Hotel Hugh Benedict came around to our table and talked briefly. He said the entire hotel staff had been asked to entertain the Russian dancers, whom he described as extremely polite and well-behaved, quite reserved but pleasant. He reminded us that dancers usually have empty appetites, and said the Russians had apparently enjoyed the food he and his staff provided.

They devoured great quantities of fresh fruits and vegetables, according to Mr. Benedict. Prima Ballerina Ulanova ate lightly of fish, fruit and vegetables, he added. This courteous hotel man, who has lived abroad a considerable part of his life, said he hoped the exchange of cultural programs between the U. S. and the Soviet Union would help to bring about understanding and believes that art helps to break down prejudices.

In addition to finding the Whitcomb staff helpful, Potpourri and ER enjoyed a good dinner. Potpourri decided to order dessert, and then ended up by eating part of her companion's cheese cake, which was some of the best she ever tasted.

San Francisco's fine hotels and efficient staff are one of the reasons this reporter simply dotes on visiting the city. This time the entire visit hinged on the helpfulness of a hotel manager, Willard Abel of the Sir Francis Drake, who secured the two tickets. We had found courage enough to ask this favor since his wife is a Kappa Delta sorority sister of college days. When we inquired about the tickets upon arriving Sunday morning, the desk clerk at the Drake said "We're guarding them with our very lives. There's life in the vault!"

Coming home on the bus (the second consecutive all-day trip for the two of us) we wondered about the impact of the Bolshoi and the Bolshoi troupes have had on American audiences. ER also wondered why Communist agents devoted to practical and pragmatic living, had continued to support and even strengthened the great ballet institution in Moscow which dates back to 1773 and was the darling of the czars. Ballet is very high on the esthetic scale, she pointed out, and in many ways removed from everyday life.

Would such scenes as took place in New York and San Francisco and in such countries as Syria happen if the dancers were French, or Japanese, or South African? San Franciscans are wondering too, and in an Examiner column it was reported that one thoughtful man came up with this answer. The enthusiasm over the Bolshoi troupe is rooted in mass psychology, he said. It is a popular expression of the wish that the cold war was over.

Bolshoi ballet tickets are expensive. Reports from New York are to the effect that some paid as much as $75 or $100. One San Franciscan who was muttering in his glass Sunday evening would pay $100 to see a Russian first hand, but not a dancer. "Just let them send over Khrushchev," he kept saying. "I'll pay $100 to see him." O.S.

Rogue River Club Installs Officers

Rogue River—Rogue River Civic Improvement club of the Oregon Federation of Women's clubs, installed Mrs. Lynabel Dick president at a ceremony in the Rogue River Civic clubhouse June 5.

Taking office with Mrs. Dick were Mrs. Beryl Ingie, vice-president; Mrs. Rollin Stiehl, treasurer, and Mrs. Edward Burkett, secretary.

Mrs. William White, a past president of the club and also of First District of the federation, was installing officer. Preceding the ceremonies 26 members and guests attended a potluck dinner. Mrs. Earl Green and Mrs. Cloyd Dick were chairmen of arrangements.

The new president, who attended the recent convention of the Oregon federation held in Roseburg, reported on the sessions. She pointed out that the General Federation has a membership of 11 million members in 58 countries and that these women, representing the same goals, represent the largest membership in any organization of women.

Mrs. White read a humorous verse.

Scouts Hold Ceremony

Twenty girls of Troop 60 become Girl Scouts and five girls of Troop 11 received badges in a joint ceremony held in the Jackson school gymnasium June 3. Colors were presented by Gail Rothboeck, Earlene Pidcock, Alice Schafer, Retta Culy and Shirley Isaacs of Troop 60.

The invocation was given by Mrs. R. W. Hurn and a short welcome speech was made to a large audience of families and friends.

Girls who were to become Girl Scouts were presented with wings to show they had been Brownies and told to go through the magic arch as Fairy Dona Schafer of Troop 179 touched each with her trefoil wand. Girl Scouts of the sixth grade were waiting to receive them and present them with their Girl Scout pins. Each girl was also presented with a World pin to show that she is a member of a world wide movement.

Special awards were made to Gail Rothboeck and Lois Harger who have each had three years of perfect attendance.

Girls receiving their pins were Susanne Cearley, Anita Coffman, Sheila Creton, Retta Culy, Peggy Drinkwater, Sherry Martin, Rebecca Maxson, Kathy McCurdy, Lois McWhorter, Virginia Milligan, Earlene Pidcock, Judy Rickard, Gail Rothboeck, Alice Schafer and Maria Zuunza. Leaders of Troop 60 are Mrs. B. E. Culy; Mrs. Kenneth Harger and Mrs. Marjorie Riddle.

Sixth grade girls of Troop 11 who assisted in the fly-up ceremony also received badges in a court of awards. Mrs. Wilmer Warren, leader, presented the girls with their badges and gave a talk on how the girls can learn and grow in character and proficiency. Mrs. William Centers assists with this troop.

Sherry Dwight received cook and homemaker badges; Jeanne Centers, Bette Pace, Patricia Warren and Catherine Watson each received the cook, homemaker and seamstress badges.

After the ceremonies refreshments were served by Mrs. Clarence Hershiser and Mrs. J. S. Lowry.

Calendar

Calendar notices and news for the society section of The Mail Tribune must be submitted in writing and deadline for the Sunday edition is 1 p.m. Friday. Deadline for the weekly calendar is 9 a.m. of the day of publication and for week day news is 8 p.m. the day before publication.

Thursday: 7:30 p.m.—Women of Moose, home of Mrs. Harvey Wyatt, 335 South Riverside avenue.

8 p.m.—Jackson County Medical Assistants, Conference room, Rogue Valley Memorial hospital.

8 p.m.—Past Noble Grand club, Girls Community club.

An economy main dish featuring stuffed roast of lamb is especially tasty with chopped mint and rosemary stuffing.

Buying Clothes For Men? Then Don't Follow Fads

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

New York—UPI—A woman's biggest mistake when she shops for men's clothes is the same one she makes in her own wardrobe—following fads.

So says Peter F. Lynch, president of an international chain of haberdashers.

"You can tell the fad type by her conversation," said Lynch. "She has all the catch phrases when she comes into a men's shop continental, slim Jim, the Ivy look."

Not that Lynch is out to discourage ladies' shopping for men. On the contrary, the shops encourage the girls and the salesmen try to educate them to what is good style.

Likes Couples Shopping Industry-wide, the encouragement also is going on. And paying off. It is estimated from one national study that women "suggested or decided on" purchase of 38 per cent of men's suits, 56 per cent of their shirts, 36 per cent of their slacks, 24 per cent of their sport coats and 17 per cent of their headwear.

"We like to see a husband and wife shopping together," said Lynch. "If it's a happy combination. But sometimes if the woman is of the dominant type, we know there's no sale today. He will be in alone next week."

Lynch has spent 45 years men's wear—25 years as a salesman—and now heads A. Sulka and company with branches in Paris, London, New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Palm Beach.

Discuss Ties The president discussed women and their buying habits because Father's day is just around the calendar—June 21, the necktie selection season is on, and women will buy approximately 60 per cent of the 36 million sold.

"Fewer than six out of every 10 neckties will find their way around father's neck," said Lynch. "They either will be returned to the store, or else just hang in the closet."

This is largely because women buy men's ties with their own clothing tastes in mind, said Lynch.

Rites Planned For Saturday

Miss Gail Prentice, who attended Washington State college this year, has returned home and her wedding to Larry G. Hammond is set for this week end. Miss Prentice is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Prentice, 1432 Crown avenue, and Mr. Hammond is a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Hammond, 423 Beatty street.

The wedding is set for Saturday, June 13, at 3 o'clock at First Presbyterian church. The reception will follow at the church.

Miss Prentice arrived from Pullman with her parents, who were returning home after attending a meeting of the Northwest Electric Light and Power association in Butte, Mont. Mr. Prentice is an accountant with The California-Oregon Power company.

Y Knot Twirlers To Hold Dance

The Y Knot Twirlers Square Dance club will hold a dance in the social hall of the Medford YMCA starting at 8 o'clock tonight.

Douglas Fosbury, Medford, will call squares, and all square dancers in the area are invited. Women are asked to take cookies, and coffee will be furnished by the club.

Garden Club

Phoenix-A program on garden insects and control methods is planned for the monthly meeting of Phoenix Garden club. It will be held Friday, June 12, at 1 p.m. in the Community hall, Phoenix, with Mrs. Jesse Wilson and Mrs. Evelyn Hendrick as hostesses.

GO ON A BERRY BINGE

Don't ever pass up a bargain on fresh berries. Serve them with hot biscuits for breakfast. Use your favorite biscuit recipe for shortcake—add an egg and 2 teaspoons of sugar to the recipe. For a deep-dish pie, add 1/2 cup of sugar to the biscuit dough and sweeten the berries underneath. Biscuits, shortcakes and deep-dish pies are baked in a hot gas oven at 425 degrees. For a flaky texture and crisp crust, preheat the oven 10 minutes before baking.

Graham Guest of Queen for Tea

London—UPI—Billy Graham leaves for Moscow today after a short London visit climaxed by tea with Queen Elizabeth—"one of the loveliest women in the world."

The evangelist was received by the Queen and her husband—it was Prince Philip's 38th birthday—at Buckingham Palace at 5 p.m. for tea and a chat Wednesday.

"It was all rather wonderful," he said afterwards. "My invitation in fact came about two months ago while I was in Australia. I didn't know it was Prince Philip's birthday until I read about it in the newspapers. That made it even more an especial honor."

"I thought the Queen looked very beautiful," he said. "In fact I think she is one of the loveliest women in the world—even more beautiful than the last time I saw her in 1955."

Gold Hill Group Plans Picnic Friday Noon

Gold Hill—Woman's Society of the Gold Hill Community Methodist church will hold a planned picnic luncheon at twelve noon, Friday, June 12 at the church. Those who are to bring food have been contacted by members of the committee.

Installation of officers will not be held at this meeting.

Mrs. John Poage, district secretary of spiritual life and member of the First Methodist church of Medford, will be guest speaker. She will talk on the book of "Isaiah."

To Meet
Roxy Ann Gem and Mineral club meets tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Girls Community club, 229 North Bartlett street. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

Fifty-Plus Club Elects Officers

Mrs. Mary Fredericks was elected president of Medford Fifty-Plus club at a meeting held last Friday.

Walter A. Hatch is the retiring president.

Other new officers are Mrs. and Mrs. Cora Bashaw, treasurer. Mrs. Rilla Norris was re-elected secretary.

A large group attended the covered dish dinner held last Friday, and a social time followed. Mrs. Alexander's Hawaiian string band played for dancing.

The next meeting will be held Friday, June 12, at 12:30 p.m. in St. Mark's Episcopal Guild hall.

Excellent Seasoning
New York—UPI—Dehydrated onion soup is excellent seasoning for stews, ground beef, other dishes.

Students Arrive From California

Three students at Simpson Bible college, San Francisco, arrived home last week to spend the summer in the valley with their parents.

The students are Ralph Todd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Todd, 12 Ashland street Medford; Brian Sewell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sewell, 5202 Table Rock road, Central Point, and Wesley Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ellis, 141 South Seventh street, Central Point.

Young Todd and Ellis will be juniors this fall at the college and Young Sewell will be a sophomore.

Spots on suede shoes or bags that won't come off with brushing can be removed this way: Lightly rub each spot with an emery board, then steam over boiling water.
