

Support Necessary For Economic Base

Ashland - Full community support will be necessary to broaden the economic base of Ashland, according to Dr. Christian P. Hald, who spoke Tuesday to the Ashland Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Hald is president of the private corporation, Ashland Promoters, Inc., which is working closely with the Ashland Economic Development commission in a program for new payrolls and industry for Ashland.

He said that "it became apparent some time ago that there must be a private organization which could do certain things which a municipal cannot do with its funds. For that reason a group of business men, all deeply interested in the future sound growth of the city organized Ashland Promoters Inc."

Stock in the corporation is $1 per share and at present more than $2,700 has been subscribed.

NO DUTY ON BEAUTY

Washington—UPI—A thing of beauty is a joy forever, according to the Internal Revenue Service. The tax men have ruled that the charms and therefore the earning power of models, showgirls and even stripteasers do not diminish with the passage of time and consequently they cannot spread out their income over a long period of time for tax purposes.

WHOLE TOWN ON FIRE—A man runs from the searing heat of the blazing sash-factory in Lanark, Ont. The fire turned into a holocaust which spread from the sash-factory and destroyed 43 homes and 36 stores in the small Ontario town.

State Capitol: Interest in Old Oregon Names Revived

By DICK HUMPHREY
UPI Correspondent

United Press International
Salem—UPI—Oregon's Centennial celebration has revived interest in the varied and colorful origin of some of the state's place names.

And certainly, everyone got in on the act from the earliest Spanish explorers who spotted our shore in the 16th century to contemporary real estate men.

About one quarter of our place names are of Indian origin. Others came from Spanish and English explorers who arrived by sea; still others are from early fur traders—French, English, Spanish and American—who ventured overland.

Pioneers named many places after eastern towns for which they yearned, and, in turn, had places named for them. Heroes of the Indian wars also got their share.

Oregon's Name Mystery
The exact origin of the name Oregon itself is still a mystery, but late scholarship indicate it may have originated in the Mississippi valley.

A 1765 English document refers to the River of the West as the "Ouragon." It was written by Maj. Robert Rogers in a petition to explore country west of the Great Lakes.

The first use of "Oregon" itself was by Jonathan Carver in his "Travels Through the Interior Parts of North America," published in London in 1778.

Some historians think he got the name from Maj. Rogers' petition.
A poet—William Cullen Bryant—made the name stick in his 1817 poem "Thanatopsis" where he refers to the "Wilderness where flows the Oregon and hears no sound save its own dashing."

Cases can be made for French fur traders giving the river its name from the French word "Ouragan" meaning "Windstorm."

Some historians think it is of Spanish origin, perhaps from the province of Aragon, but there are no records of this. Cape Perpetua and Mecca Head were named by early Spanish explorers seeking the legendary northwest passage.

The river was finally named by a young Boston fur trader, Robert Gray, who discovered its mouth in 1792 and named it after his ship "Columbia."
Indian Names

Willamette and Multnomah are both Indian names and Santiam, Molalla, Clackamas, Clatsop, Coos and Klamath are all named after Oregon tribes.

Americans are also represented. President Thomas Jefferson, who sent Lewis and Clark here, had a mountain, county and city named for him.

Polk county was named for President James Polk who was in office when Oregon became a state 100 years ago and the town of Dallas was named for his vice-president, George M. Dallas.

Linn, Benton and Douglas counties were all named for U.S. members of Congress who helped Oregon.

Named by Pioneers
The origin of Portland's name is well known. It was named after Portland, Maine, by the toss of a coin between Francis Pettygrove and A. L. Lovejoy. Had Lovejoy won, named Boston, after Boston, the city would have been Mass.

Albany was named after Albany, N.Y.

Civil war heroes honored include Gen. U. S. Grant for whom Grant county was named, and Gen. Phil Sheridan, for Sheridan. Both men served in Oregon before the war. Col. Edward Baker, for whom Baker is named, resigned a U.S. Senate seat and was killed early in the war.

Another general honored was Gen. Canby who was shot at a "peace conference" in 1873 by Captain Jack, leader of renegade Modoc Indians. Jack was later captured and hanged.

Attorneys General To Hear Thornton

Salem—UPI—Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton will discuss the role of the attorney general in law enforcement when he addresses the Western Regional Conference of Attorneys General at Salt Lake City, June 29.

He was invited to speak on criminal law and relationships with local agencies by the Council of State Governments which sponsors the two-day conference.

The conference is comprised of the attorneys general of the 12 western states and Hawaii.

CO-OP AUTOS
New York—UPI—Apartment dwellers may some day share automobiles as they now do washing machines, sun decks and elevators. Walter L. Jacobs, president of The Hertz Corp., envisions a 200-unit apartment with 800 occupants that might well have a garage of 100 cars, their use included in the apartment lease.

HEADING TOWARD University of Michigan where she plans to study international politics, Miss Kimie Tojo, daughter of Japan's wartime premier, Hideki Tojo, is greeted in Seattle by former school mate, Mrs. Hideko Albin (right), with whom she planned brief visit.
