The Medical Roundup

New Hope For The Deaf
At a recent meeting of the American Laryngological, Rhinological and Otolaryngological Society, held at Hot Springs, Virginia, Dr. Samuel Rosen of New York City, said that 90 out of the first 100 deaf patients who had their stapes (tiny bone in the ear) mobilized or loosened up, were hearing better than they had done before. Dr. Rosen said that 54 per cent of his patients were hearing decidedly better five years after this type of operation. Some of the patients, Dr. Rosen said, after hearing well for a while, had slipped back a bit, but in half of them, the improvement was lasting.

Ear Noises
At the meeting of the ear men, Dr. Bruce Proctor, of Detroit, called attention to the fact that the Ear, Nose, and Throat men keep seeing many persons whose ear noises are due to a little stroke, such as, for years, I have been describing. This, for a time, may cause difficulty in swallowing, or the person may see double, or may be dizzy or headachy, or perhaps nausea, these people often are suspected of having Meniere's disease. But this is a disease of the inner ear which causes an impairment of hearing, and hence, when the ear man finds no sign of any disease in the ear, he can rule out Meniere's disease. What is unfortunate is that there is no very good treatment for ear noises of any kind, and especially for those that are due to a little stroke.

Apparent Cause for Hardening of Arteries
As I have had to say several times in this column, we doctors no sooner think we know something about the dietary cause of hardening of the arteries than we learn that what we thought we knew is not all-important. As many persons will remember, first we were much concerned about cholesterol, and thought that the amount of this substance in the blood was the important factor. Then, along came other researchers who thought that certain lipids (fat-like substances in the blood) were even more closely related to the production of arteriosclerosis and heart attacks.

Now come some chemists such as Dr. Margaret J. Albrink of Yale University, with evidence to indicate that the common triglyceride, which makes up most of the fat in our foods, is a most harmful

Substance when too large amounts get into our blood and stay there. For instance, she says that in one study, reported on a while ago, she found that most of a group of men who had suffered a heart attack had normal amounts of cholesterol in their blood, but two-thirds of them had an abnormally high level of triglyceride fat. Because of these constant changes of opinions of experts, I cannot get up an enthusiasm to order my patients to go without cholesterol or to go without fats or to take only vegetable fats or fish oils. I am going to wait and see what happens.
