

HORN BROOK Tull Place Purchased

By KATHERINE CHAPMAN
Hornbrook - Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Bailey of Portland have bought the L. L. Tull place on the Copco rd., and the Tulls have moved to Viola, a small town outside of Redding, Calif. The Tull place consists of 18½ acres, and comprises one half of the original Gunst property bordering the Klamath river.

Gunst, the "Cigar King" of the West Coast, some 40 to 50 years ago, bought the land and built a lodge on the river bank, and developed it into a hunting and fishing resort area for the use of his family and friends.

The half of the property on which the lodge stands is owned by the Bailey's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Kutzkey, and from the lodge, Kutzkey conducts guided hunting and fishing tours throughout Siskiyou and surrounding counties. The Baileys plan to rent the house, garden plot, and chicken houses on their property before taking possession themselves in about two years.
