

They'll Do It Every Time By Jimmy Hatlo

The Inquiring Mind

This series of articles, on many different subjects, results from work by senior students at the school of journalism at the University of Oregon. Each is a condensed version of a full-length thesis written as partial requirement for graduation at the school.

RED CHINA

By Carl Stedman Tyler
Communist China is a powerful force dedicated to the defeat of the free and democratic nations in the Far East. The developments in Korea, Viet Nam, Quemoy and Tibet are vivid examples of the means and goals of the Peiping government.

The United States does not recognize Red China. Our non-recognition policy of 1949 is not apt to change in the immediate future. Diplomats on Capitol Hill continue to fear the predicted results of diplomatic recognition.

Nonrecognition as a policy can be defended if the only goal is to maintain the status quo in world politics and peace. But in view of the pressing necessity for achieving an insured peace our policy is outmoded.

Makes Advances
The government on mainland China has gained control of 600 million people. It has made, and continues to make, terrific advances industrially and militarily. "Communes" are being forced on the Chinese in an effort to intensify the control of communism. Communism seems to be succeeding in China, even to a greater degree than in the Soviet Union.

As Red China grows in strength, the threat to the free world becomes greater. We cannot ignore the possibility of Communist domination of the Far East. Unless there is an unforeseen revolution in China, it is possible that the Communists will grow in strength and acceptance throughout Asia. Communist parties are now making great gains in India, Viet Nam and other Southeast Asian countries.

As a means of meeting the threat it is doubtful that diplomatic recognition itself would prove very fruitful. This has been proven in Britain's futile attempts to establish normal relations with Red China after extending recognition to Peiping.

Opinion Not Ready

Besides, American public opinion is not ready to recognize Red China. We do not easily forget Korea, the American citizens held prisoner in China and other Communist aggressions against freedom. Americans have been highly emotional and negative toward any friendly relationship with Communist China.

The picture may be changing. This is suggested by the fact that several congressmen, including Rep. Charles O. Porter of Oregon, have been able to take a strong stand favoring recognition and yet win reelection by a large majority. Still, the general conclusion of many foreign policy critics is that public opinion is not ready to recognize Red China.

Any change in relations with the Peiping regime is made exceedingly difficult because of our lack of knowledge. The only factual information we have about Communist China is that passed on to us by British journalists, that provided by an assortment of articles written by free-lance people who have observed Communist China for a short time and the sometimes accurate reports of the Peiping radio and press. This is one of the great weaknesses of our present China policy.

No Understanding

We do not have, and have never had, a real understanding of the Chinese people. This is due, in part, to a real lack of knowledge and, in part, to a distorted picture of Chinese civilizations.

A change in policy is needed, but it cannot be an overnight transition. It would be better to proceed slowly. We must feel out the possibilities of diplomatic recognition for Red China, but for the present should hold onto our current position in the Far East. A way of communication between the United States and Communist China must be found. If we do not have this, it will be difficult, if not wholly impossible to achieve any long term plan to settle any major world issue such as controlled disarmament.

As noted by Dr. Chao Kuochun, noted author of several books on China, we must embark upon a way which includes piecemeal, gradual and practical approaches toward the Peiping regime. We must obtain factual knowledge, if not understanding of Communist China. This might lead to a more realistic policy on the part of both governments.

Important Step
The first and most important step in such a plan would be the exchange of visits by private groups and individuals. This would include sportsmen, musicians, non-political groups, businessmen, journalists and others.

Second should come the exchange of unclassified published material. The exchange of newspapers, magazines, and other publications between the two countries would benefit both by giving each some knowledge of the other.

Finally, trade in non-strategic goods should be resumed. The goal of this proposal is to create good will between the peoples of the two nations. With the establishment of exchanges it is probable that the American public would become more aware of the problems and "way of life" in China. In turn, it is possible that the governments might take a more progressive attitude toward negotiations.

A change in our China policy is inevitable. We should prepare ourselves to accept it.

Smog Experts Study Problem

Los Angeles—(UPI)—Air pollution experts from throughout the nation today began a five-day meeting of the Air Pollution Control Association with about 1,000 delegates present and a forecast of medium to heavy smog.

Seventy papers involving smog problems will be read in the course of the meeting of scientists, engineers and government officials.

Harry M. Pier executive secretary of the association, said cities and industry now spend more than $250 million yearly on air pollution control devices. He said Los Angeles' smog problem is probably worse than any other city's.

"This means Los Angeles is an ideal spot for our discussion," he said.

The local county air pollution control district predicted medium to heavy smog for today with a possible alert.

PLUMP FEELINGS HURT
Slough, England—(UPI)—Magician Alex McKeown told police Sunday that his wife, Gladys, 49, had vanished. McKeown, 57, married for 25 years and the father of two children, said she probably left because her feelings were hurt. He said he had told his wife she was too plump to continue as his stage partner. "Plump or not, I still love her," he said.

The richest lead and silver deposits in the world are believed to be the Broken Hill mines in Australia.

Caddy Receives Gift From Ike

Gettysburg, Pa. — (UPI) — President Eisenhower gave one of his caddies $5 Sunday for going to church and thereby getting to the golf course late.

The boy, Roy Fairman Jr., 13, and his mother are Episcopalian. However they decided to go to the President's church, the Gettysburg Presbyterian.

When the services were over the President jumped into his chauffeur-driven limousine and headed for the course. By the time Roy got there by other means, it was too late to caddy for the Chief Executive.

The President, however, had spotted the lad in church and on inquiring of the pastor, learned that it was not Roy's regular church. Later, on the golf course when Eisenhower finished playing, he saw Roy lurking under the trees.

He called the boy over to him, folded $5 into his hand and said, "Here, Roy. That's for going to church today."

Argentina Due Cabinet Shakeup

Buenos Aires, Argentina—(UPI)—President Arturo Frondizi will shake up his cabinet and replace some commanders of military districts to end his crisis with the military, well informed sources reported today.

The sources said the government, elected with the help of Peronists and Communists last year, appeared to be shedding its leftist associations and emerging more and more to the right as the army demanded.

Frondizi seemed to have come through the crisis in relatively good shape.

Despite wild stories printed the end of last week in Argentina newspapers and broadcast by radio stations, there was no move to impose censorship.

BUBBLY BEST WISHES

London—(UPI)—The secretary of the Society for the Abolition of Liquor Traffic protested to the British post office today about its new form for delivering wedding telegrams. The form shows two bottles of champagne and five bubbling glasses full of same.
