Facts on Loan Program Reviewed

Asland - Information concerning the student loan program of the National Defense Education act has been released by Dr. Alvin Fellers, director of student affairs at Southern Oregon college. Through the new loan fund an undergraduate or graduate student in need of financial assistance may be eligible to borrow up to $1,000 a year.

Students in the upper 50 per cent of their classes who express a desire to teach in elementary or secondary schools may borrow a sum not exceeding $5,000, Fellers said.

In addition to prospective teachers, students whose academic background indicate a preparation and capacity in science, mathematics, engineering, or modern foreign languages, are among the preferred groups. However, funds are available for those going into other professions and to those who feel sure they will complete a college program.

Loans are granted on the basis of financial need and superior academic background, interests and ability, Fellers added. Anyone interested in applying for such a loan or in securing further details may call, write, or make other inquiry at the student affairs office.

The American Museum of Atomic Energy at Oak Ridge, Tenn., is operated for the Atomic Energy Commission by the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies. The museum conducts exhibits and educational programs throughout the nation.
