By FRANK JENKINS

The foreign ministers conference recesses without reaching an agreement on West Berlin. Whether it can reach such an agreement when it reassembles on July 13 is on the knees of the gods. But it is improbable. The big thing at the moment is that the Soviets haven't decided to SHOOT US OUT and that we haven't decided to SHOOT OUR WAY IN with reinforcements if East German communists replace the Soviets in the Berlin situation.

AFTER all— What difference would an agreement make? The Russians would break it whenever it suited their purpose to do so. Our job is to remain so strong that the Russians won't regard it as safe to start a war.

IF YOU'RE interested in ruckuses, keep your eye on Louisiana. What is happening there is very interesting.

In particular, watch this man Lether Frazer, who is Louisiana's lieutenant governor. He seems to be the exact opposite of the Long tribe. He started out as a history teacher in Longville, La. He has been president of Louisiana's Southeastern Institute at Lafayette and later was president of McNeese State college at Lake Charles. His ambition was said to be to wind up as president of Louisiana State University, but he got side-tracked into politics and was elected lieutenant-governor. He was expected to be elected governor in 1960 — with relatively little trouble.

THEN— He collapsed from overwork a few months ago. He may have had a light stroke. At any rate, Governor Long came out quickly with an announcement that he was going to run again. Shortly afterward, he went off his rocker.

Who will be governor in the interval between now and the next election hasn't been officially determined as this is written.

LOUISIANA'S troubles started with Huey Long, who was one of the gifted rabble-rousers of all time. His slogan was MAKE EVERY MAN A KING. It was a fascinating doctrine. It aroused hopes that can't be realized overnight, and which are never brought to fruition by demagogues. The basic trouble with it is that EVERY man ISN'T a king. EVERY man hasn't got what it takes. Even our Declaration of Independence, which is perhaps the greatest document in world history, hedges on that point. It says merely that all men are CREATED equal.

Anyway, Huey Long, flying on the wings of his magic slogan, was soaring to unbelievable heights when his career was cut short — as is the case so often with despotic demagogues — by an assassin's bullet. Where he might have gone if he had lived no one even yet is prepared to say.

THIS much is certain— He wouldn't have gone very far in the direction envisioned by our Founding Fathers.

THIS much let us hope— That here in our mythical State of Jefferson—which we proudly proclaim, is a State of Mind — we never reach the point where we tolerate supermen of the Huey Long type.

Huey Long had glamor — loads of it. But history teaches this clear lesson: TOO MUCH GLAMOR is a dangerous thing.

Heavy Vote in Hawaii Predicted

Honolulu — (UPI) — Edward E. Johnston, secretary of state of Hawaii, predicted today that 85 per cent of Hawaii's 174,000 registered voters would turn out Saturday to put their stamp of approval on statehood and nominate candidates.

Johnston said, "for years Hawaii has had the best voter turnout in the United States in its territorial elections, and I am sure that a good many people will want to be able to tell their grandchildren they voted for statehood."

Santa Cruz, Calif. — (UPI) — Two Sunnyvale men were arrested Wednesday for taking a humorously macabre approach to the threat of man-eater sharks in California's coastal waters. Roger Leunese, 21, and Harvey I. Stovall, 23, were taken into custody for erecting 36 signs along the oceanfront, reading: "Please do not feed the sharks."
