Exposition Display Includes Old Bank

One of the Oregon Centennial Exposition attractions is an early day bank, sponsored by the First National Bank of Oregon in the Frontier village in Portland.

The frame building is furnished with historic bank fixtures and includes a number of displays of old currency and financial records.

Displayed in the bank are the old gold scales used during the Jacksonville gold rush days which are still in use at First National's Grants Pass branch, as well as many other objects of 100 years ago.

The bank is open from noon until 10 p.m. daily.

EXCESSIVE OBEDIENCE - Paris, Ill. - (UP) - Frederick Ross, 34, obeyed with an excess of alacrity a patrolman's order that he drive to the police station for a check of his driving license. The patrolman, roaring up behind him at the station, wrote out four tickets - for speeding 60 miles an hour; running through two stop signs, and illegal parking. Total penalties, $80.

One teacher, Mrs. Helen Sherman of Yreka, was also present.

Traveling the farthest was Mrs. Okle Sawyer Boswell from a town near Wichita, Kan., and receiving the honor of having the most grandchildren was Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cooley of Medford, Ore.

Acting as master of ceremonies was vice president of the class Dominic Favero who was assisted by Eugene Ensel and Tony Thomas, all of Yreka.

Among those attending the Junior rodeo held in Montague on June 21 were Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Cavin and daughter Marcia, Jan Smith and Janet Ferguson.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Cavin and daughter, Janet, were dinner guests at the Don Wilcox home on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Wissenbach and daughter, Bonnie Kay, were dinner guests Saturday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Royce, in Ashland.

Mrs. Ray Middleton and two girls, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Killingsworth and two children, accompanied their mother, Mrs. D. Killingsworth of Hornbrook, to Sacramento recently for a family reunion held at the home of Mrs. Martha Russel, Mrs. Killingsworth's mother and to observe Mrs. Russel's 81st birthday which fell on June 10.

Wall Street Chatter

New York - (UP) - The relationship of prices to current dividends is the best single measure of stock market risk, explains Arthur Wiesenberger & Co.

Over the long-term, the level of dividends has proved a far more reliable index of market risk than potential earnings, book value or other figures. That is because dividends are "birds in hand" and are not as volatile or ephemeral as earnings and other balance sheet figures. Since April 1958, Wiesenberger adds, the market in a sense has gone up only 6 per cent in relation to earnings - a modest rise. But the price-dividend ratio has gone up 55 per cent in the same period.

"Thus, until and unless some fundamental change in the whole outlook occurs, it appears the part of wisdom to stay with a relatively cautious investment policy even though the business and earnings outlook continues to be good." Standard & Poor's notes some further rally may be in store for the list, the threat of continued strong pressure on the credit structure by the fed-eral reserve will exert a check rein for a time at least.
