

Suzanne Hood New Queen Of Central Point Bethel

Miss Suzanne Hood

Central Point—At a special meeting held June 20 at the Masonic temple in Central Point, Miss Suzanne Hood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melford Hood, Gold Hill, was installed new queen of Bethel 38, International Order of Job's Daughters.

The retiring queen, Miss Donna Burnett, presided over the installation. On her installing team for the evening were the Misses Linda Warren, Helen Hood, Barbara Gordon, Micki Noble, Janet Kilbourn, Kay Askwith, Sharon Blinkinstagg, Janet Scalberg.

Crater chapter, Order of DeMolay, under the supervision of Master Councilor Roscoe Day, conducted the crowning.

Installed officers for the next term with Queen Suzanne were the Misses Rachel Hamilton, senior princess; Jeanette Purdy, junior princess; Rebecca Farrell, guide; Helen Goff, marshal; Cheryl Ghelardi, recorder; Nancy Clark, treasurer; Nancy Stewart, chaplain; Charla Meyer, musician; Judy Patterson, librarian; Leslie Meister, Janet Hobbs, Lorraine Scalberg, Bonnie Knapp and Ellen Ward, messengers; Jan Campbell, senior custodian; June Hopkins, junior custodian; Elaine Wilson, inner guard; Carole Crenshaw, outer guard; Cora Belle Ravenor, lady of lights; Colleen Knapp, page.

Installed as the Bethel choir were the Misses, Lee Hamilton, Melba Graham, Cathy Harsh, Vicki Lester, Judy Lewis, Virginia Wilson, Sandra Beasley, Kathleen Collinsworth, Rena Offutt and Sue Kelly.

"Star Dust" being the theme the blue and silver colors chosen by Miss Hood, the upstairs hall was decorated with blue stars and silver spangles and baskets of blue and white flowers. The Misses Rachel and Lee Hamilton served on the decorations committee, assisted by Mrs. Scott Hamilton. The downstairs decorations were in charge of the Misses Judy Patterson and Carole Crenshaw, assisted by their mothers,

Mrs. Don Patterson and Mrs. Clyde Crenshaw.

Serving the refreshments with them were Miss Sue Kelly and mother and Miss Joyce Johnston and mother. The table was decorated with a silver bowl holding blue flowers, and flanked with six blue candles in star holders.

Escorted and introduced were the queens, Miss Diana Miller, Grants Pass; Miss Micke Noble, 14, Medford, and Miss Barbara Gordon, 55, Medford; past queens, the Misses Kay Askwith, Helen Hood, Linda Warren, Donna Burnett, all of Bethel 38, and Misses Marva Sult, Bandon, and Sharon Blinkinstagg, Medford.

Introduced were Grand Page Sandy Sanners, Grand Librarian Ellen Ward, Junior Princess Carla Boroff from Hermiton, Ore.; Mrs. W. K. Sult, Medford, grand guide; L. R. Manning, Medford, vice associate grand guardian; Mrs. Thomas Denney and E. K. Miller, guardian and associate guardian from Grants Pass; Mrs. Merrill Harsh, matron, and Russell Fair, patron, Newita chapter, Order of Eastern Star.

Paul Hopkins, representing the workshop master, Wilbur Smith, of Masonic lodge 135, presented the new queen with a sheath of flowers from the lodge.

Miss Hood introduced all the members of her family who were present, and received the traditional red roses and Bethel gavel from her parents and sister.

Miss Hood had chosen the song "He" for her altar hymn, and during the presentation of the small doll, dressed in a replica of her own installation gown, her soloist, Miss Rosemary Doolen, Medford, sang "Star Dust" and Miss Janet Kilbourn played "Sweet Sue."

July Fourth Feast

Of Scouts is Chicken

New York (AP)—Girl Scouts will feast on barbecued chicken on the Fourth of July at their national encampment in Colorado Springs, Colo. Here's the recipe:

Wash and dry 9 chicken halves. Sprinkle each with 1/2 teaspoon of monosodium glutamate. Brush with corn oil. Place on the grill, skin side up, over medium-hot coals. Cook 20 to 30 minutes, or until brown on both sides. Turn once or twice during cooking. Combine 1/2 cup of corn oil, 1/4 cup of lemon juice, 1/4 cup of water, 1 1/2 tablespoons of salt and 3 tablespoons of sugar in a saucepan and bring to a boil.

Remove each browned chicken half to a square of aluminum foil, top each with 2 tablespoons of the sauce and close foil by twisting ends together over the chicken. The foil need not be sealed airtight. Place on grill and cook 30 minutes more.

Warm weather is a time to dwell upon thoughts of cool ocean breezes, bracing salt air and seafood. If your taste buds are clamoring for something cool with a sea tang, look no further than this easy-to-make salad. It features garden-fresh vegetables and tasty scallops.

For New Bedford scallop salad use 2 pounds sea scallops, cooked; 1 cup sliced celery, 1 cup diced cucumber, 1/4 cup sliced stuffed olives; 1/2 cup French dressing; 1 cup mayonnaise; salt and lemon juice to taste and water cross.

Cut scallops into bit-size pieces and combine with celery, cucumber and olives. Add French dressing and chill several hours. Add mayonnaise, salt and lemon juice. Serve on water cross in either scallop shells or individual serving dishes. Serves six.

Industrialist Calls For Federal Aid to Education

St. Louis—Henry J. Kaiser Jr., vice president and director of Kaiser Industries Corp., called Tuesday night for Federal aid to education and said it was urgent that this be provided quickly.

"We cannot have the kind of educational system we need without money," the industrialist said. "We need classrooms. We need more teachers. We need the means of making the teaching profession an attractive one. And a greater proportion of this money may well have to come from Federal sources."

Kaiser was unable to appear in person at the convention of the National Education association, but his address was delivered for him by William Beaumont, director of executive programs for Kaiser Industries.

Mr. Kaiser had written that as a businessman and a layman, he thought it shocking that teachers were asked to get along on an average salary of $4,500 a year. Teachers, he said, should be among the highest paid people in our society, if we want quality education.

"Once you have the volume of teacher applicants going your way—which will happen if the returns are high—then standards of teacher selection must also be raised," Kaiser said. "High standards, requiring exacting discipline to achieve, will not only give

Wisconsin Couple Visitors in Valley

Grandview—Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Mueller left last week end for their home in Milwaukee, Wisc. after being guests of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Duwe, 2145 Springbrook rd. for a few days. The Duwes went to Portland where they were met by the Muellers.

Before returning home they all attended the Rose festival, and Centennial events. They returned by way of the coast and Reedsport.

While here the Muellers and their hosts motored to Crater and Diamond lakes, the redwoods in California, and various places of interest in the valley.

The Duwes and Muellers are long-time friends. Mr. Duwe and Mrs. Mueller having attended the same college; they both taught in the Milwaukee school system. This is the Muellers first trip to the far West states.

Research Center Studies U.S. Population Trends

New York—Contraception has displayed migration and death as the major factor in population trends according to the results of surveys made recently by the University of Michigan's Survey Research Center and the Scripps Foundation of Research in Population Problems at Miami University in Ohio. Where the birth rate of the U.S. was once fairly stable, the widespread practice of contraception has now made it a variable acutely responsive to economic and social conditions, the surveys show.

In the perspective of history family planning has only recently become so widespread that it could exert a major influence on population trends. In the past the number of births for the average family varied little; it tended to approach the number that the average woman was biologically capable of having. Crude methods of contraception, supplemented in some societies by infanticide and abortion, were never sufficiently widespread, effective and flexible to cause rapid changes in the average family size. Change in the rate of population growth thus had to be caused by other influences. Epidemic disease, famine and war would increase the death rate; population growth would be slowed and at times reversed. In times of peace and well-being the death rate would fall to relatively low normal levels, and the population would grow accordingly. From time to time massive migrations produced large population gains in some areas at the expense of others.

In contrast, advances in medicine, public health, nutrition and other fields have cut the death rate dramatically today. During the past 75 years the widespread use of birth control methods has begun to cause rapid changes in population trends in almost all of the Western nations. To the question: "Many couples do something to limit the size of their families and to control when the children will come. How do you feel about that?"—less than 5 per cent of those interviewed expressed unqualified disapproval of family limitation. Even among Roman Catholic wives only 13 per cent avowed such sentiments. Catholics as well as Protestants in overwhelming majorities approved family limitation in some circumstances. At the other extreme 73 per cent of the Protestants but only 33 per cent of the Catholics approved limitation without qualification. These differences reflect the doctrines of the Roman Catholic church that forbid the use of certain methods of family limitation and restrict the extent to which other methods may be used.

Another major finding of the survey is that a majority of the fecund couples in all the major strata of the white population now practice contraception. For the purposes of the survey strata were defined by education, income, occupation, religion, region and type of community. Analyses of the results by these strata show that contraception was taken up first by the higher-status groups; the well-educated, the professional and white-collar people and those in the upper-income brackets. As a result family size declined more rapidly in the higher-status than in the lower-status groups. There are now signs, however, that the historical differences among birth rates of various population groups may be reversed. Among wives with college education more children are expected than among those with less education.

Economic conditions appear as a dominant factor in family planning among all groups. During the depression decade, for example, the U.S. birth rate fell to an all-time low. Conversely, almost no one foresaw the prolonged post-war baby boom and the accompanying population jump. Such fluctuations have affected capital investment, housing, recreation, education, manpower recruitment and many other aspects of society that depend on the size of the population and the relative number of people in each age group. Since Americans have adopted reasonably effective means to control the size of their families, an understanding of family goals and the factors which influence the attainment of those goals is of great importance in predicting population trends. This first series of studies can serve only as an introduction to the complex subject. But it demonstrates that family planning of the U.S. population can be investigated with significant results. — (Science American Feature)

Governor, As New Father Sets Grandmother's Day

Salem—Gov. Mark Hatfield's first official act after the birth of his first child Wednesday was to proclaim the second Sunday of October as National Grandmother's Day in Oregon.

And he added: "The First Lady of Oregon has the day caused to be added two first-time grandmothers to the population of this state."

A daughter born to Gov. and Mrs. Hatfield at 12:08 p.m. Wednesday weighed in at a healthy eight pounds, 12 ounces, and promptly was named Elizabeth.

She was the first grandchild for both sets of grandparents—Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Kuzmanich of Portland and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hatfield of Salem.

As soon as Mrs. Hatfield, more familiarly known to her friends as Antoinette or "Tony," was ready to go to the hospital, the prospective grandparents were notified. And they were on hand to greet their first grandchild.

Incidentally, mother and daughter are reported doing fine.

Mrs. Fred Ryde, 24 Jeanette avenue, president of Rogue chapter, Grandmother Clubs of America, this morning expressed her pleasure over Governor Hatfield's proclamation. Several states of the union already observe the second Sunday of October as National Grandmothers Day, and the clubs have worked for some time to have the day officially designated by the federal government.

Mrs. Ryde said she planned to write the Governor and Mrs. Hatfield to congratulate them on the birth of their first child and to thank the governor for making Grandmother's day official in Oregon.

Grants Pass Group Gives 'East Lynne' in City Park

Grants Pass—A popular attraction with townspeople and tourists in Grants Pass is the Barnstormers Centennial Theatre production of the old-fashioned melodrama, "East Lynne," which is being presented every week on Thursday and Friday nights at the outdoor theater in City Park on the Rogue river here.

Barnstormers, local drama group, conceived the idea of producing an appropriate play for the Centennial year only a few months ago. With volunteer labor much of it supplied by the Barnstormers themselves, and materials donated by lumbermen and merchants of the community, the theater, with its high, stockade fence, became a reality, mushrooming in only four weeks of actual work after considerable preliminary planning. Painters of Local No. 1364 completed the paint job in one day, Saturday, June 13, just a week before the grand opening date.

Co-directors of the "East Lynne" production are Mary Lou (Mrs. Paul) Skinner and Phil Volland. Under their guidance, actors "play it straight," performing as nearly as possible in accordance with the rules of elocution and acting technique used when "East Lynne" was a current attraction. Grandiose gestures, eyes rolled heavenward, and long speeches depicting the noble characters of those cast in sympathetic roles abound in the production, as do "asides" in which the characters confide their innermost thoughts to the audience.

Costumes used in the play are authentic, many having been loaned by Mildred Watt of Grants Pass from a collection of clothing actually worn by players in "East Lynne," when the tear-jerker was in its heyday. The stage setting boasts many antiques of the period, loaned for the duration of the play season. Furniture, lamps and draperies of the bygone era provide an appropriate setting for the old-fashioned play.

The audience is seated at small tables, and refreshments are served throughout the evening by young girls in appropriate costume.

Between-acts numbers are modeled after vaudeville turns of the period, and a souvenir booth is another tourist attraction.

Performances are given each Thursday and Friday, weather permitting. Reservations may be made by telephoning Dorsme Gohrke at Greenwood 6-7449 or Greenwood 6-5344 in Grants Pass, or writing her at 612 NW Fifth street, Grants Pass. Reservations will be held until five minutes before the 8 o'clock curtain time.

Dance Cancelled By Local Club

The regular dance of Waggin Wheelers, square dance club, scheduled for Saturday, July 4, at Kershaw square, has been cancelled because of conflicting activities, according to club president Jake Toews. The next dance will be held Saturday, July 18, at Kershaw square.

'AESTHETIC' PACKAGES

New York—Industrial designer Saul Nesbitt sees an era of "aesthetic" packages for laundry products and household cleaners, getting away from heavy-duty packaging which he said suggests "scrub and scour."

New packages would provide for more convenient handling, dry products free of dust, and present liquid forms replaced by easily dispensed jells in collapsible tubes. He foresees cleaners coming as pre-measured capsules, lozenges, or pellets, with the consumer advised by the label just how many are required

Treat your hamburger lovers to these easy, zesty Chiliburgers

Hamburgers are always juicy never crumble
made with double-rich MORNING MILK

To you Outdoor Chefs (and regular Indoor Cookers, too) here's a tip to remember whenever you cook hamburgers: Ground beef stays moist right through cooking, never crumbles, when you add better-blending Morning Milk.

While ground beef mixtures made with ordinary milk often become dry and crumbly, the same mixtures made with Morning Milk remain moist and juicy, whether grilled, broiled, pan fried or baked as a meat loaf. The reason? Morning Milk has special blending qualities not found in any other form of milk.

Try this easy recipe and see!

CHILIBURGERS

(Makes 6 to 8 servings)

Combine Morning Milk, egg, beef, crumbs, seasonings, onion and green pepper. Divide mixture into 8 parts. Shape into patties. Place on grill or in folding wire broiler. Cook over glowing coals 4 to 5 minutes on each side, or until done as desired. While grilling, brush several times with mixture of chili sauce, mustard and chili powder. Serve between toasted split hamburger buns.

- 1/2 cup undiluted Morning Milk
- 1 egg
- 1 1/2 pounds ground beef
- 1/2 cup fine cracker crumbs
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/4 cup chili sauce (or ketchup)
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 1 to 2 teaspoons chili powder
