

Ski Resort Plans To Make Own Snow

Colorado Springs, Colo.—(UPI)—A new ski area is being built near this resort city which will be equipped to make its own snow.

Most Colorado ski areas are located high in the Rockies, where snow is nearly always plentiful. But this area is at a lower altitude and skiing conditions are not usually good.

Charles L. Tutt, president of the Broadmoor Hotel, Inc., said the machine, nicknamed the "Phenomenal Snowman," will be capable of laying down an inch of snow an hour over a wide area. Water is forced through a carburetor under high pressure with compressed air to manufacture a fine blanket of snow.

Broadmoor officials expect to maintain a three-foot snow base on the 3,000-foot-long ski run from November through April.
