Human Rights Group To Draft Principles

Further steps towards formation of a civil rights group in Medford were taken at a meeting held Wednesday night in First Methodist church. This was the second meeting.

Medford Human Rights council was chosen as a name for the organization, and committees were selected to draft a statement of principles and a constitution.

The Rev. Thomas McCamant, Mrs. Robert Duncan and Mrs. Everett Faber, Central Point, were named to the committee to draft the principles. On the constitution committee are the Rev. George G. Roseberry, Charles P. Champin and Mrs. Bren H. Starcher.

These committees will report at a meeting set for July 22. Mrs. W. D. Pearson, Applegate, is temporary chairman and Mrs. Duncan temporary secretary.

Attorney General's Aide Transferred

Salem—UPI—Transfer of Harry C. Spencer, assistant attorney general with the State Unemployment Compensation Commission in Salem, to the State Public Welfare Commission was announced Wednesday by Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton.

Spencer will be the first full-time assistant attorney general assigned to the Welfare Commission. He has been with the state justice department three years.

Price of white bread has risen 70 per cent in the span from 1946 to 1959.

Brown Expected To Get Humphrey Backing in South

Washington—UPI—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) Brown of California this week-end that he will urge his supporters to back Brown in case of a challenge in that state's presidential primary.

Brown is staking a favorite son claim to the big California delegation to be chosen in the primary next June for the 1960 Democratic National Convention.

Kennedy Uncommitted
Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) now viewed as the front-running candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, has not committed himself to stay out of California.

The word from the Kennedy camp, however, is that he is very unlikely to challenge Brown in the California primary or Sen. George Smathers, another prospective favorite son, in the Florida primary.

Kennedy is reported much more eager to enter the Ohio primary, despite the wishes of Gov. Michael V. DiSalle to commit that state's delegation to a favorite son, such as DiSalle.

Humphrey is understood to have assured DiSalle that he would urge Ohio backers to support the governor in that state's primary.

He expects to see Brown in Los Angeles this week end and to give him the same assurance.

Oregon Clash Seen
Only Kennedy and Humphrey among potential Democratic candidates have indicated any interest in getting into state presidential primaries. They are expected to collide in Oregon, and possibly in the Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries next year.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Gerard G.—There should be limits to her career.

Sandra G.—He likes my weekly pay check.

Gerard G.—I am married to a career woman. Sandra and I are both in our early 20s and we've been married two years. She has a good job and I am happy for her that she's succeeding.

Just the same I think there should be some limits to this career business. I wouldn't mind if Sandra's working day ended at 5 p.m., but when she brings work home or insists upon taking courses to advance her career, that's just too much.

I do enjoy having my wife's company in the evening. But she always acts as though I'm pulling her away from something more important. It's not very flattering. Sandra is planning to go on working after we have children. She wants to hire a housekeeper. I keep telling her she won't be able to bring work home then. She'll have to give the children some time.

Sandra G.—Gerry likes it very much when that weekly pay check of mine comes in. He agrees that it is necessary if we are to be able to live up to the standard we both want. His work will never pay much—even when he gets into the upper brackets of his profession.

Well, if I'm told to go on with my career I have to take it every bit as seriously as Gerry takes his. Incidentally, he often brings home work himself. He doesn't think it implies any insult to me if he is too busy with his work to pay attention to me.

I realize that I won't be able to devote much time to my work after we have children so I think it's important that I get in all the background I can now. I think Gerry really objects to my having a career.

The Council: All of life's satisfactions must carry a price tag, it seems.

The women of 50 years ago who longed for Sandra's opportunities led a life that was undoubtedly frustrating in many ways.

Sandra certainly must get many satisfactions from her career, but she shouldn't kid herself into thinking that she isn't paying a price for these.

The time, energy and emotional involvement she takes away from her husband and home also deprive her of many rich pleasures—more than she realizes.

The facts of life and nature being what they are, a woman simply cannot operate at full capacity in two separate worlds. Some women manage to do remarkably well, but they delude themselves if they think that sacrifices are not being made at both ends of the line.

In the long run, most women are happier sacrificing their ambitions in the world of work to the world that represents their feminine domain.

The problem, however, is an individual one. If Sandra were to sacrifice her career ambitions in a spirit of bitterness she would not do much good to herself, her husband or the children she hopes to have. But if she makes the sacrifice in a spirit of affirmation—of sacrificing a lesser good for a greater good, the rewards would surely be great. The financial loss will seem small in comparison.

Sandra at least ought to consider the path chosen by so many women today—that of giving up work during the child-bearing and rearing years and resuming it later in life. There is no doubt that the career will suffer, but other gains may be very great.
