Girl Scouts To Leave Monday

All girls registered for the second session of Camp Low Echo will leave for camp Monday, July 13 at 12:30 a.m. from the east end of Hawthorne Park, across from the Red Cross headquarters on Hawthorne street.

To speed up the checking and loading, girls are asked to tag their baggage at home with their name and address. If this is not possible, parents will find baggage checks at the point of departure to check the baggage. The office staff asks all girls to board the bus immediately as everyone will be checked after the bus is filled. Since the bus will leave promptly at 12:30 p.m. girls are to arrive no later than 12:15 p.m.

Campers coming from the first session may be picked up by their parents today at 3 o'clock at the same location in Hawthorne Park.

Camp Low Echo is under the direction of Miss Irene Knox who has directed the camp for the past five years. Program offered to campers include swimming, boating, canoeing, hayrides, nature walks, crafts, archery, unit cookouts, overnight camp out, campcraft and singing.

Registrations are still being taken by the Scout office, SPing 2-5912 for the third and fourth sessions, July 24 to August 3 and August 4 to 14 respectively.

Native Daughter Visits Medford; History Recalled

A member of a pioneer Oregon family has come from California to visit in her native state during its Centennial year. She is Mrs. Charles D. Stacey, former Medford resident now living in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Stacey is accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Opal Cromwell, and they are guests in the home of Mrs. Stacey's grandson, Robert L. Stacey, 1220 East Main street.

Mrs. Stacey's maiden name was Nellie Kellogg, and her grandfather was Joseph Boyce, one of the first medical doctors in the Oregon territory.

She was born in 1870, the first daughter of Margaret and Capt. Edward J. Kellogg. Capt. Kellogg and his brothers planned and developed Milwaukie, Ore., in 1848, the family recalls.

They built the first steamship lines on the Columbia and Willamette rivers, hauling grain and lumber to San Francisco. A replica of their first boat is now on display at the Centennial exposition in Portland.

The Kellogg brothers are credited with having brought a Masonic charter across the plains in 1847. The charter and the trunk in which it was carried are at Multnomah Lodge 1, in Oregon City.

The Kelloggs came to southern Oregon in 1891 and settled on the property now known as the Dolph Phipps orchards.

Nellie Kellogg and Charles D. Stacey, whose parents were also early settlers in northern Oregon, were married in 1896. Mr. Stacey planted the Crestbrook orchards and operated them for many years until his death in 1940. Mrs. Stacey now lives with her daughter in Los Angeles.

Apricot Fluff

For a dessert the whole family will like, prepare lemon-flavored gelatin according to package directions, substituting apricot whole fruit nectar and a tablespoon of fresh lemon juice for part of the water. Chill until thick; then beat with rotary beater until foamy. Pile lightly into sherbet glasses. When firm, top with sliced fresh bananas and whipped dessert topping.
