The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Clinic

Treatment With Anti-Coagulants

Statistics are accumulating to show that after a person recovers from a heart attack or a stroke, he is likely to survive many years longer if kept on so-called anti-coagulant treatment, taking a drug such as dicumarol. I was just reading a report by Dr. M. M. Suzman, of Johannesburg, who spoke recently in Capetown. He reported studies of 1461 patients, and said that those who have been on good anti-coagulant treatment have shown a greater tendency to survive. Some 399 patients who received good and steady anti-coagulant treatment showed a mortality rate of 16.8 per cent; 164 patients, who did not stick to their treatments, as well as they should, or after a time quit it, had a mortality rate of 31.7 per cent; and the "control group" of 898 patients who received treatment for only a short time, had a mortality rate of 44.5 per cent.

A Cheaper Medical Education

Many of the people who now are distressed at the great cost of medical services will be glad to hear that at Johns Hopkins Medical School, under the guidance of Dr. Barry Wood, an effort now is being made to shorten the period of medical education, and thereby somewhat to lessen its cost. Today, to get a medical degree, a high school graduate must spend eight years in college. Then, there must be a year of internship; perhaps a year of residency, and for the men who want to become specialists, at least three more years of training. As a result of this, many a young physician has to wait until he is nearly 30 before he can earn much. Then, perhaps, he will have to pay back a big debt, and he may have to wait some time before patients come. I, myself, was 29 before I could start on my own as an internist, and during the next three years I saw so few patients that I never was sure that I would collect enough money to pay my rent.

Dr. Alvarez' booklet on blood pressure may be obtained by sending 25 cents and a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. MMT, The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Box 957, Des Moines 4, Iowa.

William Ricken Of Corps at Institute

Captain Ricken, the commanding officer of the Salvation Army in Medford, will return this week from Chicago, where he has been attending the Brengle Institute at the School for Officers Training of the Salvation Army.

The institute is offered to Salvation Army officers above the rank of captain who have been chosen by the divisional commander.

Thirteen delegates from the Western United States are attending the 10-day institute.

The institute is to further educate and train the Salvation Army officers in spiritual knowledge. It consists of a very tight schedule of classes. The institute's classes start at 8:30 a.m. and continuing until 11:30 p.m.

GETS REVENGE

El Cajon, Calif.—(UPI)—Robert Carlson said he got his revenge last Saturday night on the grocery store that charged him 10 cents to cash a check. He paid his $46 grocery bill in nickels.

Medford Student Wins Scholarship

Jim Christenson Jr. of Medford, who was graduated from Whitman college in May, has been accepted by the University of Chicago law school as the holder of the Whitman college scholarship there next fall. He is the son of C. J. Christensen, 441 Lozier lane, who is with the Federal Aeronautics Administration here.

Christenson was named by a Whitman faculty committee for the award which includes a year's tuition, renewable for two succeeding years. He is working in Walla Walla this summer.

DOG HITCHING POSTS

Leicester, England — (UPI) — A local firm said it had received an order from a pet food firm in Pennsburg, Pa., for 250,000 hitching posts for dogs. The manufacturer said the purchaser plans to give the posts to stores selling its products, so customers can tie their dogs outside while shopping.
