

Festival Company Has Rogue Valley Residents

Several Rogue Valley residents are among the company at the Oregon Shakespearean Festival in Ashland this season.

Philip Hanson, Ashland, is appearing as an actor in all four of this year's plays. He will be featured in the title role of "King John," and will portray Malvolio in "Twelfth Night," Angelo in "Measure for Measure," and Proculeius in "Antony and Cleopatra." Hanson is a veteran of many seasons on the Ashland stage.

W. Bernard Wind, another Ashland resident, is director of music for the Festival Company. He is also director of orchestra and chorus in the music department of the Ashland public schools. This is his seventh season with the festival.

Dwaine E. Smith, a Medfordite, is the festival photographer. He has served two years in that capacity and has assisted here in special photographic assignments in 1956 and 1957 as well. With his wife, Janet, he operates The Classic Studio.
