By KEN HARDY

Taste and style are two words that are bandied about rather freely in the fashion world today. While styles change almost as often as the seasons, taste is more of an abiding quality. It is that attribute which enables those who have it to choose clothing which best suits their personalities without making them overly conspicuous or blurring their completely into the background.

But good taste in clothing doesn't end with their selection. It also includes clothes care. Your clothes tell a lot about you. When they are spotlessly clean and freshly pressed, they speak quietly and firmly about your poise, position and personality. They give you that wonderful "at ease" feeling at business and social occasions. Their condition is as important as their style in creating the impression of someone who knows how to dress.

You've carefully selected the garments in your wardrobe for quality, color, style and line. Clothing so carefully selected deserves the best in expert cleaning by the latest scientific methods. That's exactly what we give every article you send us. You can trust us with your finest fabrics. Remember . . . if your clothes aren't becoming to you, they should be coming to us!
