

Doctor Faces Murder Charge

West Covina, Calif. — (UPI) — Dr. Bernard Finch, 41, faced arraignment today on a charge of murdering his estranged wife, Barbara. Finch, who according to police chief Allen W. Still maintains he was in Las Vegas, Nev., at the time of his wife's slaying, was returned here Monday from the desert resort.

He was arrested Sunday in the Las Vegas apartment of his former nurse, Carol Tregoff Pappa, 22, and booked on suspicion of the gunshot killing of his 33-year-old wife Saturday night outside their $80,000 home here.

Mrs. Pappa, now a cocktail waitress, appeared to dash Finch's alibi when she admitted driving him here Saturday so he could talk with his wife about a divorce, police said. The couple had been separated since May.

Finch's father, Dr. Raymond R. Finch, revealed his son had been under psychiatric care for several months and said he had been "acting strange and goofy lately."

Federal Deficit Peacetime Record

Washington — (UPI) — The Federal government wound up $12,500,000,000 in the red in fiscal 1959, the treasury reported Monday.

The deficit was a peacetime record, but slightly smaller than President Eisenhower forecast last January.

The treasury said that in the fiscal year which closed June 30 budget receipts totaled $68,200,000,000 and expenditures $80,700,000,000.

The gap was $330 million less than Eisenhower predicted. Receipts were slightly greater than had been expected, the treasury said, because of brisk business expansion in the spring. Expenditures fell somewhat below the January forecast.

Only wartime deficits have been bigger than this latest one. In fiscal 1958 the deficit was $2,800,000,000.

What should you do if you desire to settle in the new state? First, come up for a visit. You will be welcomed with open arms by warm-hearted citizens who like nothing better than to show off the wonders of Alaska's magnificent scenery and promise. Don't burn your bridges behind you until you are certain there is a place for your talents in this great land.

Second, have either a definite commitment for a job before you make the long journey or at least enough money to keep your family for a month and the return trip home if things don't pan out.

And last, don't expect miracles. While Alaska offers much in opportunity, it also can exact a terrible toll in heartbreak or privation for those who cannot stand the rigors of living in a frontier atmosphere.

If you can honestly state you can fill these requirements, come ahead. You will find the friendliest people in the world live in Alaska.

What Is The Law?

This column is prepared as a public service by the College of Law, Willamette University, Salem, to explain basic legal principles, not to provide legal advice. The reader is cautioned not to apply these cases to his own problems without an attorney's advice, for differing facts may change the outcome.

Law Sets Time Limit On Suing

"It is my opinion that W. L. Lowe is a thief. He is stealing my sheep," declared W. W. Brown on several occasions, the last of which was June 11, 1958. This made Lowe angry. The more he thought about it, the angrier he became.

Finally, on July 1, 1959, Lowe went to his attorney to start an action against Brown. Much to Lowe's surprise, the attorney told him it was too late—more than one year had passed and the statute of limitations requires that an action of slander be brought within one year.

Time Limits

The statute of limitations limits the time in which different kinds of actions can be brought by individuals. In the chapter on limitation of actions in the Oregon Statutes, the longest time given for the commencement of a civil action is ten years for the recovery of real property, actions on foreign judgments, and on sealed instruments. Various other actions must be started within two, three, or six years.

In a case such as this, however, the statute does not run—that is, the time is not counted—while the wrongdoer is out of the state or is concealing himself. If Mr. Brown had gone to California immediately after he spoke the slanderous words and lived there for three years before returning to Oregon, Lowe would have had four years in which he could have sued.

General Expectation

The statute of limitations is founded upon the general expectation that claims which are valid are not usually allowed to remain neglected. It is designed to protect citizens from stale and vexatious claims, and to prevent litigation after a reasonable lapse of time. Law best serves the vigilant and not those who sleep upon their rights. After all, witnesses eventually die or move to parts unknown, memories fade and evidence disappears.

TRUSTING SOUL

Hamburg, N. Y. — (UPI) — Mayor William A. Shoemaker, who was defeated by one vote after eight years in office, said he would not demand a recount because "the voting was by machine and the results are accurate."

VISITING HOURS

Albion, N. Y. — (UPI) — While Assistant Fire Chief Tony Piazza was in bed with the flu, his men paid an unexpected call at his home. A kitchen fire had broken out in a rear apartment the family rents.

SHAKING OFF THRUST by spear, bull gores and lifts horse high in air during Madrid, Spain, bullfight. Moment later horse and rider went down. Picador Jose Montes Villalba, the rider, suffered fractured elbow.

BRIEF, BUT EFFECTIVE

Buffalo, N. Y. — (UPI) — Sample Shop plate glass window, $206.14, was all attorney J. E. DeCastro Jr. said in summing up the store's case against a couple whose auto broke a window following a collision. The Supreme Court jury awarded the Sample Shop $206.14.

FIRING SQUAD

Tokyo — (UPI) — Eight fire engines fought their way through heavy traffic Monday night to get to the Food Center Building, where white smoke was pouring out of a second story window. When they got there, firemen found two employees industriously battling cockroaches with insecticide.

NIECE BEFORE AUNT

Olean, N. Y. — (UPI) — Mrs. Donald Neuland gave birth to her first child—a girl—about six hours before her mother, Mrs. Lawrence Keller, gave birth to her 10th child, also a girl, at St. Francis Hospital.

Like Criticizes Public Works Funds

Washington (UPI) — President Eisenhower, asserting that "skyrocketing of federal spending" must be stopped, criticized the Senate and House Monday for including funds to start new projects in a pending public works appropriation bill.

The President's sharp statement was interpreted as a warning that he might veto the bill, unless Congress before final passage knocks out funds for many of the new projects.

The chief executive's view was set forth in an exchange of correspondence with Rep. John Taber (R-N.Y.), senior Republican on the House Appropriations Committee. Taber will serve on the Senate-House conference committee assigned to draft the final compromise bill.

Alaska Land Of Opportunity For Those Who Can Afford It

By VIRGINIA O'REILLY Anchorage Daily News (Written for UPI)

Anchorage (UPI) — Come to Alaska if you want to, but, for heaven's sake, stay at home if you can't afford it!

This statement is not very hospitable but it is the thought of many Alaskans as they read accounts concerning new caravans of prospective residents being formed to travel to the 49th state this summer to seek their fortunes.

It is true the new state is a land of opportunity. It is also true there is a need for more population. But the opportunity is there only for those with enough money to exploit it or the ability to sustain themselves until they get a foothold in their new home.

Alaska already has its share of people who are either on welfare or drawing unemployment compensation for part of the year because of seasonal jobs.

Proof of this is the fact the new state legislature is faced with the problem of paying back some $8,000,000 to the Federal government for loans issued so that state jobless benefits could continue for workers in occupations such as construction or mining.

Since the passage of the statehood bill in June of 1958, thousands of words have been written for worldwide consumption about Alaska's fabulous storehouse of resources, its free land and its colorful population.

The resources are here but they will remain locked in the earth's surface until large amounts of money from investors not interested in turning a quick buck arrive on the scene with sufficient capital to make the mountains and glaciers yield a harvest.

There is an abundance of free land available for homesteading in isolated areas away from population centers but homesteading is only for those who are brave enough to try it. Any prospective homesteader should be prepared to give years of his life and spend at least $150 an acre to clear his land for cultivation.

Few Millionaires As for the colorful characters who came to Alaska in search of a new life and became self-made millionaires, there are a few. But like many of their fellow Alaskans who arrived here poor and found a comfortable living, they came alone and either married later or sent for their wives when they had made a stake.

They did not follow the devil-may-care practice of building their families into a car or truck and loading their worldly possessions on the top for an adventure over the horizon. The price of such indulgence can often be too high.

What should you do if you desire to settle in the new state? First, come up for a visit. You will be welcomed with open arms by warm-hearted citizens who like nothing better than to show off the wonders of Alaska's magnificent scenery and promise. Don't burn your bridges behind you until you are certain there is a place for your talents in this great land.

Second, have either a definite commitment for a job before you make the long journey or at least enough money to keep your family for a month and the return trip home if things don't pan out.

And last, don't expect miracles. While Alaska offers much in opportunity, it also can exact a terrible toll in heartbreak or privation for those who cannot stand the rigors of living in a frontier atmosphere.

If you can honestly state you can fill these requirements, come ahead. You will find the friendliest people in the world live in Alaska.

Picture of a Promise

Sure, she's a grand old flag! That's why we salute her. That's why we pledge allegiance to her.

That pledge, in its simplest terms, is another way of saying, "Count me in. You're my country and I love you and need you. Your problems are my problems, and I'm with you all the way."

Your country's biggest single problem is the perpetual responsibility for keeping the peace its people want. You can help with this problem by remembering this:

Peace costs money. Money for military and industrial strength. Money for science and education. And money saved by individuals—by you—to help keep the economy strong.

Bonds provide this money. Every Bond you buy is an important, personal pledge of allegiance to your country. Think it over. Are you buying enough?
