

The committee planning the annual summer dance of Rogue Valley Country club had fun building a "wrecked" ship, the S. S. Frolicker, for party atmosphere. Shown here with the results of their wrecking efforts are (at left) Mrs. Ron Caperna, Mrs. James Sheldon and Mrs. Bruce Stanley, who assisted their husbands in the project. The dance will be held tomorrow night at the clubhouse and members are invited to assemble "on the oasis by the fountain of youth" about 8 p.m. The committee further states that the shipwreck theme won't extend to the menu and the ample buffet will feature whole baked salmon. Guests are to wear whatever attire they believe they might be wearing if washed ashore from a wrecked ship. (Brainard photo)

Woman Declares Legal Profession Most Difficult

Chicago (UPI)—A woman's most difficult job is to make headway in the law than any other profession, Judge B. Fain Tucker said.

She should know. As the only woman judge in Cook County Circuit Court, Miss Tucker has presided over divorce, criminal and personal injury cases. A past president of the Women's Bar Association, the twinkly-eyed, auburn haired judge had no political experience before in her election to the bench in 1953.

Although she now makes $22,000 a year, Miss Tucker firmly believes that "no woman without financial backing should try law unless she is willing to starve a little" when she first goes into practice.

Miss Tucker speaks from experience. She did not have financial backing and "starved for about five years."

"Lady doctors have a ready-made clientele of women and children, but lady lawyers do not," she explained.

However, a woman lawyer can succeed if she wants to pay the price in arduous work, Miss Tucker said.

She practices what she preaches. "I put in a seven-day week because I love the law — you can spend a lifetime in it and only gain a foothold," she said.

In spite of her impressive position in a man's field, Miss Tucker is frankly feminine. She judges it prettier to wear pearl earrings and a pearl necklace with her black legal robes.

It Figures

Los Angeles (UPI)—When planning food budgets, consider the ages of the family members, says Lois S. Cline, home advisor of the University of California in Los Angeles County.

"Food costs generally increase with age up to 20 years, then decrease," Mrs. Cline said. "After age 12, men need more food than women, and therefore cost more to feed. It costs about a third more to feed a 16-year-old boy than a girl the same age."

Next to a teen-aged boy, a man 35 to 54 years is the most expensive to feed. Mrs. Cline added.

Spicy Dip
New York (UPI)—Serve lobster with spicy pickle dip. Combine 1 cup of sour cream with 1/3 cup of sweet pickle relish, drained, 1/4 cup of chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon of onion salt and salt and pepper to taste. Mix well. This makes enough dip for 1 1/2-ounce can of lobster, drained and boned.

New York (UPI)—Gourmets have made hamburger chowmein, hamburger cobbler, hamburger corn mustard, hamburger enbrochette, hamburger macaroni, hamburger noodle pudding, hamburger with banana, and even hamburger rice pilaf.

'Small World' is Theme Of Children's Art Show

Inspiration of the various works came from observation, memory and imagination. Mr. Bennett states. He believes that a group of portraits will be of particular interest, and states that also on display will be a number of works employing experimental techniques.

Children whose work will be included in the exhibit are Jean Allen, Bonnie and Robin Barnes, David Billingsley, Cathy Bradford, Emily Carpenter, Peppy Clark, Alain and Aude Espourteille, Rhonda Farfan, Kent Hallsted, Ogden and Tom Kellogg, Mary Loris, Theresa Madden, Judith McFadden, Marty Merriman, Kristine Mortensen, Rodney Peterson, Brian Porter, Becky Lynn Rickman, Laurel Shuler, Ellen Sleeter, Marilyn Stewart, Carolyn Wimberly.

Beef Buying Study Subject

Corvallis—What families look for in buying beef may be told in a survey of 6,000 food shoppers conducted by Oregon State college. The survey is part of a four-year study on consumer beef preferences.

As they shopped, consumers were asked to view certain beef cuts and rate them on a nine-point scale ranging from "like extremely" to "do not like." Their ratings are now being weighed against scientific tests and cooking performance.

Trained taste panels rated these same cuts on firmness, tenderness and general eating quality. Last year, Mrs. Lois Sather, food technologist, cooked and served 240 of these cuts to college taste panels.

Shoppers in six cities judged sirloin and round steak, pot roasts and standing rib roast. To provide uniform samples, 3-D color pictures were used instead of fresh cuts. Shoppers were surveyed in Portland, Salem, Eugene, Coos Bay, Klamath Falls and Medford.

An earlier college survey indicates that consumers generally prefer bright cherry red lean, white fat, a moderate amount of marbling, minimum of bone and external fat and the larger beef cuts. The latest college survey, which will be analyzed by late fall, will more sharply define consumer preferences on certain cuts.

Allen Anglemier, food technologist, heads up the study.
