

Sellout Audience Gives American Film Big Applause

Moscow—(UP)—A sellout audience of a thousand persons stuck it out at the Moscow Film Festival until 2 a.m. today to see America's "Diary of Anne Frank." It got the biggest applause yet in the three-day old showings.

"Diary" was the only American movie to be presented at the festival, and it was entered outside competition so that it was not eligible for an award.

It had the disadvantage of being screened after a full-length Polish epic about a submarine that ordinarily would have been more than enough picture-viewing for one night. There also was the drawback of having only one male interpreter to translate the dialogue into Russian over an earphone system.

Nevertheless, the audience, mostly Soviet film dignitaries and the upper crust of Moscow society, including members of the foreign colony, gave the film an unusually enthusiastic reception.

Several times during the show, particularly in the scenes where Milly Perkins, as Anne Frank, experiences her first date and first kiss, the spectators spontaneously applauded and buzzed appreciatively.

The picture is the touching story of a Jewish family hiding in Amsterdam during the German occupation in World War II, as told through a 13-year-old girl's diary. Its anti-war, anti-fascist themes went over well with the Soviets, along with its excellent acting and directing.

Soviet audiences have been able to see relatively few American films, although Moscow is now seeing "War and Peace."

Ontario province extends for about 1,000 miles east to west and about the same distance north to south.

The first intercollegiate ski meet in North America was held at Shawbridge, Quebec, in 1914 between Dartmouth and McGill Universities.
