I WAS JUST THINKING...

"IN MEMORY of Wayne Clifford Nickeson."

The faded blue pamphlet has lain for years in the bottom drawer of my desk. I had thought one day I'd write the story of Nicky, but how can I improve on this testament of love?

"When about three years old, he sustained an injury to his spine. Though he recovered, he was dwarfed and undersized. . . ."

I remember Nicky in the smoky blue light of the bandstand. He was ugly and misshapen, a hunchback not even five feet tall.

"He became a professional musician. Besides the banjo, he also played the electric guitar and made radio appearances. . . . There are great musicians who played with him 'after hours' . . ."

It took no talent to appreciate Nicky's. When he played, it was pure beauty. If he had been straight and strong, he would have been a legend in show business, perhaps. But the legend of Nicky was brief and bound by the chains of his body, never his spirit.

"His doctor used to marvel to others how he managed to stay alive as long as he did. Intuitively, I suppose, he knew he had no chance. But he faced it bravely and uncomplainingly. . . ."

He faced it through the years of playing his heart out with small bands, playing to the awe of townsfolk at summer celebrations, dreaming the music, living for the wonder the thin fingers coaxed from the strings they loved.

"We didn't grieve much for Nick. He left us with a lesson of courage in the way he faced his handicap. When he died, we all felt, 'He's tall now—and he's straight.'"

I don't want to remember Nicky any other way than as he was, the deep eyes closed against pain, the lips smiling for the magic music.

Those who have experienced sorrow can best savor joy. If there are no depths, can a man comprehend the heights?

Nicky left his little world the lingering melody of his spirit and his song.

He was given ugliness. He gave beauty in return.

"NAME THE STARS OF TOMORROW" CONTEST

NAME ME

Meet blond, blue-eyed Marlo Ryan. Born in Madison, Wisconsin, she came to Los Angeles at the age of one. Now 20, she studied dramatics in school, did commercials on network TV shows and played a lead in one film.

Here are the Easy-to-Follow Rules

1. There will be six separate weekly contests, each with its own set of prizes. You may enter each contest as many times as you desire, using either the entry blank published in FAMILY WEEKLY or a reasonable facsimile.
2. All entries for Contest Number Three must be received by midnight Thursday, August 13. Entries may be mailed on post cards if desired.
3. The prizes for Contest Number Three are: 1st Prize—Gertrude Ederle Swimming Pool. 2nd & 3rd Prizes—RCA Whirlpool Washer-Dryers. 4th & 5th Prizes—Westinghouse Electric Ranges. 6th & 7th Prizes—Mercury Outboard Motors. 8 to 15—Nesco Electric Rotisseries. 16 to 23—In-Sink-Erator Disposers. 24 to 39—Airex Fishing Sets. 40 to 59—Seth Thomas Wall Clocks. 60 to 89—American College Encyclopedic Dictionaries (2 Vols.). 90 to 119—Westclox Wrist Watches.
4. Entries will be judged on the basis of originality and aptness of thought. Judges' decision is final. In case of ties, contestants will be required to write a statement about FAMILY WEEKLY. All entries become the property of FAMILY WEEKLY and none will be returned. Entries must be the original work of contestants and must be submitted in their own names.
5. Contest winners will be notified as soon as possible.
6. The six contests are open to all residents of the United States except employees of FAMILY WEEKLY, its affiliated companies, its distributing newspapers and their families. The contests are subject to all Federal, State and local regulations.
