

HOGGING PICTURE—This 18 month old sow was anything but cooperative as 4-H member Carol Foote of the Central Point Pig club tried to maneuver it in front of the camera. This sow and other livestock is entered in the 4-H competition at the Jackson County 4-H and FFA fair this week at the county fair grounds.

Local Chapters Take Fair Events

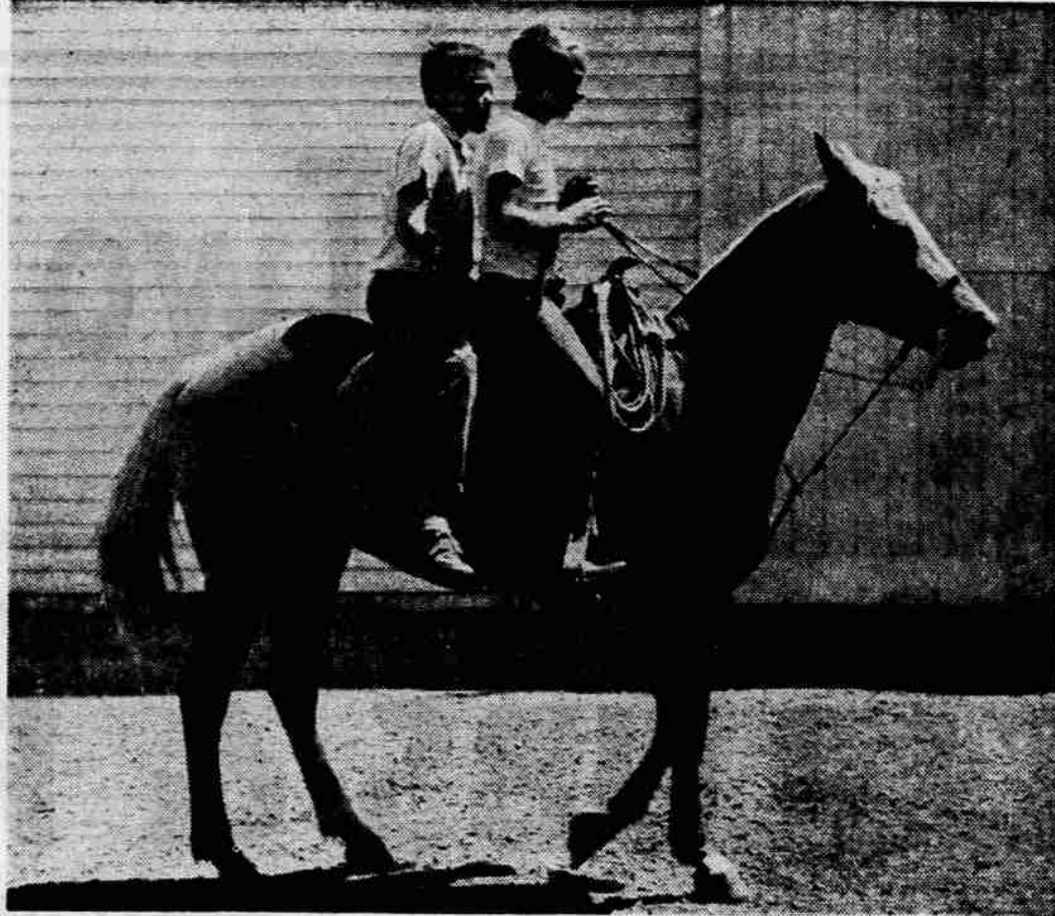

Eagle Point, Phoenix and Crater FFA chapters enter the Jackson county 4-H and FFA fair competition this week with some fair competition already behind their members.

Eagle Point placed first in the livestock judging at the Josephine county fair. Grants Pass FFA chapter placed second, Phoenix came in third, Illinois Valley fourth, and Crater fifth.

The three chapters had entries in two classes of beef, sheep and swine.

The five high point boys were Ron Anderson, Eagle Point, first with 522.9 points of a possible 600; Steve Geren, Eagle Point, second with 521 points; Russell Elmore, Grants Pass, third with 471.7 points; Elvin Hawkins, Eagle Point, fourth with 470.1 points; and Dean Sommer, Phoenix fifth with 460 points. Phil Krouse, Grants Pass, was sixth with 453.8 points. Five teams were entered.

In dairy judging Grants Pass was first, Illinois Valley second and Eagle Point third. Eagle Point judging team participants were Victory Halsey, Benny Sutton, and Dale Vaughn.

JUST RIDING AROUND—John Hughes, up front, trots his horse around the Jackson county fairgrounds after doing his chores during cleanup day last week. Up behind him is Spenser Buffington. Both boys belong to the Phoenix Saddlelites, a 4-H horse club.

BOY AND BEAST—Rusty Vaughn, 12, of Eagle Point, leads out his brother Dale's Angus cow and her calf. The picture was taken in front of the box stalls on the Vaughn farm located between Eagle Point and Brownsboro. Dale, an Eagle Point FFA member, was not home. These two animals are a sample of what is shown by Eagle Point, Phoenix and Crater FFA chapters at the 4-H and FFA fair.

Lakeville, Conn.—UPI—Mme. Wanda Landowska, 80, hailed as the world's greatest harpsichordist, died Sunday.

Montpelier, Vt. (UPI)—Radio station WSKI reported the theft of a brand new portable TV set.

Art Exhibit Set For Kiwanis Fair

An art exhibit for southern Oregon artists will be a feature of the Kiwanis County Fair, Aug. 20-23, at the Medford Armory, according to Sam Richardson, chairman of the special events committee.

Richardson said that the media included in the exhibit would be oil, water color, drawing, and mixed media.

No entry fee would be charged to the exhibit, and entries are limited to three pictures.

He reminded those planning to enter that the pictures must be ready for hanging.

The work entered must be labeled with title, media, statement of value, and name and address of the artist.

Members of the jury who will be judging this art exhibit are Eugene Bennett, Warren Wolf, and Jack Deeters who, as guest artists, have often been invited to show three paintings.

Officials of the county fair advise artists that work for exhibit must be brought to the Armory by 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 19, in order to be eligible for the judging.
