PRE-MENSTRUAL TENSION

Many women ask me to write a column about premenstrual tension if only so that husbands will better understand the monthly tortures many a wife goes through, and also, the torture that the unhappy man has to go through.

I am reminded of a remarkable letter I once got from a woman living on a ranch on the other side of the world. She said, "For some 25 days I am, I should say, a pretty good wife and mother. I love my husband and will do anything to make him happy. I adore my children and they love me. We are a happy household. And then, all of a sudden, before my period, I start to get tense, so tense that I could scream at the children and at my perfectly innocent husband. I feel as if I could jump out of my skin. I'm so irritable I can't stand anything."

"I ought, really, to be shut up somewhere. I am not fit even to live with myself. Worse yet, in my desperate desire to get some relief, I start drinking, and sometimes I drink too much. My poor husband and children sink around, hoping that at least I won't attack them; and then, slowly, I come out of it, and for a few days I'm ashamed, repentant, unhappy, and hoping my family will forgive me." This, of course, is an extreme case, but there are many women who suffer all or most of these symptoms.

Thrust of Rockets More Predictable

Columbus, Ohio (Science Service)—Aeronautical engineers may be able to predict more accurately the thrusts of boron fuel rockets with the finding by an Ohio State University chemist that many boron-oxygen-hydrogen-type molecules remain stable at high temperatures.

Dr. David White, associate professor of chemistry, told a meeting of the American Rocket Society that "at higher temperatures you get new kinds of molecules and often more complicated ones." For the first time, we have a set of correlations of thermodynamic properties of boron fuels from which to calculate precisely rocket thrust, he said.

Never Married

I've even met women who told me that they never had married because they realized that because of the severity of their monthly nervous storm, they probably would never be able to hold a husband. In fact some of these women said they could not share an apartment even with one of their women chums at the office.
