Museum at Kerby Dedicated During Sunday Ceremony

Cave Junction—The historical museum at Kerby, recently established by the Illinois Valley Federated Women's club, was formally dedicated Sunday.

Dr. A. N. Collman, president of the Josephine County Historical society, dedicated the museum "to the pioneers who helped make this country what it is today."

More than 100 persons attended the ceremony, held on the front porch of the old home which was built in the 1890's by Frank Stiff. The women's club purchased it in January from the George Savages.

Josephine County Judge Raymond Lathrop, principal speaker, described the only farm in Josephine county owned by the same family continuously for over 100 years.

It is the old White place in the Illinois valley, six miles from Cave Junction.

Reads Letter

Judge Lathrop read a letter from Harold White, head of the Southern Oregon Experiment station, Medford, who wrote that the property had been in his family 103 years.

Samuel Wilson White and family left Coldwater, Mich., in 1852, when gold was discovered in the west. They settled in the valley in 1855 when they acquired donation land claim 37.

The pioneer first built a cabin for the family and in 1862 constructed a large two-story home. Lumber was purchased locally for $90 per thousand feet.

Stories of the founding of Kerby were related by Merie Griffin. He recounted the tale about a mule which carried a pool table, and which died at the spot and put its owner in business there.

Another "authentic" story of the community's origin concerns a man wearing an $8 pair of shoes, who walked over $8 mountain and wore out the shoes at the Kerby site.

Museum Dedicated

Griffin emphasized that the museum be dedicated "not only to the pioneers, but also to the spirit that motivated the fine museum."

Other speakers included Amos Voorhies, former editor of the Grants Pass Courier, who praised the work of the club in renovation of the building and the way in which the donated articles were displayed.

Dr. Collman also paid tribute to the men and women who cleaned, painted, papered, repaired the old house.

Refreshments were served by the club. Mrs. Robert W. Wilson, in pioneer dress, presided at the guest book.

Lawyers Debate Judicial Reform

Miami Beach—UPI—A panel of lawyers debates judicial reform today before the 82nd convention of the American Bar association. The convention ends Friday.

Under Secretary of State Douglas Dillon will deliver a special address at the ABA's annual banquet tonight.

There also will be presentation of the ABA medal and "gavel awards."

An estimated 11,000 delegates are attending the five-day meeting. Other speakers today include Walter C. Owen, president of the Canadian Bar association, and Geoffrey Lawrence, vice chairman, general council of the bar of England and Wales.

EX-CONGRESSMAN DIES

Fayetteville, N. C.—UPI—Former Rep. J. Bayard Clark, 77, whose 20 years in Congress spanned the depression, the New Deal, and World War II, died Wednesday night. Clark, a Democrat, had entered politics in 1915.
