Shakespearean Festival dancers, together with several members of the acting company and the technical crew, will appear in a special dance concert today at the Oregon Shakespearean Festival theatre in Ashland. Set for 4:30 o'clock, the program will be highly varied in content, and will climax the special offerings of the 1959 music department. Shown rehearsing for the event are (left to right) Jo Bailey Summers of the costume department, actors Joel Riggs and Anthony Ristoff, and Choreographer John Hawkins.

Festival Concert Today To End Season's Series

Ashland - Concluding the addition to the regular dance troupe, actors, technicians, and members of the costume crew will appear in several of the numbers. Director Hawkins, combining his personal comments with demonstrations, will endeavor to show the development of dance, from the basic steps employed in national folk dances to the higher and more technically difficult forms - such as ballet and modern dance.

Highlighting the program will be dramatic dance sketches based on various Shakespearean characters, including the title roles from "Romeo and Juliet," Beatrice and Benedick from "Much Ado About Nothing," and the lovers from "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Through the employment of unifying dance features, Mrs. Hawkins will assist the audience's recognition of the basic movements. Several surprises have been planned for the entertainment of the audience, together with examples of folk dances and a few selections from the choreography of "The Masque of the New World."

In addition to live accompaniment provided by Music Director W. Bernard Windt's staff of musicians, there will be full orchestral backing supplied by high fidelity tape recording.

Prices for the dance concert are 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for children. Tickets may be purchased at the door on Sunday. Excellent seats are also available for Sunday night's next-to-last staging of the brilliant history play "King John." The production, directed by Richard Rizzo, begins at 8:30 p.m. in the theatre.
