Martha's Memos

It's Not What Happens But The Reaction That Counts

by Martha Morgan

Tonight after school Ann, my 11-year-old granddaughter, came over to tell me she'd been defeated for vice-president in the school election.

I explained to Ann—young as she is—that it isn't what happens to you that counts nearly so much as what you do about it.

By the time Ann had a few cookies in her, she was feeling much better, and she offered to bake the rest of the batch.
