Plan Would Limit Requirements for Voter Registration

The proposed constitutional amendment would limit the requirements states can make for voter registration. Two members dissented to this in a special statement, and Battle endorsed their objections.

The report voiced particular concern over discrimination against non-white voters. "Our investigations have revealed . . . that many Negro American citizens find it difficult, and often, impossible, to vote," it said.

Schools Also Studied
In education, the commission urged that it be allowed to function as a clearing house and advisory agency on school integration.

Taking note of the major role the federal government plays in public housing, the report asks that the president order all departments dealing in this field to reshape their policy to guard against discrimination.

Vice Chairman Robert G. Storey, dean of Southern Methodist University law school, dissented to this and other statements in the report with regard to housing. Battle and former Florida Gov. Doyle E. Carlton shared his views.

The commissioners said Alabama and Louisiana led in the number of voting complaints received and gave the least cooperation.

Nine Could Act
Under the key voter proposal, machinery for federal intervention could be set in motion by nine or more persons complaining of having been denied the right to vote on a discriminatory basis.

The complainants would submit affidavits to the president, who in turn would refer them to the civil rights commission. If the commission found the complaints to be valid, the president then would appoint any local federal official in the affected county or district to step in as registrar.

The federal official would handle these duties until the president saw fit to return registration to local control.

Other Proposals
Other proposals on voting: Census compilation of figures on registration and voting, including race.

A law requiring preservation of registration records for five years and making them subject to public inspection. Authorization of the commission to apply directly to a federal court for aid in enforcing a subpoena, rather than making such application through the attorney general.

Recommendations on housing primarily concerned a change of federal policy designed to guarantee equal opportunity for all races, and suggestions that local authorities set up bi-racial panels to work out housing problems.

Storey, Battle and Carlton expressed the view that the recommendations were keyed to integration, rather than housing, and, if carried out, might result in "dissension, strike and even violence."

Offices Wrecked At Little Rock

Little Rock, Ark. (UPI)—Explosions Monday night wrecked an occupied office in the Little Rock School Board building, damaged a building housing the private offices of the mayor, and demolished the fire chief's city-owned station wagon.

No one was hurt. Assistant Police Chief R. E. Glascock did not know if the explosives, possibly dynamite, were set or thrown.

The blasts, on the eve of the opening of the city's grade and junior high schools, came minutes apart.

Police Chief Gene Smith, who turned back a demonstration marching on Central High school when it opened integrated Aug. 12, immediately called all men to duty.

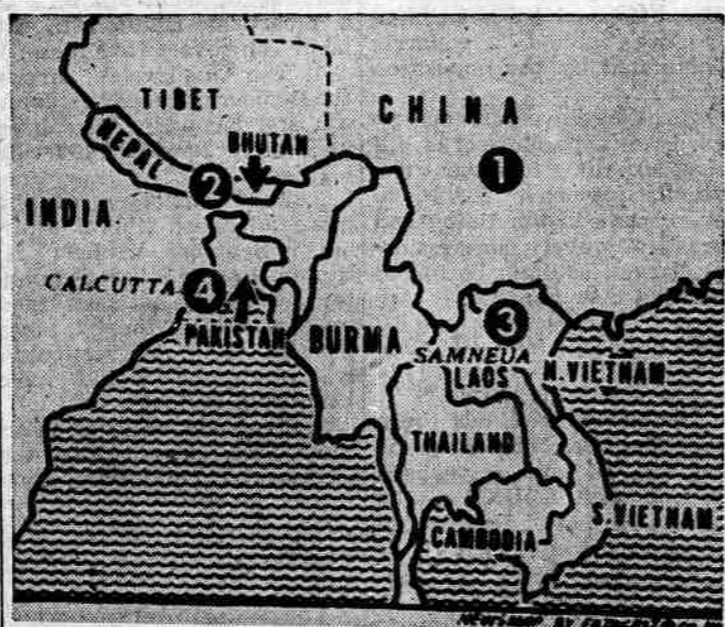

He ordered lights turned on in all the city's school buildings for the remainder of the night.

No arrests were made immediately.

There were more passenger cars on the streets and highways of the United States last year than in any year before and the number is still going up. The total of passenger cars registered was 56.8 million in 1958.
