

Fall Flower Show

This arrangement of garden flowers in autumn colors won a prize for Mrs. Charles Cushman, Trail, at the recent flower show given by Eagle Point Garden club. Mrs. Cushman combined sprays of feathery goldenrod with yellow marigolds and zinnias of coppery orange and yellow tones with one or two of reddish hue for accent. The footed pottery bowl gave the arrangement height. Mrs. Cushman's entry was in the novice class.

A manikin in the midst of fall flowers, grasses and vegetables portrayed the theme "Autumn Splendor" of the flower show held September 3 by Eagle Point Garden club at the Oasis. Mrs. Otto Nagel, schedule chairman of the show, is pictured with the large arrangement which stood in the center of the hall. Mrs. W.E. Davies, show chairman, helped to decorate the hall for the show and then, left for Salem where she and her husband arranged an exhibit for the Oregon State fair. The gardeners, who won a judge's award for their theme-of-show exhibit, draped the manikin in gold satin and used only blossoms of autumn tones at her feet. This was the first standard flower show ever held by the club.

This whimsical entry attracted considerable attention at the recent flower show of Eagle Point Garden club, and was awarded a blue ribbon by the judges. Mrs. Alma G. Meyer, club member pictured with her entry, filled a discarded heavy work shoe with the succulent commonly known as "hen and chickens" and entered it in the Nursery Rhyme division of the show. She entitled the arrangement "Old Woman in the Shoe." Mrs. Meyer first filled the shoe, which has dirt clinging to it, with garden soil and believes that the easy-to-grow plants will flourish in the unusual container.

Mrs. A. Wattenburg, staging chairman, was awarded a prize for her table setting centerpiece and arrangement entered in the recent autumn flower show of Eagle Point Garden club. Mrs. Wattenburg used beautiful pink rubrum lilies, flecked with gold, in a flat silver bowl for her centerpiece. China used in the table setting was Spode in the cowslip design. Mrs. Wattenburg is wearing a cotton frock of unusual design which she modeled earlier in the afternoon for a style show given by Town and Country shop of Eagle Point.
