Feeding the Family

By ZOLA VINCENT Food Editor

Youth Must Be Served Adequate Quantity of Milk Program. In building better meals for better families, nutritionists agree that a quart of milk daily is essential to children for maintaining rosy cheeks, sparkling eyes, strong teeth and bones. Teenagers, particularly boys, are known to drink milk in tremendous quantities, indicating their need for it. The future good health and well-being of the nation depends largely on what our growing boys and girls are eating today. Whole milk is our most nearly perfect food, and its great family of offspring carry these nutritional values in cottage cheese, butter, buttermilk, and a galaxy of milks, hard cheeses, creams and ice creams.
