Cubs To Face Giants Today, Will Meet Dodgers Later

Chicago—(UPI)—Manager Bob Schefing of the Chicago Cubs has predicted the Milwaukee Braves will win the National league pennant. Now all he and his band of home-run hitting Chicubs have to do is knock out the San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers this week to prove it.

MEDFORD TRIBUNE SPORTS

MHS Jayvee Footballers Down Ashland Team 13-0

Medford gridders barged into pay ground in the late second quarter and early third here last night to bounce the Ashland Grizzlies 13 to 0 in a junior varsity football scuffle. It was the season starter for the Jayvee crews and the first of two games this week for the Tornado gang which plays the Orland here on Friday.

Tom Hamlin and Sam Knudsen were the touchdown-makers for the Medford team. Hamlin took a pass from Jim Stever on a three-yard scoring play. Knudsen went the last two yards of a 65-yard march then ran the extra point. Ashland had the yardage and first down edge, building up this margin in the second half, but only once during the game had the ball inside the Tornado 30-yard stripe. Deepest Grizzly penetrations were to the Medford 28 and to the 36 while the Tornado got to the Ashland 13 and the three prior to its first scoring punch. Got Ball on 20

The Grizzlies had possession with their back to the wall just before Medford's first successful goal assault. The Tornado had lost the ball on downs on the Ashland three and the Lithians got no farther than their five in three offensive plays. Rich Callahan punted out to the 20 where Medford took over the ball. Kent Blew made eight yards to the 12 and George Clearwater seven more to the five. Blew moved to the three and Stever pitched to Hamlin in the end zone. Stever's sneak try for the extra point failed. Medford followed up the opening kick-off with its second score, going the 65 yards in five quick plays. Knudsen made the first five then Scott Eaton rambled in a reverse 25 yards to the Ashland 35. Knudsen gained another 30 up to the middle on a hand-off to the five. Dick Byrd went to the two and Knudsen crossed from there.

Grizzlies Control Ball
Ashland had the ball on the Medford 28 as the first half ended for its closest to the Tornado goal. In the second half, Ashland, in control of the ball most of the time as Medford substituted freely, had a 139 to 81 spread in net yards gained but got no closer to a touchdown than to the Tornado 36. The Grizzlies had 225 to 192 net yardage edge and were 13 to eight ahead of Medford in first downs. The Tornado had 111 net yards to Ashland's 86 in the first half. While they didn't score, backs Forrest Farmer, Jim Doster, Bob Georgiana, Dennis Nason and Ron Scholer

Rookie Cut From 49'ers

San Francisco—(UPI)—Paul Lowe, rookie halfback from Oregon State, was cut from the San Francisco Forty Niners' squad Monday. Lowe's departure reduced the quad to 37, one above the new limit which went into effect this season. Club officials said that they were well set on fast backs and could afford to let the ex-Beaver speed merchant go.

JOCKEY SCORES TRIPLE

Mays Landing, N. J.—(UPI)—Sammy Boulmetis had three winners at Atlantic City Monday, including Weather Prophet in the featured six-furlong sprint. He also scored on Felix Arabia $7.20 and Golden Wedding $21.20. Weather Prophet returned $5.80.

Dodgers Open Series Tonight With St. Louis Cardinals

St. Louis—(UPI)—The Los Angeles Dodgers opened their important two-game series tonight with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Dodgers were tied for first place Monday by the Milwaukee Braves, who beat the Pittsburgh Pirates. The idle Dodgers had uncontested tenancy of the No. 1 National league spot for less than 24 hours.

The San Francisco Giants, also idle Monday, remained one full game back. All three contenders have five games left to play in the regular season.

The Dodgers tabbed strike-out artist Sandy Koufax (8-6) for the opener against the Cards while the home team picked its star hurler, Larry Jackson (13-13). Koufax has taken two out of three decisions from the Cards this season while Jackson beat Los Angeles in his last two meetings. He has a lifetime mark of 12-5 against the Dodgers.

The Dodgers would be the first NL team to rebound from seventh place to capture the pennant if they won this year. Morale among the Dodgers players was high and hopeful, but both St. Louis manager Solly Hemus and Chicago pilot Bob Scheffing counted Los Angeles' chances of snagging the pennant as practically non-existent.

The Giants are "the team to beat," said Hemus. Scheffing was picking the Braves, pointing out that the Braves have the most advantageous finishing schedule with three games at home against the last place Philadelphia Phillies. "If Johnny Logan gets back in there, and I hear he will, the Braves will do it," Scheffing said.

But Dodger manager Walt Alston said: "We can do it. We don't need help from anyone else now. The job belongs to us alone."

Mental Illness To Keep Doctors Busy

Chicago—(Science Service)—Mental illness will probably become the major target of medical science when America's two greatest killers, heart disease and cancer, are brought under control.

The common cold and muscular and neurological cripples will continue to be enemies of good health long after the separate riddles of cancer and heart disease are unraveled, an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association states.

But disorders of the mind remain a more ominous scourge. A significant number of physicians have begun to view this disease as one which can be controlled. Yet a broad program of preventive medicine is blocked by the fact that mental illness is not adequately reported, the editorial points out.

Producing an epidemiology of mental illness and health, therefore, might well be medicine's prime goal for tomorrow, the editorial suggests.

Research in Italy Reduces Surpluses

Washington—(Science Service)—Two grants for research in utilization of canned beef and preserved fruit purees have just been made to the experiment station for the Food-Preserving Industries in Parma, Italy, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced here. The grants, amounting to $94,000 approximately, are the first made to an Italian institution.

One grant will finance a study of chemical and physical changes in beef during the canning process. The other grant is for a study of the effects of temperature variations on the quality of canned peach and apricot purees.

The USDA's foreign research program aims at reducing surpluses of U. S. agricultural products which, when sold abroad, pay for the agricultural research.

New Jet Fuels To Up Performance

New York (Science Service)—New jet-engine fuels that have been developed here to give airplanes more flight per gallon of fuel.

The secret of the new fuels developed here by Texaco, Inc., is their high "L.N."—a number expressing luminosity of the combustion flame. Most present jet fuels have low luminometer numbers of 45 to 65. The new fuels are rated upward from 135.

Higher L.N.-rated fuels are expected to extend engine life and sharply reduce exhaust smoke on take-off. In a luminous flame, such as that of kerosene, incandescent molecular fragments are formed that radiate heat. This can seriously increase temperature inside a jet engine without adding power.

By designing the engine to use high luminometer number fuels and by turning them at higher temperatures, greater trust can be developed at take-off, said L. C. Kemp Jr., vice-president of Texaco research. In addition, the jet could carry heavier payloads.

WRITE, DON'T CALL

Memphis, Tenn.—(UPI)—The U. S. Navy wants to find a $2,000 canopy that fell off a Navy jet Monday but they won't spend any money locating it. The finder was asked to write, not call the Millington Naval Air Base here. "We're not allowed to accept long distance calls," the post information officer said.

Fighters Wondered

Fighters will tell you that they wondered through their novice years why a manager insisted that they make special moves in certain ways even though doing so made them feel awkward. "All of a sudden everything seemed to fall into place," they explain, still somewhat surprised at the net result, "and the other man goes down with amazing ease instead of having to be bludgeoned insensate."

BROWNS RELEASE TWO

Cleveland—(UPI)—Offensive end Farrell Funston and defensive halfback Dick Lebeau were released by the Cleveland Browns Monday, getting the club down to the 36-man player limit. Funston is from the College of Pacific while Lebeau played his collegiate ball at Ohio State.

Negro Must Fight Inevitable Product Of Ideas In Mind

Cincinnati, Ohio (Science Service)—Now that the battle for desegregation has been won in the courts, the Negro in the United States is faced with a new struggle. This new struggle is not against prejudice in employment, politics or the courts. It is against ideas and attitudes in his own mind—a sort of "Jim Crow of the mind."

This inner "Jim Crow" was described to the American Psychological Association here by S. I. Hayakawa, of San Francisco State College, well-known in the field of semantics or the real meaning of words.

Dr. Hayakawa explained that, although not a Negro, he, too, has suffered from prejudice on account of his race and Japanese origin. "What he calls 'Jim Crow of the mind' is an inevitable product of the history of Negroes in the United States. It may cause the Negro to be engaged with the idea that 'I am a Negro' which dominates and limits all his perceptions of himself. Elimination of this 'Jim Crow of the mind' is not keeping pace with removal of the physical Jim Crow, he indicated.

"Long after the last segregated school house in the United States is abolished, we shall still have to reckon with 'Jim Crow of the mind.' Because it is an inner problem, the solution is for each individual a personal responsibility.

Deeper Passion Needed
The best way for the Negro to stop being haunted by the fate of being a Negro is to develop a deeper passion about something else, he said. "Every Negro should interest himself, not superficially but deeply, in the problems of some minority other than his own.

"The study of the problems of Italian immigrants or of Jews is good for Negroes in the same way that study of Negroes is good for Italians and Jews. But there are minority groups other than ethnic to be studied: the stutterers, the physically handicapped, the blind and the members of all sorts of other social minorities."

New York—(UPI)—Paul Dietzel, the LUS football coach who is writing a series of stories for United Press International, summed up the whole muscular merry-go-round when he said that "the most important part of an athlete is the seven inches right between the ears."

"Desire" long has been key-noted as the difference between losing and winning. Yet it stands to reason that everybody wants to win. So something has to give as a replacement for scoreless ties when other factors such as condition and ability balance out.

Which means, as Dietzel points out, that you have to be a thinking man, too, son.

Advice Drew Disdain
You can pull illustrations from our recent loss of the Davis Cup, from baseball, from boxing, from golf and from almost any sport you care to name.

Alex Olmedo, the rangy Peruvian who was our trumped ace in the recent tennis debacle in which we lost the Davis Cup to Australia, went into the challenge round and his subsequent loss in the U. S. finals moaning about being off form.

"Quit thinking and hit the ball," he was told by non-playing Captain Perry Jones. It was advice which drew mocking disdain from the tennis "brains" on the premises. And rightfully so. Because it enabled a man who wasn't even playing to win the cup. That would be "Sir Army" Opan, who sat on the sidelines moving his men like puppets; correcting flaws and dictating winning strategy with the finesse of a chess master.

Thinking in baseball is the answer to why front offices change managers so frequently. Managers whose teams are down in the standings and out of the race get into a thinking rut in which they make the same old mistakes in the same old way. You can second guess the active minds but it is the planners of the bench who manage to get the most out of their talent.

Nearly Normal Temperatures Seen

Suitland, Md.—(Science Service)—Temperatures below the seasonal normal throughout the eastern half of the nation are predicted for mid-September through mid-October by the U. S. weather bureau's long-range forecast experts here.

The Gulf Coast is expected to be an exception, however, with near normal temperatures during the 30-day period. The coldest areas are expected to be the Great Lakes, Ohio valley and the Northeast. Temperatures over the western half of the country are predicted to average near normal except for below normal over the southern plateau and above normal in Montana, Wyoming and coastal California.

Precipitation is expected to be subnormal over the northeastern quarter, above normal amounts are predicted for the southeastern quarter, Central Plains, Rocky Mountain states and California. In unspecified areas about normal rainfall is indicated.

Colorado Carnations are the only trade-marked flowers in the U. S.
