

Guest Speaker for Conference Listed

Portland - Dr. William D. Sheldon, director of the reading laboratory at Syracuse university, N.Y., will be guest speaker at the annual fall conference of the Oregon Council of the International Reading Association Saturday, Oct. 3, at David Douglas High school, Portland.

He has conducted a wide research program in developmental reading and has guided a large number of doctoral dissertations in various phases of reading.

The key note of the statewide one day conference is "Sequential development of reading instruction," with topics geared to all phases of the teaching of reading.

Elementary and secondary educators plan to attend.

Boy Scout Program Builds Character, Official Points Out

(Editor's note: This is another in a series of articles discussing agencies served by the United Methodist Crusade. Today's article, written by J. A. McDougall, president of the Crater Lake Council, Boy Scouts of America, discusses the Boy Scout program in this area.)

By J. A. McDougall

We read frequently of boys who get into trouble. It has been said they number but 2 per cent. But we do not often hear of those others who are trying to make something of their lives, those who might have been among the 2 per cent, except for character building organizations.

The Crater Lake council, Boy Scouts of America, gives us cause to reflect on a volunteer organization that has made its mark on the lives of thousands of boys. Here we find boys becoming Scouts for the enjoyment there is in it.

The adult volunteer leaders in Scouting—and there are over 1,400 of them in this area—realize that Scouting is something more than fun. They know it has a purpose.

Purpose Reviewed

That purpose is to help boys become men by teaching them to play a team game for a citizenship role later and to inculcate in their daily lives a code of living influenced by the Scout Oath and Law.

When a boy joins a Scout unit at his church, school or other community institution he becomes a member of a team. It is here that he gets a lesson in democracy as he shares in team planning, elects leaders, and learns to live with his fellow team members as brother Scouts.

In the program of Boy Scouting he keeps busy learning such skills as first aid, signaling, cooking and camping while learning many traits of good citizenship.

In order to bring the program to the boys of our area, the Crater Lake council was organized and chartered by National Council, Boy Scouts of America in 1924. The responsibility of the council is to serve existing units, make training available, organize activities, provide camps, supervise the advancement program and extend the use of the program to more boys.

For the Council to carry out its responsibility it is necessary each year to set up a budget which will help to strengthen the hand of the chartered institutions and of the volunteer adults who lead scouting in those institutions.

Operating Budget

The 1960 operating budget of $48,750 for the Crater Lake Council received careful study by the budget, the finance and the executive committees of the council. Final revision and approval was given by the Council executive board whose members represent the three counties of the council.

The final 1960 operating budget takes into account the minimum council needs for executive staff, service, training, camping and other phases of the council program.

A "fair share" of the 1960 operating budget is determined for each county and a similar "fair share" is requested from each United Fund with which the council is a member agency. Factors to determine the "fair share" are population, available boys and effective buying income.

The budget becomes the program of the Crater Lake council. The program can be carried to boys only so far as the council budget is raised.

The record of achievements in the last 35 years is an impressive one. The program of the council has been varied and complete, this year proving to be one of the greatest.
