

FINGERPRINTING METHOD - Nassau County Detective Matthew Bonora, 31, of New York, who has invented a new method of getting at-the-scene fingerprints, demonstrates his method at the convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs in New York. Bonora's idea involves use of an aerosol can that sprays fingerprint powder much like cans used in every household. Bonora's method has received enthusiastic backing from the world's police chiefs as one of the greatest developments in crime detection in 20 years. (UPI/Telephoto)

DISCRIMINATING - Rockford, Ill. - (UPI) - The Queens department store was robbed of $35,000 in cash and furs over the weekend. Today they published the following advertisement in a local paper: "Burglars prefer our quality. So will you, but we recommend the hours from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. so we can service you personally."

Delinquents Said Best Dressed Males - London - (UPI) - The Wholesale Clothing Manufacturers Association surveyed this group of delinquents in suits and baggy knees Wednesday and came to the conclusion the best dressed males are juvenile delinquents. The juvenile delinquents, called "Teddy boys" here and in many European countries, show great care in such details as polished shoes and crisp clean shirts, the association said. The clothing association, whose 400 members claim to represent 80 per cent of Britain's clothing industry, said they found not "Teddy boys in Oberlin college in north-eastern Ohio was the first American college to adopt a coeducation system. London wearing crumpled collars and worn shoes. An association spokesman said Manchester males were the worst of all. "Climate has nothing to do with it," he said. "Sheer neglect is the only answer."

Eighty-eight foot flatcars are being built. They carry two forty-foot trailers and are said to be the largest ever used.

Quotes From the News

United Press International
Milan - Maria Callas, on her husband's separation suit in which he charged she was infatuated with another man:
"I am not used to washing dirty laundry in public."
New York - Debbie Reynolds, who spent two days as a dime-dance girl to soak up atmosphere for her next film:
"Most of my partners were real gentlemen, but one Lohario told me I was too beautiful to be real and then bit me on the shoulder."
Madison, Wis. - Sen. Hubert Humphrey, in calling for greater effort on the part of the government if we are to survive in this century:
"We cannot fly to the moon while our political feet are stuck in the mud."

WILL FOLLOW ORDERS
Leeds, England - (UPI) - Julia Gaitskell, daughter of Labor Party Leader Hugh Gaitskell, was campaigning from door-to-door for her father Wednesday. At one home the housewife interrupted Miss Gaitskell's spiel to say: "I'll be voting for you and my husband will vote as he's told."
BOY SEEKS GIRL
Palos Verdes Estates, Calif. - (UPI) - "My boy-constructor is harmless - it's nothing to worry about" attorney Sam Major assured police Wednesday. He said his pet snake shed its skin and then slipped out of his cage apparently in search of a girl. "It's the mating season," he said.
