ELECTION ISSUES — The decline in farm prices and Russian military and scientific progress over this country will be major issues in the 1960 election campaign, Senator John Kennedy (D., Mass.) told a news conference in Indianapolis, Ind. Kennedy, a candidate hopeful criticized the Eisenhower administration for letting the Russians get ahead of us scientifically and militarily.

The Medical Roundup

by Walter C. Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Clinic

Can A Male Sterilization Be Undone?

I am constantly getting letters from men who, perhaps because of the frail health of the wife, are willing to have their spermatic cords (tubes carrying sperm from the testicles to a little reservoir at the neck of the bladder) cut across and tied. Their physician has satisfied them that he can find no evidence in the medical literature to indicate that this operation ever does the man any harm of any kind – physical or mental. It certainly does not interfere with either his sexual desire or potency.

Dr Alvarez

Now, the man's only question is, "If, for some reason he or his wife should very much want to have another child, could the tubes be opened again?"

I now read in the July number of Plantation Health, edited by Dr. N. P. Larsen, of Honolulu, that at a recent meeting of the Human Betterment Association of America, Dr. Rieser quoted papers by urologists who had collected reports from doctors who in 420 cases had tried to open up the spermatic tubes again and had succeeded in 40 per cent of the operations. This report should now go far to remove the one objection that many a man makes to having this simple operation performed, in order to protect his wife from a pregnancy that might cause her death.

Many physicians refuse to perform the operation for fear that later the man might like to see if he could get a lot of money by suing for supposed mayhem. There is always the fear that a jury may ignore the fact that, before witnesses, the patient begged the doctor to operate on him.

Several of the experts at the conference doubted if there was much justification for this fear, especially if, before operating, the surgeon were to have a consultation with one or more physicians. Then, it would be rather difficult for the patient to prove in court that the doctor had assaulted him and maimed him against his will.

As Dr. Stone said, in India he found recently a great upsurge of interest in this operation of vasectomy (sterilization) as a means of combatting the great danger of devastating over-population.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor, and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Lucy T. – We would feel more secure engaged.

Patrick R.–Why does everyone have to know?

Lucy T.–I am 17 and I have been going with a boy a year older for the past two years. We want to get married in three years when he is a senior at college.

The problem is whether or not to get formally engaged. My parents think we should get engaged or break up. They feel I should have some assurance that I'm not wasting my time with him. One difficulty is that he'll go quite far away to college and won't be able to come home more than twice a year.

Pat's parents like me but they say he is too young to "tie himself down." They don't understand that he wants to be tied down. We both would feel more secure if we were engaged. But he doesn't want to go against his parents in this thing.

Patrick R.–I feel that, after all, my parents are putting me through college and I owe it to them to follow their advice.

I have sworn to Lucy that I won't date other girls while I'm away. My word is good. I really have no desire to go out with others. She is the only girl for me. I certainly don't want to break up our relationship. I don't see why we can't consider our engagement a secret.

I am a little disappointed in Lucy's not being satisfied with my word of honor. If we are to be married she should have faith in me. I trust Lucy implicitly. Why does the world have to know about our intentions and plans? What difference does it make to anyone but us?

The Council: We don't think secret engagements make much sense. Publicity is the point of an engagement. It is an announcement to the world of intention to marry. If the parties are not prepared to make this announcement they should keep their feelings for one another fairly private. It means that there is a measure of uncertainty in their relationship.

Torn between his parents' pressure and Lucy's, Pat is trying to keep both of them satisfied without going through all the trouble of knowing what his own thoughts and feelings are. He should try to find out.

It is natural for a young couple dating steadily to want to feel some security in their relationship. It is also natural for them to feel at times burdened by their commitment to one another–especially if this entails social isolation for a prolonged period. There is little question that Lucy and Pat will both feel tempted by the possibility of some extracurricular enjoyment during their long separation. Lucy is asking for firm insurance against this temptation, overlooking the fact that sometimes engagements are broken, and broken by the partner who wanted the commitment.

A three-year engagement is awfully long in anyone's book. Older individuals who know their own minds are better able to sustain them, but young ones often desire them simply because they don't know their own minds and want protection against finding out. It isn't a very good basis for planning a marriage. We think it would be wiser to let their feelings stand the risk of time and further experience.

Nude Post Card Given Approval

Washington – (UPI) – The Justice Department has come to the aid of a famous nude.

It declared in U.S. District Court that the Post Office Department was wrong in banning postal cards bearing reproductions of Francisco Goya's famous portrait, "The Naked Maja," from the mails.

United Artists Corp. mailed 2,000 of the cards to theater owners, critics and press agents last July to publicize a movie about the life of the 18th Century Spanish artist.

The post office impounded the cards and United Artists went to court. Justice Department lawyers were assigned to prepare the government's case.

They said in a formal answer that the cards were not obscene. The post office was expected to release them for mailing soon.

"We just decided it was perhaps not a very good case," a Justice Department spokesman said.

Las Vegas, Nev. – (UPI) – Actress Eva Gabor honeymooned today with New York millionaire Richard Brown whom she married Sunday night less than 24 hours after he proposed to her.
