The Medical Roundup

Plantar Warts on the Soles of the Feet

The fact that in the books one can find many types of treatment recommended for plantar warts shows that no one of these treatments is entirely satisfactory. In some clinics the main dependence is on x-ray treatment, and in other places the wart may be cut out. One physician, who says that he has studied 1300 cases, says that the best treatment is burning out the wart with the electro-cautery, under local anesthesia. In some cases, if the physician will inject some procaine solution (local anesthetic) under the wart it will soon drop out, and that will be the end of it. One difficulty with the cutting-out of the wart is that if the hole that is left is wide and deep, a painful scar may result.

Dr. Alvarez

Russia Develops Hard Material

Moscow—(UPI)—Soviet scientists have developed a glass microcrystalline material harder than steel, lighter than aluminum and capable of withstanding 1,000 degree C. (1,832 degree F.) temperatures, the Tass news agency has reported.

Tass said the new substance named "sital" has "high mechanical, thermal and electrical properties." It said it will be used for ball-bearing manufacture, frictional components and fireproof walls.

Lumber Market On Firm Ground

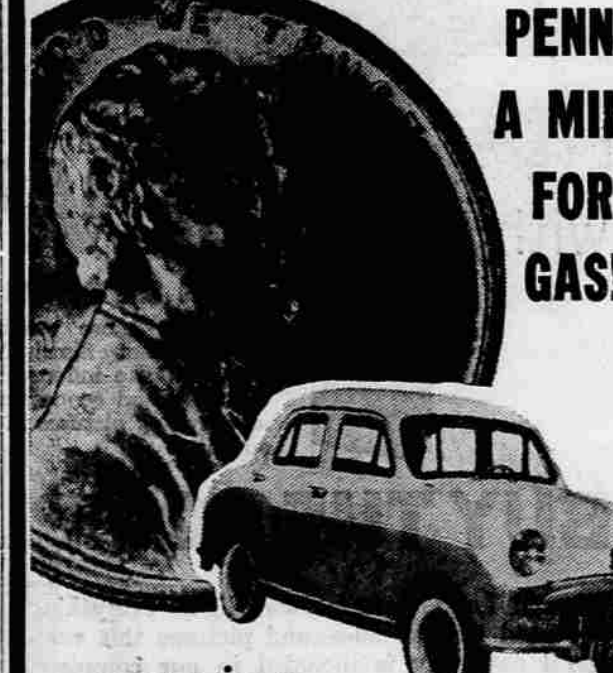

Portland—(UPI)—Crow's Lumber Market News Service reported here Friday that the green fir lumber market continued on firm ground in the past week despite a seasonal lag in sales volume.

Crow's said standard and better grade 2 by 4s were firm in the $68 to $70 range at the mill, with 2 by 10s and 2 by 12s slightly higher.

Cargo activity dropped sharply last week largely due to the steel and longshoremen's strikes, the Service said.
