

Police Chief Urges Area Motorists To Have Check

An opportunity for motorists to "join the circle of safety" and make the community a safer place to live will be offered Saturday, Oct. 17, when a voluntary vehicle safety-check will be sponsored by the Medford Lions club and the Medford Safety council.

Police Chief Charles Champlin has urged all drivers to "check your car - check your driving - check accidents." He said the voluntary safety check gives every motorist a chance to do his part in stopping accidents. "Even our best drivers are poor risks if they are driving cars with bad brakes, worn tires, or other neglected items," he declared. Lanes will be set up on 10th st. between South Central and Riverside aves. where motorists can receive the 10-point check.

The lanes will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and uniform, correct procedures will be used on the brakes, front and rear lights, steering, tires, exhaust system, glass, windshield wipers, rear view mirror and horn.

Cars passing the test will have a sticker "which reassures owners that their vehicles were found in safe operating condition," Dr. Lee Melish, safety check chairman for the Lions club, said.

The project is part of the annual national vehicle safety-check for communities sponsored by the inter-industry highway safety committee and Look magazine, in cooperation with the Association of State and Provincial Safety coordinators.

Sheep Flocks Are Out of Quarantine

Jackson county sheep flocks which have been under quarantine for bluetongue have been released as of Oct. 8, Dr. M. R. Woulfe of the state department of agriculture, division of animal industry, has announced.

Dr. Woulfe said those who were issued quarantines should return them to the issuing veterinarian, who will forward them to the Salem office.

He said the danger from the disease is largely over as a result of extensive preventive vaccinations and the advent of several frosts. He said no new outbreaks have been reported for several weeks.

Feeders and fat lambs ready to go may now move out of the county and out of the state, but Dr. Woulfe noted that several interstate requirements governing the movement of sheep must still be met.

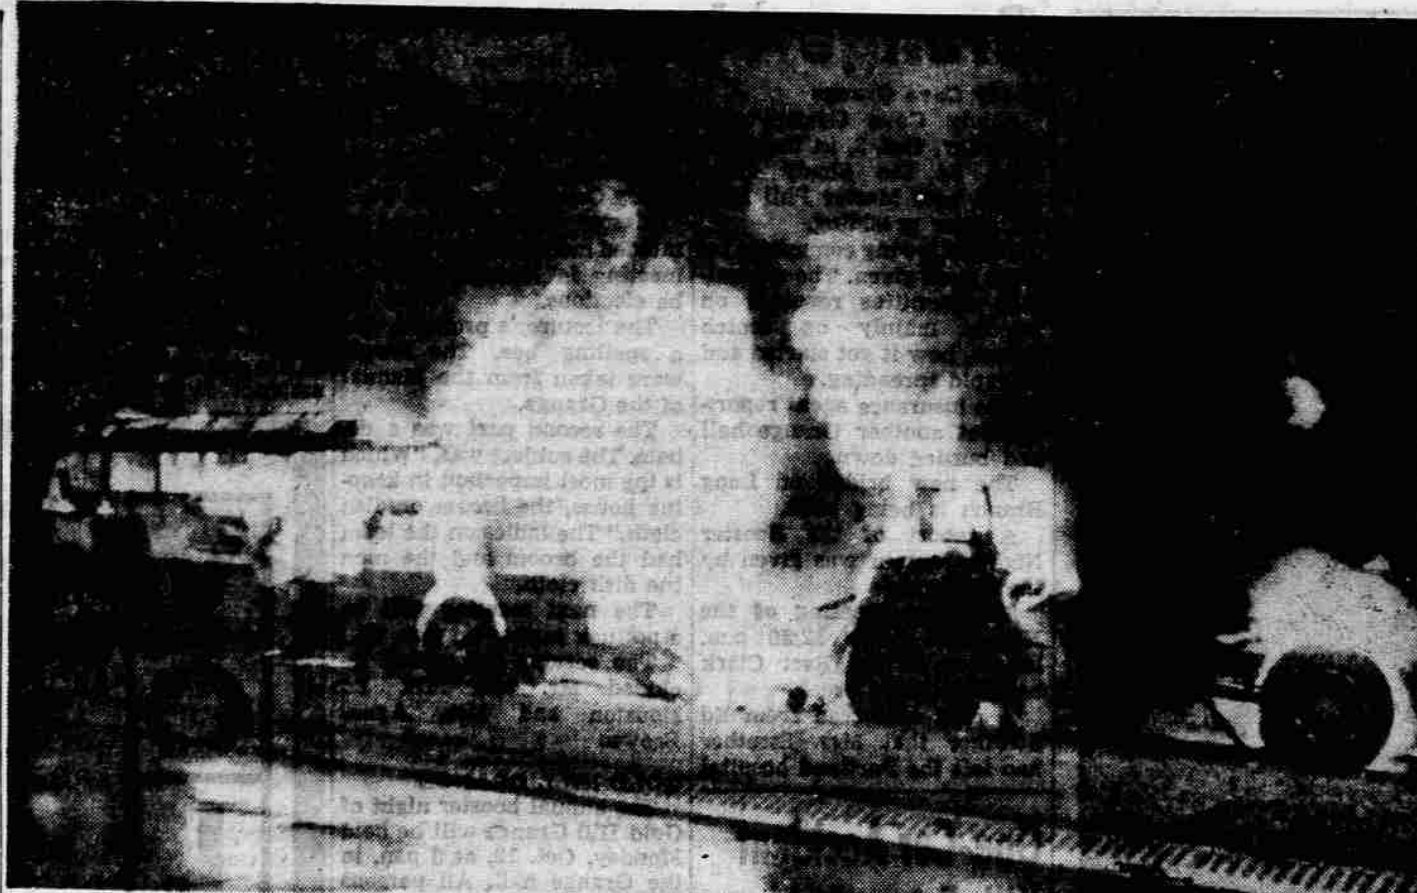

The Pacific International Livestock Exposition is not willing to accept entries from those counties where bluetongue has recently occurred, and that Jackson county owners should not send sheep to the exposition.

Memorial Services Held in Federal Court in Medford

Memorial services were held last week in the federal courtroom in Medford for the late Judges James Alger Fee and Claude Charles McCulloch.

Most members of the Jackson County Bar association attended the services, which were presided over by Judge William G. East.

Judge Fee was judge of the United States court of appeals, ninth district, and Judge McCulloch was chief judge of the United States district court for the Oregon district until his retirement Dec. 31, 1958.

Sam B. Haribson, president of the Jackson County Bar association, presented resolutions in memory of both judges.

Judges Recognized

The resolution notes that Judge Fee was recognized as a "learned, most capable lawyer and a fair and impartial judge, highly respected by all members of this Bar and at all times ever faithful to every public trust and was possessed of high ideals and sterling moral fibre."

The resolution in memory of Judge McCulloch notes that he "possessed a large measure of the characteristics of humanity, patience and an understanding of the weaknesses of people and through the years of his service he imbedded in the fabric of the law his deep conviction that the rights of the individual are entitled to the greatest protection by the courts consistent only with the requirements of good government as administered by men

Library Board Buys Magazines

The Jackson County Library board recently took action on the library's 1960 list of magazine subscriptions, awarding the contract to The Gaddis Agency.

According to Mrs. Jane R. Baker, Jackson county librarian, several changes were made in the new list, with an eye to providing more popular magazines for the branch libraries next year.

Some of the less-used magazines were dropped from the titles purchased this year for the Medford Library and additional subscriptions to the following magazines were ordered for the branches: Better Homes and Gardens; Children's Activities; Good Housekeeping; Jack and Jill; Ladies Home Journal; Life; National Geographic; Newsweek; Outdoor Life; Reader's Digest; Saturday Evening Post; Seventeen; Sunset; Time; and True.
