

SPACE DOG FASHIONS—Looking like a fashion plate for a Martian clothing store, Soviet space dog Gypsy, right, is completely encased in a space suit here as she waits to start a high altitude training flight. Alongside is another space dog, Mishka, who is only partly dressed for a test. Twenty Soviet youths and many dogs are reportedly being trained for the Soviet Union's first manned rocket trips. ## World Legal Group Backing Urged by Bar Association

Chicago (UPI)—An American Bar association committee has urged that the U.S. back a world legal group to the hilt and the senate withdraw its "power of veto" over cases brought against the U.S. in the International Court of Justice.

The committee, acting on approval of the ABA board of governors, issued an 80-page report on the so-called Connally Reservation of 1946, under which the U.S. may decline to appear in the world court.

The report, however, was not an official policy statement of the ABA.

Senate Determines Cases
The Senate accepted jurisdiction of the court when it was established by the United Nations, but only on condition that the U.S. might determine which cases brought against it are "international" and which "domestic."

The court has jurisdiction only over international cases. The committee pointed out that only 43 cases have been submitted to the court in 14 years, since other nations adopted similar reservations. France withdrew its veto last July.

Withdrawal of the reservation by the U.S. would be "a major practical and dramatic step towards the goal of the rule of law among nations," the report said.

Should Strengthen Law
"From a strictly selfish, economic point of view the United States should be doing all it can to strengthen international law and to advance, not discourage, means of enforcing international obligations," the report said.

The committee said existence of the veto showed "the basic manifestation of the lack of effective United States leadership in promoting the peaceful settlement of international disputes."

The report was approved by the council of the ABA's International and Comparative Law section and its distribution was authorized by the ABA board of governors.

Walter Pearson, Sweetland Clash Over Scholarships

Portland (UPI)—Democratic State Sens. Walter Pearson and Monroe Sweetland clashed Wednesday over patronage aspects of state scholarships to state-supported colleges.

Pearson protested to the newly-organized state scholarship committee because no awards were made to his nominee.

Sweetland, chairman of the Senate Education committee, said he was "shocked" that Pearson sought to "perpetrate" patronage in the new system.

Gave Commission Right
Pearson said the law passed by the Legislature this year gave the scholarship commission the right to make awards to "anybody it wishes." But he said he believed the intent was that the commission would make awards to qualified high school graduates on lists submitted by members of the Legislature.

Sweetland, who received a copy of Pearson's letter to the commission, said in reply that in setting up the commission "we had done away with the old patronage scholarships. I am shocked to have you defend that device and try to perpetuate it in the new system."

A great advantage of daily newspapers for advertisers is the ease and convenience with which they can be read by prospects. Newspapers "keep" till chores and work are done, and can be read at leisure. This is particularly important if an advertiser wants to reach the nation's 22 million working women—who are not often free to hear radio and TV messages.
