

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

ART LINKLETTER, while expressing general enthusiasm for the progress being registered by Alaska, our 49th state, admits, however, that the mail service in still below par, and that messages seldom get delivered on time. Tacked up on a Sitka bulletin board, for example, Linkletter spotted this notice: "Admiral Peary: please call your wife."

The telephone operator at a big advertising agency on Madison Avenue hasn't forgotten the friendly, chatty manner she acquired in her schooldays out in Kansas. The other day a client called her boss about one p.m. "He's out to lunch," reported the phone girl, "but I bet he'll be back soon. Nobody took him."

A baseball manager sought out one of his catchers in the locker room. "Joe," he said, putting his arm around the player's shoulder, "it's perfectly OK for you to forget all those batting tips I've given you. We just traded you to Kansas City."

Role of Volunteers at Camp White Reviewed

Volunteers under the Veterans Administration Volunteer Services program have become valued members at the domiciliary. Henry C. Herzog, manager at the Camp White Domiciliary, noted last week.

"We are aware," Herzog said, "of the danger inherent in a static protected situation. However, our domiciliary program emphasizes a dynamic purposeful daily activity plan for each member."

Herzog cited a community program designed for those over 50 years of age which brings the community to the domiciliary and developed under the VAVS program.

Domiciliary members formed an organization of 50 Plus and it has now affiliated with a similar club in Medford. The combined clubs also join with clubs at Grants Pass and other communities in social events, educational and leisure-time activities.

"The two affiliated clubs," Herzog said, "comprising men and women from the domiciliary and the community closest to it meet regularly with interchanging meeting locations and plan diversified programs for each combined meeting. Whenever the group meets at Camp White, the station orchestra furnishes dance music."

"A great many fine things have developed since the organization of the Camp White club," he said, "principally in the development of responsibility in planning their own programs, resocialization and making acquaintances with new people of the community. This association has interested many elderly, retired people in the community who become interested in the Voluntary Services program. Recently the Medford 50 Plus club was approved for representation on the Camp White VAVS Advisory committee.

Frank J. Glonning, in addition to his Veterans administration responsibilities as chief of special services at the domiciliary, is head of the Rogue Valley Council on Aging. Oregon leaders in the problems of an aging population will hold a state-wide meeting during 1960 in preparation for a national meeting, called by the White House in 1961.
