Tavernowners Have Diocesan Speaker
Grand Rapids, Mich. — (UPI)—The radio and television director of the Grand Rapids Roman Catholic diocese told the nation's tavernkeepers to get rid of their inferiority complex because they are in an honorable profession. The Rev. Hugh Michael Beahan told delegates to the 10th annual convention of the National Licensed Beverage association to "stand up and fight the blueeene enemies of the liquor industry." "You have every right to take your legitimate place in your community as a man who provides a legal and honest service," he said. Controlled drinking, he said, relieves tensions and relaxes. "Because drinking creates a problem for a relatively few people, we should not consider depriving the vast majority of normal adults," he added.

Queen Opens New Parliament With Relations Pledge

London—(UPI)—Queen Elizabeth opened the new Parliament today with a pledge by Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government to continue to work for better East-West relations.

The government-written speech, read for the Queen in the House of Lords, also outlined Macmillan's legislative program. It contained proposals for changing gambling laws, clearing slums, helping unemployment, and aiding old age pensioners. The Queen canceled the traditional opening of Parliament ceremonies because she is expecting her third child early next year. The monarch usually rides to the Parliament Building in an ornate gilded coach and marches into the House of Lords in crimson and ermine robes.

Her speech pledged continued British support of the United Nations, NATO, the 10-nation Disarmament Committee, and European trade alliances. Most of it covered domestic issues.

Chief of these was the betting and gambling regulations. Under a bill expected early in the session, card playing in public will become legal, as will betting with cash on horses outside the racetracks. At present, only credit accounts or trackside betting is permitted. Another widely discussed reform expected to be acted upon is new opening hours for the pubs. The reform is not believed aimed at removing restrictions entirely, but it will make it easier to get a drink on Sunday in Scotland and provide more leeway in the frequent periods when pubs must be closed.

Student Counseling Offered by College

Ashland—Among facilities offered by the Southern Oregon college psychology department, headed by Dr. Lore E. Messenger, is free student counseling. These services would cost $5 at any comparable school and much more if they were subscribed to from a commercial agency. Study clinics, formed to help students solve individual study problems and learn to study more efficiently, are being conducted for off campus students by Dr. Alvin Fellers. These sessions are held Monday through Friday at 1 p.m. Similar work is being done between dormitory counselors and Dr. Harold A. Cioer to improve study conditions in the campus living groups. Other help extended to the students by the psychology department includes career guidance. The department is equipped to test aptitude, personality, general ability, or achievement. Using the results of the tests the members of the psychology department help the students choose future college courses.

FEEL EARTH TREMOR
Columbia, S.C.—(UPI)—A slight earth tremor was felt in central and northeastern South Carolina Monday night, the U.S. Weather Bureau here reported. The tremor lasted about three or four seconds. No damage was reported.

Aside from its major products of vegetables and citrus fruits, Florida is becoming an increasingly important cattle raising state.

Amounts Increased For Items; Surplus Promised Russians

Moscow—(UPI)—The Soviet government presented a 186-billion-dollar 1960 budget today which boosts spending for science and for benefits to the average Russian and promises a surplus without cutting defense funds.

Deputy Finance Minister Vasily Garbuzov, presenting the budget to the second semi-annual meeting of the Supreme Soviet, Russia's congress, increased amounts slated for pensions, housing, education and culture, and health and physical well-being. He also promised to abolish personal taxes "in the next few years."

The proposed budget would leave an anticipated surplus for the coming year of 27,300,000,000 rubles ($6,825,000,000).

Garbuzov outlined budget calling for the expenditure of 744,800,000,000 rubles ($186,700,000,000) of which 96,100,000,000 ($24,025,000,000) would go directly for defense.

He anticipated a total revenue 72,100,000,000 rubles ($193,025,000,000).

Garbuzov proposed to increase pensions by 2,300,000,000 rubles ($575,000,000), to spend 47,700,000,000 rubles ($11,925,000,000) for housing, 102,000,000,000 rubles ($25,500,000,000) for education and culture, and 47,500,000,000 rubles ($11,875,000,000) for health and physical culture—all substantial increases over the 1959 budget figures.

Spending on "consumer goods and food" will increase 13.6 per cent, he said. He proposed to keep Russia in the forefront of the space race by increasing spending on science by 15.4 per cent, to a total of 32,600,000,000 rubles ($8,150,000,000). The official ruble exchange rate is four to the dollar, but the widely used tourist and business rate is 10 to the dollar. The dollar figures given are based on the four-to-one rate.

Ovation for Khrushchev
Garbuzov told the 1,378-member Supreme Soviet that the government would depend on direct taxation of the people for only 7.4 per cent of its revenue in 1960, a cut from the 7.8 per cent figure in the 1959 budget. Indirect taxation provides the rest of the money. In effect, the entire price structure includes the tax framework. Since the government regulates all prices, all it has to do is raise prices. Before the budget message was delivered, the Supreme Soviet accorded Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev a thundering, standing ovation as he strode into the house of Unions at the Kremlin.

Dark Blue Suit
Khrushchev, wearing a dark blue suit and a white shirt, led members of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet onto the platform for a round of speeches on domestic and international issues. Most of the 1,378 members of the Supreme Soviet were busy studying Soviet newspaper pictures of the back side of the moon before the session opened. They discussed the pictures with enthusiasm and many smiled in obvious pleasure.

Marshal Semyon Budenny, one of the Soviet heroes of World War II, was one of the first Russian leaders on the platform. The Supreme Soviet adopted the following agenda for its four-day session:

1. Economic plans for 1960.
2. The budget.
3. Law on budgetary rights of the union of republics.
4. Law on recall of deputies.

International Situation
5. The international situation and Soviet foreign policy.
6. Ratification of legislation enacted by the Presidium since the last meeting of the Supreme Soviet.

The Supreme Soviet confirmed the previous election of four new deputies to the House of the Unions, including Alexei Adzhubi, son-in-law of Khrushchev and editor of Izvestia who toured America with Khrushchev. but it was not known whether he would speak today. He usually appears at the end of each session but could move up his speaking date.

County Pupils to Collect for UNICEF
Pupils of several Jackson county schools will receive pamphlets this week explaining the annual UNICEF Halloween project. Using the slogan "It's a good trick to treat for UNICEF" the flyers explain how the Medford chapter, Oregon United Nations association, is sponsoring the annual coin collection to buy food and medicine for children of less fortunate countries. Children are asked to meet at the school house in their neighborhood at 8:30 p.m. where UN members, interested parent-teacher association members and other adults will give them instructions and a little carton for the coins. The children are asked to return at 8 p.m., turn in their coins, and receive a treat of cider and doughnuts. Bakeries of the county are donating the doughnuts, Medford Elks lodge and service clubs the cider. United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund says that one dime will buy 50 glasses of milk for hungry children in other lands; 10 cents will also buy enough penicillin to cure two children of the tropical disease, yaws. Mrs. John B. Lynch, 139 Kenwood avenue, who is completing the work which Mrs. Gibbons began as chairman states that anyone interested in contributing, and not available on Halloween, may call her at SPing 3-1984. Sugar beets are grown as commercial crops in Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec.

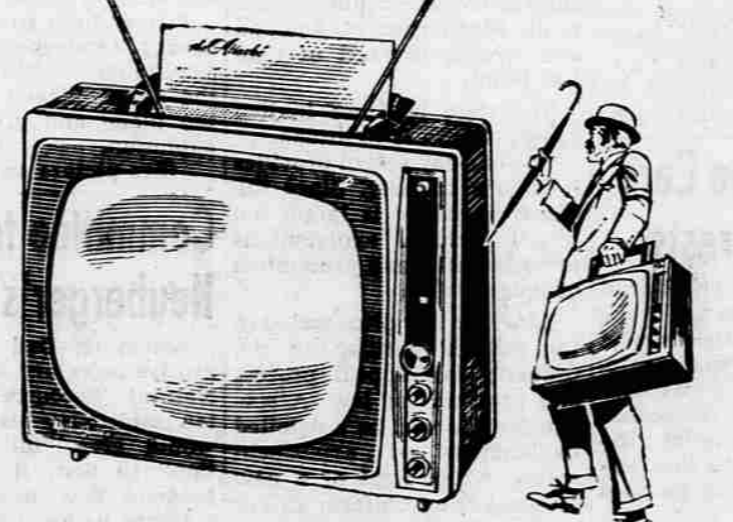

Geneva Nuclear Meeting Resumes
Geneva—(UPI)—The East-West nuclear conference resumes today in what some observers believed could be a major test of the "Camp David spirit" of improved relations between Russia and the West. U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth, Britain's Sir Michael Wright, and Russia's Semyon Tsarapkin were sitting down in the Palais des Nations to confer for the 128th time since the negotiations began last Oct. 31, nearly a year ago. It was the first nuclear meeting since the talks between U.S. and Soviet heads of government at Camp David, Md., last month. The negotiations had clearly reached a critical point, with the central issues narrowed down to one apparently immense problem—East-West agreement on a system of effective inspection and control of any nuclear test ban, which the West insists on. Basically there has been no change in the East and West positions since the conference recessed with general agreement on 18 parts of a proposed 24-part nuclear ban treaty. It had been hoped President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev would thrash out remaining problems at their Camp David "summit" last month but there was no actual proof the big two discussed the nuclear conference in detail.
