

ACQUITTED IN BEATING—Mrs. Elvera Ellis, 21, acquitted by Superior Judge Walter H. Odemar of beating her three-year-old child to death, collapsed after screaming, "I did it." Judge Odemar stated he could not convict the woman on the basis of the medical testimony. Mrs. Ellis is supported by Deputy Sheriff Faryl Patton, left to right, and Fred Irvine, right, as she leaves the courtroom in Los Angeles. The deputy in the rear is unidentified. —(UPI Telephoto)

Bombing Threats In Schools Present Problems for Heads

Dayton, Ohio (UP) — A telephone rings in a school and a secretary answers. A curt voice says, "A bomb is going to explode in your school soon. We mean business." The caller hangs up.

If you are a school superintendent, responsible for the well-being of 5,000 youngsters, what do you do?

Dismiss school for the day and encourage a prankster who wanted you to do exactly that?

Or assemble sheriff's deputies and school custodians to conduct a hasty search of your five sprawling schools while the pupils remain in their classes and you pray the caller didn't "mean business"?

Problem Faces Superintendent

This problem today faced Vaughn Lewis, superintendent of schools in prosperous, rapidly growing Beaver Creek Township, just outside the southwestern Ohio city of Dayton.

The 4,700 students under Lewis' jurisdiction took a day of schooling this week because of a telephoned bomb threat, the latest in a series in the five-county area which includes the Dayton and Cincinnati metropolitan centers.

The first scare occurred in North College Hill, a suburb of Cincinnati, in September. Officials closed the schools for a day but reopened them following Saturday and made attendance mandatory. The school received no more threats.

Woman Phones Threat

A woman telephoned police in Carlisle, a small town 10 miles south of Dayton, Monday and said a bomb had been planted in a school. About 1,400 students were sent home. Police searched all schools in the town but found no bomb.

Tuesday, a caller telephoned the Sugar Creek

Smallpox Still Major Public Health Problem

Washington, (Science Service)—The number of smallpox cases in the Americas is now one-fourth of the number 10 years ago, the Pan American Health Organization here has reported. But smallpox is still a major public health problem in this hemisphere. Of the 103,491 cases reported during the past 10 years in 15 countries and other areas, there were at least 16,000 deaths. Although most of the nations of the hemisphere are producing smallpox vaccine and national campaigns are making steady progress

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A CONFIRMED BACHELOR, president of a bank, and on the threshold of sixty, decided matrimony had its attractions after all, so he married a plump widow—with an alluring 18-year-old daughter.

It soon became apparent that he was much more interested in the daughter than in her mother. Chided by his directors for causing gossip injurious to the bank, the president defended himself vigorously. "Gentlemen," he explained, "I merely am living up to a banking tradition: 'Have fun with the interest, but never touch the principal.'"

One of Carolyn Wells' favorite limericks:
A scholarly person named Finch
Went mad in the effort to think
Which were graver misplaced—
To dip pen in his paste
Or dip his paste-brush in the ink.
