

In the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

Politics today. It might be a welcome change after an avalanche of quiz show news.

Yesterday was the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November—and the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November is traditional election day in the U.S.A. In countries that are so fortunate as to have FREE elections, election day is an important event.

It should perhaps be added that in our country the election days that fall in odd-numbered years are not particularly exciting.

IN KENTUCKY, a Democrat wins over a Republican for the office of governor in spite of hopeful thoughts by the GOP that it might win a victory there.

Kentucky, although classed as a border state, is still traditionally Southern and Democrat. When a Republican wins there, it's man-bites-dog news, and as such worth headlines. This year the man didn't bite the dog.

IN UTAH, former Republican Governor J. Bracken Lee (who is a controversial political character) runs for mayor of Salt Lake City as an independent candidate and wins over the Republican and Democratic candidates.

The Republicans claim gains in municipal elections in the smaller cities of Ohio and New York. In Indiana, as an offset, the Democrats win all but one of the mayoral elections in the state's 25 largest cities.

IN BOSTON, two Democrats were running for mayor. The Democrat endorsed by Senator John F. Kennedy—who is an outstanding candidate for the Democratic nomination for President—TOOK A BEATING.

It might have been happenstance. It MIGHT have been a slap at Kennedy.

WHAT brings us around to Mr. Harold Stassen, whose candidacy for mayor of Philadelphia was generally regarded as a test of whether he's still a political figure or only a has-been. Apparently, he's a has-been.

Anyway, he took a decisive beating. That probably cooks his goose.

WHAT'S wrong with Stassen?

I think everyone who saw him in action at the GOP convention in San Francisco will know what's wrong with him. He made an all-out foray against the nomination of Richard Nixon as vice-President.

He lost—horse and foot.

As a personal courtesy, he was given three minutes to make a statement. In his statement, he could have snatched a PERSONAL victory from the jaws of defeat. He could have grinned, shrugged his shoulders, waved his hand in a gesture of good sportsmanship, said a few laughing words and sat down in the burst of applause that always greets a graceful loser.

He didn't. Instead, he took 15 minutes of a busy convention's time to give an AWFUL exhibition of poor sportsmanship. That about tells the tale.
