The Medical Roundup by Walter Alvarez. Emeritus Consultant in Major Clinics. Emeritus Professor of Medicine. Mayo Clinic.

Lifetime Studies of Children And Adults. One of the unfortunate features of medicine, which always has bothered me, is that usually a consulting physician sees a patient for only an hour or two out of his or her long life. It is hard, then, for him to learn much about the influences which produced the illness. Worse yet, rarely can he learn anything of what happened to the patient after he or she went home.
