Irish Plot To Kidnap British Prince Rumored

London—UPI—Scotland Yard today snorted at a London newspaper's report that fanatical Irish Republican gunmen plan to kidnap Prince Charles but would not specifically confirm or deny the report.

The London Daily Herald said in a bannerline story that gunmen wanted to seize the 11-year-old heir to Britain's throne as a hostage in a scheme to win independence for Northern Ireland.

The Herald, quoting "Irish sources," identified the group as the Fianna Uladh (Warriors of Ulster) and said it was so fanatical that even the outlawed Irish Republican Army looked on it with disfavor.

Scotland Yard said the story obviously was done "because we refused to give information about why security measures were increased at Cheam School," which Charles attends.

There was no comment from Buckingham Palace which referred questioners to Scotland Yard. Scotland Yard stood by a statement that increased security precautions at Cheam including fierce Aislian police dogs were to prevent too-aggressive news photographers from snapping pictures of the prince.

Chancellor Seeks Pledge Against British Sell-Out

London—UPI—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer arrived here today for three days of talks with British leaders that are expected to gain him a pledge that Britain will not sell him out to Russia.

The visit is the latest in a series of two-party meetings designed to work out a unified Western position before the Allies face the Soviet Union at the summit conference table.

May End Stalemate

The talks were expected to end months of strained relations between the two countries, which were caused by German fears that Britain might be planning to dump them in dealings with the Russians.

But responsible British sources disclosed today that Macmillan is prepared to promise Adenauer that Britain will not appease the Russians and pull out of Berlin or leave a military vacuum in Central Europe.

Chancellor Worried

Ever since Macmillan broke the East-West stalemate with his Moscow mission last February, the 83-year-old chancellor has been worried about a possible British sell-out of German interests to gain peace.

But the sources said Macmillan will assure him that Britain stands with the other allies in opposing Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's demands for demilitarized, free city status for West Berlin and control of the city's lines to the West being switched to the East Germans.

Opposes Rapacki Plan

They said he will also reiterate his opposition to the non-nuclear zone plan of Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki, which would bar nuclear arms from East and West Germany, Poland, and Czechoslovakia.

Adenauer believes the plan would make West Germany a second rate power by denying her the nuclear weapons she needs for her defense.

OH, THOSE CRANBERRIES—Oregon Gov. Mark O. Hatfield seems to be relishing his lunch as he dips up cranberry sauce at the National Republican club in New York. Oregon is one of the states whose cranberries have been blacklisted for human consumption because of possible contamination by a weed-killer that is said to cause cancer in rats. Hatfield termed Vice President Richard Nixon a "front-runner" for the Republican presidential nomination, but he thought Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller might catch up. Hatfield received the club's distinguished service membership award at the club dinner. —(UPI Telephoto)

Change in Russia's Educational Plan Noted by Mayfield

(Editor's note: Medford School Superintendent Leonard Mayfield returned recently from a month-long tour which included an extended visit to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. Following is the first of a series of articles based on his visit. The first is the text of a news release, prepared by those school administrators on the trip, summarizing their findings. Subsequent articles will be by Dr. Mayfield himself.)

A group of American school administrators completed a three-week visit of Soviet schools on Oct. 30. The group found an educational program in a state of flux in response to a law adopted by the Supreme Soviet in December, 1958.

In addition to the academic emphasis which has until recently been almost exclusive in the Soviet general education school, a drastically new emphasis is now being introduced. The goal of ten years of sole academic education for all is no longer in the state's interest.

In the general criticism of the law, Premier Khrushchev was quoted in "Pravda" as follows: "The most important and fundamental defect of our secondary and higher schools is their isolation from life. Our Ten-Year School at the present time does not solve the problem of preparing young people for life, but prepares them only to enter higher establishments."

Being Replaced

"Preparation for life" appears to mean chiefly acquiring the ability and will to do skilled manual labor. Therefore, the Ten-Year School that has had the acclaim of some critics of American education is being replaced by a compulsory eight-year school which includes labor skills in its program.

The various types of educational programs beyond the eighth year will all have two points in common—they will be both voluntary and part-time, including considerable vocational training, usually on the job.

The Soviet Union is thus reorienting its schools to include preparation of skilled labor. This change will probably benefit the majority of Soviet children who would have ultimately entered the labor force regardless of the education they had received, and it will relieve them from the pressures and frustrations they experienced under the ten-year system.

Hardships Seen

The new system may work hardships on those capable youngsters who, for career reasons, would have wished for an uninterrupted secondary and higher education.

For now, not only will the last three years of secondary education be combined with factory, farm or production work, but preference for admission to all higher educational institutions will be granted to persons who have previously worked full-time for at least two years in agriculture, industry or the military.

In short, the big push under way in Russia today is not only for the preparation of the 25 per cent who will attend the university but also for the 75 per cent who are needed to do the nation's physical work.

Gov. Hatfield Sees Clean Campaign by Nixon, Rockefeller

New York—UPI—Gov. Mark Hatfield of Oregon said Monday night that he believed both Vice President Richard M. Nixon and New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller would put the interest of the Republican party above their presidential ambitions.

"Nixon and Rockefeller have agreed that, whatever may develop, they will not conduct a vicious, name-calling, party-splitting, pre-presidential campaign," Hatfield said.

"They have a high regard for one another. They see alike on many issues. Each is more concerned with the success of his party in 1960 than he is with narrow personal ambitions."

Given Award

The Republican governor said the danger in the situation was "not that the principals will fall to fighting each other as events develop into the 1960 election year, but that adherents might be carried to excess in the zeal of a campaign, creating animosities that would linger on beyond the GOP national convention."

Hatfield spoke at the "Pulse of the Nation" dinner of the National Republican Club. He was presented the club's distinguished service membership award.

He said he hoped that both Rockefeller and Nixon would enter the Oregon primary if they become presidential candidates.

Neutral In Race

"It is my hope that Oregon voters will have the same open opportunity to choose between them as the convention delegates will have in Chicago," Hatfield said.

"I have many times championed a national preferential primary law is a good one and cision can be made by the people rather than delegate maneuvering," he said.

"That is why the Oregon primary law is a god one and forces cagey, reluctant, machine-sponsored candidates into the open to pit their strength against candidates who have the courage to enter primaries."

Hatfield emphasized that his own role was "neutral" in any possible contest between Rockefeller and Nixon.

Hatfield has often been mentioned as a potential vice presidential candidate on the GOP ticket.

In a brief statement issued through the Irish Embassy, Hearne said his 21-year-old son, who has had several brushes with police, will continue his education in his native land.

Dick Carver, Portland, was named first vice president and Ab Gressett of Medford second vice president. New secretary-treasurer is Merle Saunders, Eugene and Roscoe Lee of Milton-Freewater was elected sergeant-at-arms.

Cold Wave Heads For Gulf States; Records Tumble

By United Press International

A sub-zero cold wave, worst of the season, headed toward the Gulf states and the East today, shattering Weather Bureau records that had stood since the turn of the century.

The frigid arctic blasts drove the temperature down to zero or below in the storm-ridden, northern Rockies and across the country's midsection.

The searing cold was felt as far south as Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

The sub-zero readings left a trail of death in the northern tier of states.

Montana Gets Respite

Montana, battered by two blizzards within a week, was given some respite today with early morning temperature readings as much as 45 degrees warmer than Monday.

Nevertheless, Montana was still the coldest spot in the nation. The mercury dipped to 14 below at Drummond and 7 below at Helena.

The weatherman said new record low temperatures were recorded at every reporting station in Iowa. The mercury flirted with the zero mark in many Iowa cities and dipped to 1 below at Mason City and Waterloo.

Record at Milwaukee

A record low of 4 degrees was set at Milwaukee at midnight. A 6 degree reading in Chicago at midnight shattered a mark set on Nov. 17, 1891.

The bitter cold wave caused a state of emergency in Worthington, Minn., when an explosion at the city power plant cut all electricity to the community of 10,000.

Rockefeller Plans Another Trip Before Campaign Decision

New York—UPI—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said Monday night he plans another speaking tour before he decides whether to officially throw his hat in the ring for the Republican presidential nomination.

Rockefeller, fresh from a swing through the West, arrived in his home state Monday to find a Nixon-for-president organization had sprung up in his absence.

The governor reiterated that it would be sometime in January before he would announce his decision whether to run for the nomination. His only comment for the Nixon organization in New York was: "That's fine. That will give his supporters here a central rallying point."

He declined to confirm reports he would embark on a speaking tour next month of Wisconsin, Minnesota and either Indiana or Ohio.

"All I can say is that I agreed to go on one more tour this year," he said. "The states that I will visit and the dates have not been set as yet."

Nixon Seen Stronger

Another Republican governor, Mark O. Hatfield, of Oregon, said Monday that Vice President Richard M. Nixon is a stronger candidate than Rockefeller because Nixon is better known.

Hatfield said Rockefeller needed "projection into the public mind." Hatfield was named as a possible vice presidential nominee if Rockefeller wins the presidential nomination.

The Oregon governor said there was little likelihood of his being chosen as the vice presidential nominee on a Nixon ticket "as we are both from the West."

President Confers With Space Boss On Future Plans

Augusta, Ga.—UPI—President Eisenhower conferred for an hour today with the government's space boss, Dr. T. Keith Glennan, on the future federal space program and how much to spend next year in reaching the moon.

The chief executive met with Glennan, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, at the Augusta National Golf Club. The meeting broke up shortly after 9 a.m. Glennan returned to Washington and the President began playing golf.

Budget Discussed

Acting White House Press Secretary Wayne Hawks said the conference concerned the space program for the future plus the budget for fiscal 1961 which begins next July 1.

Eisenhower also conferred during the morning with White House Staff Secretary, Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Goodpastor, who briefed him on latest intelligence reports from overseas, plus additional details of Eisenhower's December trip to Europe, the Middle East and Asia.

Hearing Slated In District Court

A hearing is scheduled in circuit court this afternoon on a 16-year-old Ashland youth to determine whether the youth should stand trial in district court on charges of rape.

The boy had been sentenced to MacLaren School for Boys at Salem by Circuit Judge Edward C. Kelly, but was returned in October. The board of control, considering a request from MacLaren's superintendent that the youth was "incorrigible," had questioned the courts here and in Clackamas county for committing the youth to MacLaren. The board stated the youth "should never have been committed to MacLaren in the first place in view of the long history of delinquency."

William V. Deatherage, attorney for the youth, has moved for an order vacating the court's order of Oct. 22 remanding him to district court to stand trial there.

The motion was made "on the basis no hearing has been allowed the defendant as to whether or not he should be treated as a delinquent child or adult," Deatherage stated in his request.

Board of Health To Meet in Medford

Portland—UPI—The State Board of Health will hold its regular meeting in Medford Wednesday.

A spokesman said that among other things up for discussion was a motion for a re-hearing of the application for federal Hill-Burton funds by the proposed Pendleton Community hospital.

The hospital's application was turned down at the last meeting of the Board in Postland. Sponsors then asked the Board for the re-hearing in Medford.

Bids To Be Called On Talent Work

The bureau of reclamation plans to issue bid calls for three more jobs in the Talent project before the end of the fiscal year, June 30, according to officials.

Bids will be invited about March for the first section of work involved in improving the Talent lateral near Ashland. The work will consist of construction a diversion structure and enlarging the lateral from the headworks to Bear creek, the bureau said.

In April, bids may be invited for improvement of the lateral, involving enlarging required from Bear creek to the end of the lateral.

Bids for enlarging about 148 miles of the west lateral near Talent will be invited in June, the bureau said. The lateral will be enlarged to about twice the present size, and earthwork and structures on about 8.4 miles of the lateral will be required.

The three jobs are among seven in Oregon for which the bureau plans to call for bids before June 30.

Other jobs are in the Crooked River project, and in the Klamath basin project.
