NEW CAPITALISM—Norman Thomas, above, Socialism's chief spokesman in America for two generations, predicted Monday in an interview with UPI Staff Correspondent Frederick M. Winskip that neither Socialism nor Communism will prevail in the world in 1980. He said a new form of capitalism will take over. —(UPI Telephoto)

Thomas Predicts New Capitalism In World in 1980

Editor's note: Few people ever took seriously the six presidential campaigns waged by Socialist Norman Thomas. But despite the "socialist" label on his ideas, some of them have found a way into accepted practice. On the eve of his 75th birthday, Thomas looks ahead again. In the following dispatch he predicts that the governmental systems of United States and Russia are moving closer together.

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

United Press International
New York—(UPI)—Norman Thomas, Socialism's chief spokesman in America for two generations, predicted today that neither Socialism nor Communism will prevail in the world of 1980 but rather a new form of capitalism.

Both the United States and Russia are moving toward this form, he said, but it still will be "garrison state capitalism... for security through military strength will be the prime motivating factor."

"It is not Socialism or Communism that will prevail 20 years from now, if we are to continue as we are now without catastrophe," he said in the six times unsuccessful candidate for the presidency who will be 75 years old next Friday.

Business-Government Merger
"What we will have is capitalism practiced by the state for the benefit of the state. This will approximate the Russian system, so there will be little to fight over."

By 1980, Thomas said, government and Big Business will have merged, a trend already clearly defined by the mushrooming economic power of a relatively small number of great industrial corporations and the appointive posts of enormous executive power in Washington occupied by their representatives. The vast and expensive efforts of waging a cold war with Russia serve to magnify and hasten this development.

Little Progress Made
The still - handsome veteran of many a proletarian crusade is the first to admit that Socialism itself has made little progress in America since some of its social welfare and economic planning precepts were incorporated into Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal.

He says he sometimes feels like a voice crying in the wilderness - but it is a voice that has the respect of some of the nation's best minds.

Thomas' role as something of an elder statesman is amply demonstrated by the impressive list of sponsors for a gala birthday dinner at the Starlight Roof of the Waldorf-

Mediator Meets With Both Sides In Paper Strike

Portland—(UPI)—Federal Mediator Elmer Williams met with both sides in Portland's newspaper strike today to try to find some way to end the walkout.

It was the first meeting attended by both striking Stereotypers and management representatives of the Oregon Journal and Oregonian since the strike began a week ago today.

There was no indication, however, that agreement was near. Williams met separately with both sides last week.

The two newspapers have been publishing a combined edition in the Oregonian plant. As the strike headed into its second week there were these other developments.

1. The Stereotypers union, through attorney Don Richardson, asked U.S. Attorney C. E. Luckey to investigate the possible violation of federal statutes by the bringing in of out-of-state craftsmen. William W. Knight, publisher of the Journal, and M. J. Frey, publisher of the Oregonian, said in a joint statement: "The charge is without merit. We will welcome any investigation and will cooperate to the fullest extent in pressing one to a conclusion should it be undertaken."

2. The Multnomah Typographical Union and the Local Mailers Union, affiliate of the International Typographical Union, joined the stereotypers on the picket line. A statement said "due to the fact that strikebreakers have been brought into the Oregonian plant... the international union of the two locals recognized that a lockout exists between the publishers and these unions."

3. Police questioned two men seen entering a local hotel. One, who said he came here to do newspaper work, had two rifles and two shotguns which he said were personal hunting weapons. However, management said that in view of the strike they considered the action potentially provocative and that he was no longer employed.

Cincinnati, Ohio—(UPI)—Harry W. Mayo, 47, a veteran newspaper reporter and editor for the Cincinnati Post and Times-Star for the past 21 years, died Monday.

25 Students Hurt In Bus Accident

Vincent, Ala.—(UPI)—Twenty five high school students received minor injuries Monday night when a school bus driven by a 16-year-old student crashed into a car and careened off the highway.

Police said the students were treated at a doctor's office. Several others aboard the bus escaped injury.

Police Chief Gordon Poore said the bus, driven by J. H. Dorrough, collided with a car driven by John Paul Carr, 41, and left the highway inside the city limits.

HOW TO BE A PERFECT HOSTESS...
*Another Tip On How To Make Your Home Happier, Compliments Of Your Favorite Cal/Ore Electrical League Dealer.
WITHOUT TURNING INTO A GALLEY SLAVE
Holidays—and holiday entertaining—can be fun. The key to enjoyment for you as well as your guests? AN AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC DISHWASHER, of course! Don't let thoughts of sinkful of dirty dishes spoil your party fun. Put a dishwasher in your kitchen and do 'em the easy, automatic electric way.
Remember, too, that dishes, silver, crystal, and utensils come from your dishwasher almost completely bacteria-free. No homemaker who washes dishes the old-fashioned sink-and-dishcloth way can make this statement.
