Pakistan, Third Stop on Ike's Tour, Strong Western Ally

By United Press International
Pakistan, third stop of President Eisenhower's December tour, is the strongest Western ally on the Asian mainland. It is physically split and spiritually unified. Pakistan literally means "land of the pure." Pakistan flanks India. The western half is six times bigger than the eastern half. But the eastern section has more than half of the nation's 85 million population.

More than 88 per cent of the citizens are Moslem, Hindus and a few Christians make up the rest. Pakistan has a 5,000-year history and is a 12-year-old nation. In 1947 Britain freed its Indian empire. The central portion of the Asian subcontinent is Hindu-dominated and became India. Moslems, under the leadership of the late Mohammed Ali Jinnah, formed divided Pakistan. Jinnah said Hindu and Moslem could never live together in peace as one nation; Pakistan and India have been having major trouble living in peace as two nations.

Both Want Kashmir
Biggest Pakistani-Indian problems are control of Kashmir and division of the Indus river's waters. In the past few months India and Pakistan began cordial discussions toward settling the problems. Anti-Communist Pakistan is a member of the Central Treaty Organization and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, both U.S.-sponsored. The United States is pledged to help Pakistan if Pakistan is attacked.

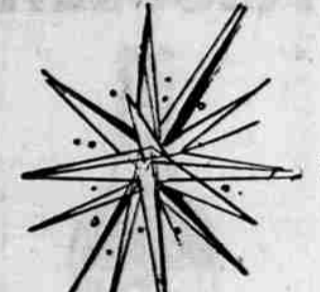

Pakistan is Asian poor. It is chiefly agricultural; the government promotes industrialization. In October, 1958, army commander in chief Gen. Mohammed Ayub Khan, 52, took control of the Western-style government with the aid of President Iskander Mirza. Ayub is a six-footer with a British mustache and American hustle. 'Gandhi of Sicily' Gets Lenin Prize

Rome—UPI—Danilo Dolci, a 34-year-old writer and reformer once called "the Gandhi of Sicily," receives the Lenin Peace Prize of Russia here today. Dolci was arrested four years ago for leading 200 unemployed Sicilian laborers out to work on the roads in a strike in reverse. He did this to make the point that there was plenty of work available if only the government would authorize it and thus help the poor.

"When they came to arrest me, I offered only passive resistance as Indian spiritual leader Mohandas K. Gandhi did," Dolci said at his trial. Police said he was a "well-known agitator." Here from Moscow to confer the Lenin prize on Dolci was famed writer Ilya Ehrenburg.

Buffalo, N. Y.—UPI—It was just a misunderstanding, defendant Larry Thomas, 22, told the jury. He didn't say anything about a "holdup" to the liquor store proprietor; he merely asked him to "hurry up."

Back Stairs: Greens Fee at Augusta

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter
Augusta, Ga. (UPI)—Back stairs at the White House: When President Eisenhower stays at the Augusta National Golf Club, the members make it a practice not to invite guests to play the sparkling course, scene of the annual Masters Tournament. When the Chief Executive is not a resident at the club, however, members may have guests. There are only two conditions: The member must play with the guest, and the green fee for the guest is $10 per 18 holes plus $5 for an obligatory caddy.

Few country clubs around the nation charge more than $10 a round. There are some clubs that may charge more on week ends but not many. The President, of course, and the other regular members never pay a green fee. It is covered in their dues and annual bills for club operations.

On some days, the Augusta National has a most hospitable feature—a serve-yourself bar on the 10th tee. It requires a certain amount of guessing, but some of the President's intimates say they believe they know why Eisenhower was so snappy here the other day with photographers.

Eisenhower got exceedingly angry with the lensmen who were quite puzzled since they had been asked inside the club by members of the White House staff to make pictures of the President and a group of defense department officials. What was not evident at the moment, however, was this background: In rapid succession that morning, the President had read several news stories which, to put it mildly, he did not like. One article told how Mamie Eisenhower had confided in local shopgirls that she thought the President's upcoming 11-nation

Farm Issue Said Unable To Beat GOP

Washington — (UPI)—Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) said today the Republicans can't be beaten in 1960 on the farm issue alone even though there is no prospect of passing major farm legislation next year.

Aiken, ranking Republican member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said in an interview that any "farm revolt" would not have the severe political impact of a decade ago.

"The number of people engaged in agriculture is not over 10 per cent of the total population," Aiken explained. "And while agriculture is losing people, the rest of the population is growing by leaps and bounds." "The Republicans can't be beaten on that issue alone next year."
