Turkey Stiffened Against Reds; Needs Assurance U.S. Not Soft

Ankara, Turkey – (UPI)–When the Eisenhower airplane comes to rest on the high Anatolian Plain near the spot where Genghis Khan entered Turkey centuries earlier, the American President will find a situation not apt to be duplicated elsewhere on his long trip.

Here at Turkey's capital city of Ankara, he will find a friend of the Western powers that does not need to have its spine stiffened against Communism. Instead it needs assurance that the spine of the U.S.A. has not softened.

"Our major concern is not Communism," an official of the national government told this writer. "We are concerned with Russians.

Don't Trust Russians

"Communism or Czarism, we have learned through bitter centuries not to trust the Russian. Truth and sincerity are not his virtues. Compacts are worthless. In a quid pro quo, he takes the quid and finds a reason for never giving up the quo."

The Turkish nation is concerned with the effect upon the West in general and the American people in particular of the recent visit of Premier Khrushchev to the United States.

Although most of the country, including the capital city, is in Asia, Turkey has contributed what is said to be the largest army in Europe to the NATO cause. The Turks have fought many wars with the Russians, and they fear they will have to fight again if the West is lulled by the Kremlin into relaxing its guard.

Proud of Ataturk

Turkey is proud of three things in its national life. First is its military force. Second is the star and crescent flag as a symbol of as fierce a nationalism as you can find. Third is the memory of Mustafa Kemel Ataturk, who westernized the nation and whose spectacular tomb, perhaps the greatest of its kind in the world, crowns an Ankara hilltop.

Turkey's great national and military pride, so evident in Istanbul and Ankara, was exemplified for this writer during the Korean war when a gravely wounded soldier was brought to a front-line aid station. Silent among the wounded men as he waited his turn, he uttered his first and only words when a blood-splattered surgeon turned to him:

"Me, Turk!"

Symbolic of Turkey's determined stand to prevent the Russians from gaining longed-for access to the warm water of the Mediterranean are the submarine nets at the juncture of the Bosphorus and the Black Sea. Russian vessels are permitted to pass through a narrow and zig-zag course between the nets, in accordance with the Lausanne Treaty and the Montreux Convention.

Directness Characteristic

The Turkish army, navy and air force are expensive to maintain. Their strain on the national economy will be made apparent to President Eisenhower as he is driven over the hills through busy, dusty Ankara and up to the presidential palace in the clear, chill air of th heights overlooking the city.

Directness is an outstanding Turkish characteristic. Walking down Ataturk blvd. with a Turkish journalist, this reporter asked the reason for a large wooden pylon being constructed at an intersection.

"That's a tak," the Turk replied. "It is to welcome the Eisenhower party. It will be draped with American and Turkish flags."

Then he added; smiling:

"There'll probably be a banner saying 'Welcome Ike! Where's the money?'"

Turkey regards the situations in Berlin and southeast Asia as merely diversionary from the Communist point of view, believes that the unswerving aim of the Reds is to control the Middle East with its under-fed and emotionally overcharged millions, and that this is the basic situation from which the West must never take its eye.

If it does, they say, the world will be engulfed in chaos and Communism will appear as the solution.

Whatever the problem of its internal economy, the nation is a solid unit in historic and unyielding opposition to Russia and in its partnership with the West.

BACK IN WASHINGTON—President and Mrs. Eisenhower were greeted by a light rain as they returned to Washington, D. C., Monday from a 12-day vacation in Georgia. The Chief Executive will plunge into a round of urgent conferences on the federal budget and his forthcoming tour of Europe, the Middle East and Asia. —(UPI Telephoto)

Zesty Stitchers

Members of the Zesty Stitchers 4-H club discussed their forthcoming potluck dinner at the second meeting at Mrs. Gardener's home last Saturday.

Parents are invited to the dinner, which is scheduled for Dec. 19.

Miss Izora Hayes was made a new member of the club. Other business included the drawing of names to exchange Christmas gifts.

The group's next meeting will be held at Mrs. Gardener's home at 10:30 a.m., Dec. 19.

GM To Resume Auto Assembly

Detroit –(UPI)– General Motors announced Tuesday it will resume assembly of automobiles, halted for nearly two weeks by steel shortages, Monday, Dec. 7.

GM President John F. Gordon said production of Cadillacs would begin Dec. 7.

In the same week, he said, the assembly of Corvairs will resume at the Willow Run, Mich., plant, and Chevrolets at Janesville, Wis., Norwood, Ohio, and Flint, Mich.

He said there would be enough components available by then to operate these plants four days during the week of Dec. 7.

All other GM car and truck divisions, Buick, Oldsmobile, Pontiac,, GMC Truck and Coach and the remainder of the firm's Chevrolet plants, will resume assembly operations Dec. 14, Gordon said.

Stolen Car Found In Ashland Tuesday

Ashland – A car stolen from Portland was recovered by Ashland police Tuesday morning only a short distance from where an Ashland man's auto had been reported stolen Monday.

Police said they believe the theft and recovery "may tie in." The Portland car was turned over to state police for checking. The vehicle had been taken late Sunday night.

GRANGE NEWS

Gold Hill Grange

The regular meeting of the Gold Hill Grange was held last Thursday at the Grange hall.

The business meeting began with the seating drill and the master, Charles Foote, got the various items for consideration underway.

Chairman A. A. Walker of the legislative committee talked on taxes and on the subject of agriculture, two timely topics were introduced – cranberries and dryness.

The lecturer then read a few items from "U.S. News and World Report" of Nov. 23 regarding desegregation in schools at Washington, D.C., where the Negro pupils outnumber the whites by 3 to 1.

The ways and means committee, through Chairman Leona Jenks, reported success in the canvass for signers for rural fire protection. The Grange voted the money to get this before the county court.

Mrs. Jenks announced that there will be an auction at the next meeting to dispose of jewelry left at the hall after recent dances. As no one has claimed these articles, they will be disposed of in the sale.

Three candidates, Grover and Nellie Kelley and Rex Allison, were obligated in the first and second degrees of the order.

Master Foote announced that Phoenix Grange would be giving the first and second degrees at its meeting Tuesday. Candidates of Gold Hill may avail themselves of this opportunity.

All eligible candidates will be obligated in the third and fourth degrees at the next meeting of the Gold Hill Grange.

The Grange voted to give to the Tuberculosis Seal campaign.

The National Group Achievement Chart was received and placed on the wall.

It was announced that the installation of officers for the Enterprise, Live Oak, Sams Valley and Gold Hill Granges will be held at Gold Hill Grange Dec. 13 at 1:30 p.m. Officers-elect of other Granges who find this time more convenient are welcome.

A note was read from the forest rangers expressing thanks for use of the hall.

It was noted to reinstate Albert Bemeau on his request as he had retired from the Grange in good standing on his own request.

A card was read from Lola Beneau, who is in Hawaii on the Grange tour.

Floral arrangements were by Josephine Loeffler and Willie McLean.

The lecturers' program included two groups of selections by the Goehring sisters on their accordians. Numbers of patriotic and sacred themes were played. The girls were accompanied to the Grange by their mother, Mrs. James Edge and Mrs. Roy Stanley, both of Eagle Point.

The speaker of the evening was Maj. Gen. J. H. Hicks, who was introduced by Ferd Jones, Civil Defense chairman for Gold Hill, and who spoke on matters pertaining to national defense. He also answered questions at the close of his talk.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served in the dining hall by Bob and Della Cook.

Publicity.

Central Point Grange

The third and fourth degree obligation was given to Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Beesoff, Addison Sidener, and Douglas Decker by Master Benton Boyce Nov. 20 at the regular meeting of Central Point Grange.

During the business session the members voted to hold an "open house" in February. Roscoe Roberts, insurance agent for the Grange, reported on the recent meeting he attended in Seattle, and on Grange insurance in general.

Mrs. Charles Jantzer, chairman of the HEC, reported the smorgasbord served on Nov. 14 a success. She announced Dec. 11 as a tentative date for a pinochle party for Grangers and friends. Mrs. O. T. Wilson, acting chaplain, reported Delmar and Freida Smith, and Mrs. Adena Benson ill.

The lecturers program was in honor of the 50th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Conger, and included the following numbers, which were announced by Mrs. Homer Jeffries: "Schooldays," by a mixed quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Neidermeyer, Mrs. Effie Kurtz, and Homer Jeffries; pantomine by Mrs. Wilson and Marshall Weidman as girl and boy; "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" by quartet and portrayed by Mr. and Mrs. Don Bohnerts as sweethearts; a ladies trio composed of Mrs. Kurtz, Mrs. Niedermeyer, and Mrs. Arnold Bohnert sang "Love and Marriage," followed by a solo by Mrs. Kurtz "Through The Years."

The parts of the Conger's children were portrayed by Mr. and Mrs. Homer Conger, and Mr. and Mrs. John Neidermeyer, and friends of the Grange acted as the grandchildren. Mrs. Conger was presented with a bouquet of chysanthemums and an anniversary cake. Mrs. Gaston Flouz presented a gift. Mrs. Jeffries of the HEC arranged and presented the program. Both Mr. and Mrs. Conger recalled some of the events of their lives and were wished many more happy years together.

The serving committee for the evening included Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taylor, and Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Smith.

The lecturer, Mrs. Floux, announced the program for Dec. 4 will include a panel discussion on farm law by the boys of the Crater High FFA chapter, and a talk by James McDonald of the Curriculum Center of Jackson County schools.

Sentence Suspended In Dynamite Case

Albany –(UPI)– Gary Wilt, 21, Corvallis, received a 60-day suspended sentence Monday in Linn county Circuit court on a charge of damaging property with explosives. Judge Victor Olliver also put him on probation for one year.

Wilt entered a guilty plea to providing a case of dynamite which was exploded as a prank east af Corvallis Nov. 7. The blast shook the area and caused an estimated $1,200 damage. Wilt was not present when the blast was touched off.

Douglas Moyle, 19, Corvallis, earlier pleaded guilty to the same charge and admitted setting off the blast. He also was given a 60-day suspended sentence and was put on probation for a year.

The Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a Judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

DOROTHY E. – He should tell his family to keep away.

JACK E.–I can't kick them out of my home.

DOROTHY E. – I was married a year ago and I am expecting a baby in a few months. I am still working full time.

My problem is that a couple of times a week my mother-in-law or brother-in-law drops in for a little while for a chat. I'm tired at the end of the day and I have plenty of work to do around the house. I don't feel like entertaining anyone at the end of a hard day. A couple of times I just went to bed, but I could hear them talking and laughing in the living room and it annoyed me.

I want my husband to tell them to keep away, but he refuses.

• • •

JACK E. – My family was always very close. We enjoy getting together and chewing the rag until all hours of the night. I can't kick them out of my home. They would know that it's because of Dorothy and they feel she doesn't like them anyway.

Dorothy is wrong to say she has to entertain them. They help themselves to coffee and never ask her to do a thing. My brother has done a lot of little favors for us in getting our place into shape and now he feels that our place is practically like his own home. Mother feels the same way.

• • •

THE COUNCIL: – We think Dorothy has a legitimate beef. The problem here goes a bit deeper than just the physical work involved in entertaining.

As is usual in a close-knit family, the newcomer feels like an intruder. Dorothy hasn't been married long enough to become entirely secure in her possession of her husband. When her in-laws drop into her home any time they please and feel as though it is their own home, Dorothy feels she has nothing.

We think it is most discourteous of these in-laws to remain in the house after Dorothy has excused herself to go to bed. The mere fact that they could remain under those circumstances indicates that they don't consider her of much importance around the place.

On the other hand, we think it likely that Dorothy has been instrumental in putting herself in this position. If she had shown her interest in and affection for her husband's family, she might have been drawn into this close-knit group and felt very happy and comfortable within it. In any case, the family would have felt her warmth toward them and she wouldn't have to be afraid of telling them herself that she would like a little more privacy in her own home.

When her child is born, Dorothy may feel much more secure and will welcome these family get-togethers as a relief from being alone with a child all day. She may also want to call upon her in-laws to serve as babysitters. So we think that whatever is said to Jack's family should be said in a kindly way.

Highways Should Be Checked Prior To Holiday Travel

Travelers should check highway conditions before going out of town, especially if the trip calls for a drive over mountain passes, Medford Chief of Police Charles P. Champlin suggested today.

"If you must travel over snow or ice, use tire chains and reduce speed to compensate for winter driving conditions," he added.

Chief Champlin made the suggestions while expressing his hope that the Thanksgiving holidays would be free of traffic deaths in Oregon as well as Medford.

Drivers trying to take too long a trip in a short holiday period are the biggest worry over Thanksgiving, he said.

The chief noted that last Thanksgiving was the safest holiday in the state for the entire year, with only 154 accident and 56 injuries occurring in traffic. There were no deaths during the 30-hour period.

The two other 30-hour holidays of last year, Christmas and New Years, accounted for four deaths apiece.

CALORIC INTAKE

United Nations, N. Y. (UPI) – Americans eat well but they rank only sixth among the big eating nations of the world, according to United Nations figures. Ireland has the largest per capita caloric intake of 3,510. Denmark is second followed by New Zealand, Switzerland, Australia, the U.S. and Canada.

Shasta Daylight Request Rejected

Washington – (UPI) – The Interstate Commerce Commission Tuesday turned down a request from the states of Oregon and California to reconsider its decision to let the Southern Pacific Railroad reduce service on the San Francisco-Portland, Ore., route.

The Commission, after holding hearings in San Francisco, granted the railroad permission last May 6 to operate passenger service on the run tri - weekly. The so - called Shasta Daylight service had been operating on a daily service. The reduction of service went into effect last Jan. 15.

In June, California and Oregon State public utility commissioners protested the ICC decision and asked for reconsideration and new oral arguments.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Teach us to look in all our ends
To Thee for judge and not our friends;
That we with Thee may walk uncowed
By fear or favor of the crowd.

Teach us the strength that cannot seek,
By deed or thought, to hurt the weak,
That, under Thee, we may possess
Man's strength to comfort man's distress.

Teach us to delight in simple things,
And Mirth that has no bitter springs;
Forgiveness free of evil done,
And love to all men 'neath the sun!

Land of our Birth, our Faith, our Pride,
For whose dear sake our fathers died;
O Motherland, we pledge to thee
Head, heart and hand through years to be!
