Christmas is 22-Day Party In Philippines

Manila (UPI) – It takes the Philippines 22 days to celebrate Christmas.

The people, who are predominantly Catholic, usher in the Yuletide season with traditional "Misas de Gallo" (literally, "Masses at Cock's Crow") starting at dawn on Dec. 16.

During the eight days before Christmas Day, the faithful wake up about 3 o'clock to attend the masses in Roman Catholic churches and chapels in every city, town and village of the country.

Streets Lined

The masses are climaxed by a midnight mass on Dec. 24, after which the celebrants go home through streets and paths lined with vendors selling native delicacies such as rice cakes, bananas sweetened with molasses and glutinous rice served in bamboo tubes.

The streets are lighted from star-shaped lanterns displayed in the windows of houses along the way. Small children, armed with guitars and empty GI gasoline drums, go from door to door singing native Christmas carols and soliciting a few centavos in exchange for the "music."

In homes, there are family reunions. Gifts are opened. Outside firecrackers are exploded, garbage cans beaten. Children jump up and down with their new toys. The tables are stacked with goodies.

From Dec. 25 to Jan. 6, fun-loving Filipinos celebrate the coming of the Child Jesus. The festivities are particularly colorful in towns and villages which have the Child Jesus for their patron saint.

The season comes to an end Jan. 6 with ceremonies marking the visit of the Three Kings of the East to the Child Jesus. On the night before, children put their shoes on window sills in the hope that the Three Kings will deposit some coins there on their way to Bethlehem.

The kids are rarely disappointed when they awaken.

Major Viral Disease Eradicated from U.S.

Washington (Science Service) – A serious viral swine disease that was once a nation-wide threat has been eradicated from the country, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reports. Vesicular exanthema became a problem in 1952 when it spread from California, where it had been confined for more than 20 years. Within six weeks it had spread to 18 states and, in a year, to 43 states. Now, as a result of an eradication program calling for inspection, quarantine, disposal of infected swine, disinfection of contaminated areas and laws forbidding feeding of raw garbage to swine, the disease has been completely wiped out. No new case has been reported for three years.

Heat Flows Faster in One Spot in Pacific

La Jolla, Calif. (Science Service) – Oceanographers have found a spot in the southeastern Pacific where heat flows through the earth's crust eight times faster than the average world rate. The area is along the 3,000-mile East Pacific rise extending southwestward off South America. Beneath most ocean floors the heat flow is about equal to that in the continents.
