Spanish Girl Makes Ike Late For Breakfast

Madrid, Spain—UPI—President Eisenhower kept a blind date with a little Spanish miss today which made him late for breakfast with Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The date was 7-year-old Rosa Maria Jimenez Calvo, who planted a kiss smack on Eisenhower's lips in a burst of affection. The President blushed noticeably.

It all began last Sept. 8 when tiny dark-eyed Rosita wrote to President "Esinyaguer"—which is how his name sounded to her—and asked to see him when he visited Spain.

U.S. Ambassador John Davis Lodge learned of the letter from the little girl, who referred to Eisenhower as "the good-looking grandpa."

Lodge arranged for the meeting this morning as Eisenhower left the palace where he spent the night to drive to El Pardo palace for breakfast with Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Rosa, scrubbed to shining cleanliness, and wearing a prim blue dress and white stockings, was waiting at the bottom of the broad stairway of Moncloa Palace at 7:40 a.m. when the president came down.

Lodge and Rosa's parents, Mario and Ann Jimenez, were with her.

The President, natty in a freshly-pressed gray business suit and carrying his topcoat over one arm, smiled broadly when Lodge introduced Rosa.

The President posed for pictures with the child, telling her "let's wait until the pictures are over and we can talk."

Then he led her to a chair and sat down, but she decided she'd stand. Placing a hand affectionately on her shoulder, Eisenhower asked if she liked dolls.

She whispered back "Si." An aide handed Eisenhower a long box in Christmas holiday wrapping. The box was as big as Rosa, herself.

"That will be your doll," Eisenhower said.

Whereupon Rosa clutched at the shoulder of his coat and kissed him smack on the lips.

The club sponsors the event annually for children of the Eagle Point area, and all children and parents are invited.

Prove it to yourself before you buy. Bring in any one of your 8mm films and we'll be happy to demonstrate the wonderful difference the M-8 can make.
